A heavy thunder and lightning storm passed over Oxford, N. S., on the 21st inst., and Miller's hotel was struck by lightning. It entered on the roof at one corner and followed the corner board, splintering it all the way to the ground. The laths and plaster are badly damaged in two rooms. A young girl named Purdy was slightly injured in a house, about one hundred yards from the hotel, by the same shock. No other damage is reported.

The special correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce, writing from Chicago, says:—"Very little progress so far has been made with the harvest of the early winter wheat, and the general harvest of this crop is now looked for within about fourteen days. The reports of cheat in wheat in Illinois and Missouri still continue to be received, and the general outlook of the crop in southern Illinois has run down quite a number of points since my last despatch. Western Missouri is also similarly situated. This is about the only poor spot upon the whole area of the winter wheat belt. Kansas wheat is nearly ready to cut, and no damage of any kind, except that of a local nature, has so far been reported upon this crop. I look also for an uneven crop in southern Ohio and Indiana, but on the whole a better crop than in 1883.
