

THE EXCHANGE WRAPS UP FOR '78

An unscheduled evening of reunions occurred last Wednesday evening (Nov. 22) at "The Exchange". It was a pleasant reminder for all of us that the December break can be considered just around the corner. The entertainment for the evening was provided by Jim Stright, Len and Paul Allen, each of whom were performing for the first time at "The Exchange".

As a sole performer, Jim was to display a very light and easy style.

This was effectively conveyed, throughout the evening, in the songs he selected. Neil Young's "After the Gold Rush", and Bob Dylan's "Knockin' on Heaven's Door", stood out in this regard. Jim also introduced a very fine song written by a friend, Dennis Brown, entitled "Over Water".

From his own collection we also heard "O My Son", a concluding song which clearly had special significance.

During the evening, vocal harmony and excellent guitar style were the key features displayed, in their first performance together, an ability to bring these features across in the songs they selected. "Coming Into Los Angeles", "Rocky Raccoon", "Thick as a Brick", "59th Street Bridge Song", are just a few. Special mention, in regard to vocals, should also be given to Len's selection of James Taylor's "Steamroller" and to Paul's version of "Give a Little Bit."

The Exchange coffee shop is open from 8 to 11:30 every Wednesday evening in the Panther Lounge of the Barn. Next week is the final evening the Coffee Shop will be in operation and Al has arranged for a full evening of entertainment.

Drop in for a visit and bring a friend! It should be a fine evening!

As you are aware, the last issue of the SUN for this semester is now in your hands. On behalf of all the people who have enjoyed visiting "The Exchange Coffee Shop" during this semester I would like to take this opportunity to thank first and foremost Al Ward for the time and effort he has put into its operation.

Without him "The Exchange" would never have run so efficiently. Sincere thanks, Al.

Finally, on behalf of Al, special thanks is extended to the performers:

Jim, Len, Paul; to Gordon, Cathy, and Bernadette for their assistance each week; to the Campus Police staff who volunteered their time each week;

the Student Union executive for their co-operation; and to the girls at the Beaver Foods Cafeteria in the Barn. Have a great holiday!
