Prince Board of Trade which opposes the granting of a bus franchise to the C. N. R. was rebuffed by Mr. Peter Pate who elaborated on the brief, and suggested that a jitney service between Tignish and Summerside would give the improved service that he believed the people of West Prince would favor. He thought the I.M.T. were giving very satisfactory service that would in most cases be duplicated by the railway buses and that I.M.T. would be forced to abandon their bus route.

The church, a big grey-stone structure dominated by two silvery spires, is intact. A brook separates it from the section where the fire broke out. But firefighters, taking no chances flames might leap the narrow stream and get at the church's roof kept the structure wet with water they could pump.

Mayor Takes Charge
Giving orders and keeping things under control was husky Mayor Joseph Bouchard who took over direction of the firefighting shortly after it broke out about 9 a.m.
'It looked just like another fire at first,' said Mayor Bouchard, 'but that northeast wind came up.'

Anniversary Of First Atlantic Flight In 1919

LONDON, June 14 - Aviation history was made 33 years ago today when a twin-engine biplane climbed unsteadily into a 40 m.p.h. headwind above St. John's, Newfoundland, headed east and vanished over the fog-shrouded Atlantic. Sixteen hours and twelve minutes later, at 8:24 on the morning of Sunday, June 15, 1919, the frail, box-like machine touched down awkwardly in a bog at Clifden, County Galway, Ireland. It had flown 1,800 miles and made the first non-stop crossing of the Atlantic.

At the controls in the open cockpit of the British-built Vickers Vimy bomber were two men, 33-year-old Captain John Alcock, an Englishman and 27-year-old Lieut. Arthur Whitten-Brown, born in Scotland. Flying most of the time in thick fog, they lumbered slowly across the ocean at an average speed of about 120 m.p.h. But they pioneered the way for trans-Atlantic air travel eight years in advance of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's heroic solo crossing from Mineola, Long Island to Paris in May, 1927.

During the flight the two men drank coffee and nibbled at meat sandwiches. They wore warm suits which protected them from the icy weather.

Afterwards, Alcock (who was killed in an aeroplane crash in France later the same year) commented: "It has shown that flying the Atlantic is a practical job." Whitten-Brown, (who survived until 1948) said: "We know now exactly the type of machine the manufacturers must make for commercial purposes."

As a memorial to the two pioneers, a statue is to be erected at London airport, William MacMillan Royal Academician, is preparing it in cooperation with the Airport architect so that the piece, with Edward Island" should be tied with "Pope and his armies" by W. L. Macdonald, retired University of British Columbia English professor. Then a special panel appointed according to the rules of the awards board adjudged the two books and gave the Governor-General's award to Dr. MacKinnon, who was lecturer in political science at Toronto and Carleton College, Ottawa, before becoming principal of Prince of Wales College at Charlottetown.

Morley Callaghan, winner of the Governor-General's fiction award, is one of the best-known Canadian authors. Born in Toronto in 1903, he had already written several stories and a novel before he married and spent a year in Paris in the period of such expatriate writers as James Joyce, Gertrude Stein, Ernest Hemingway and Scott Fitzgerald.

Josephine Phelan is a new star on Canada's literary horizon. "The Ardent Exile," which won both the Governor-General's and U.B.C. awards, is her first book. She was born in Hamilton and educated at Loretto Convent in Guelph and the University of Toronto, where she took honors in modern history.

Charles Bruce, winner of the Poetry award, is one of Canada's widely-known younger poets. In 1945 he was runner-up to Dr. Birney. His poems have appeared in many magazines and periodicals and his first book of verse, "Tomorrow's Tide," was published in 1942. Born at Port Shepherson, N. S., in 1906, he joined the Canadian Press at Halifax in 1928 and now is general superintendent of the news agency, living with his wife and four sons at Toronto.

Bruce's contributions to poetry and to newspaper work in Canada were recognized earlier this year when his alma mater, Mount Allison University at Sackville, N.B., conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of literature.

For the fiction award the judges panel comprised John Elliott, literary editor of the London Free Press; G. D. H. Hatfield of Halifax, and James Scott of the Toronto Telegram.

Judges for creative non-fiction were R. J. Rankin, managing editor of the Halifax Herald; Dr. Frank Stilling of the University of Western Ontario and Dr. John Howland, managing editor of Saturday Night, Toronto.

The academic non-fiction panel was Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, of the University of British Columbia; Dr. M. M. MacCormod, of Carleton College, Ottawa, and Dr. A. W. Trueman of the University of New Brunswick. To settle the tie a special panel consisted of Dr. G. I. Duhie of McGill University, Dr. Watson Kirkconnell of Acadia University and Dr. Desmond Fahey of the University of New Brunswick.

The poetry judges were Arthur S. Bourinot, editor of Canadian Poetry, Ottawa; Prof. J. Fisher of Victoria College, Toronto, and Prof. A. L. Phelps of McGill.

The juvenile book award was made by Donalds Dickie of Vancouver. R. S. Lambert of the CBC at Toronto and Herbert McManus of Saturday Night, Toronto.

Magnificent Contribution From Holmans Ltd. Towards Hospital Completion Fund

The first subscription by a corporation to the $250,000 Prince County Hospital completion fund, a minimum gift of $10,000 by R. T. Holman Limited, was announced yesterday afternoon by Austin A. Scales of Freetown, chairman of the fund's special gifts committee.

The company, Mr. Scales stated, has indicated that it also hopes and expects to be in a position to increase the amount shortly after the end of its fiscal year, the final decision to be based on an appraisal of business conditions at that time.

Commending the "corporate citizenship" of Holmans, Mr. Scales noted that public health education and the growing reliance of families on hospital insurance plans has enlightened the residents of Prince County, and elsewhere, to the important part which a modern and adequate community hospital plays in their protection.

"In the case of companies," he stated, "the actual capital investment required to complete our Prince County Hospital and the proportionate part of that investment required to protect the employees, and the families of the employees, should be considered as a minimum gauge of corporate responsibility."

"In addition," he pointed out, "it is the responsibility of business and industry, to contribute towards the general welfare and health protection of all other citizens, its friends and customers."

Suburban League Opens Sunday

The first games of the season in the Suburban Baseball League are scheduled for this Sunday as follows: The Miminegash Juniors will play the Tignish Shore team on the Tignish Shore diamond; St. Louis at St. Roch, and Skinner's Pond against Tignish High School on the Tignish diamond. These games were to be played last Sunday but were cancelled on account of rain. Competition is expected to be very keen this year for the trophy donated by the president of the league, Mr. W. D. Sumner, and now held by the Tignish High School.

O'Leary and Vicinity

On Sunday afternoon, June 8th at 1.30 p.m. the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Preston MacKinnon of Hebron was laid to rest in the Glenwood United Church cemetery. The officiating minister was Rev. W. G. Dickson of O'Leary. Mrs. MacKinnon is a patient in the Prince County Hospital in Summerside, and is expected to be able to return home in the near future. Deepest sympathy is being extended to the parents and family.

On Sunday morning, June 8th, there was an early morning service at the Brae United Church. Despite heavy rains and muddy roads, there was a very large attendance with people attending from Millo, Brae and Coleman. At 11 a.m. the service was held in West Westchester. The congregation welcomed back Sgt. Edward Lockhart who has returned home after spending a year in Korea where he was wounded. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Lockhart, Coleman. The afternoon service was at Bloomfield Church at 2.30 p.m. and the evening worship at the O'Leary United Church. A fine solo was sung by Mr. Alvin Webb. The National Anthem was sung in honor of the Queen's birthday. The preacher at all services was the Rev. W. G. Dickson who brought a "Fresh Air" sermon on the evening titled "Highlights of the Recent Maritime Conference."

Will Name School In B. C. After Former Islander

"A. F. Matthews soon will resign his teachership in Kamloops school district No. 24 and for the first time in half a century will have no direct connection with education in British Columbia. Happily, though, he will have an indirect link; his name is to grace the elementary school that will be established next September in the building now being used by Kamloops Junior-Senior High School.

"Public-spirited men like Mr. Matthews are the motivating force of this nation's way of life which revolves on government of, for and by the people. He spent his adult lifetime in the teaching profession as teacher, principal and inspector of schools - and upon his superannuation a decade ago immediately accepted the onerous, time-consuming, unpaid and often thankless responsibility of a school trustee.

"That is a record of service to his fellowmen of which anyone should be proud. Mr. Matthews' contribution to the community goes farther. He has been a leader in his church, and also in all civic and civic enterprises of every kind that sought to make life better, sweeter and happier.

Mr. A. F. Matthews was a former principal of Alberton High School, Inspector of Schools for Prince County, and Professor of English at Prince of Wales College, Charlottetown, for a time. He is a brother of Mrs. John H. Wells, Alberton."

Library Concert At Crapaud Hall

The Library concert, presented in Crapaud Hall on May 28th and 29th to capacity houses, proved an outstanding success, both in quality of entertainment, and in financial returns, the sum of approximately $250 being realized.

The program was made up of numbers presented by the various Women's Institutes of this area, and varied in character.

Mr. John H. Myers, Hampton, and Mr. R. N. Dawson, acted as chairmen, very capably.

Three plays were presented as follows: "From Night" from North Tryon proved a hilarious comedy, with a young man in a very embarrassing position.

"Folly Put The Kettle On" from Tryon, showed how the mischief cooked up by two children affected their families, and the darky maid, who feared "ghosts." Both these plays were directed by Mrs. William Jones.

"Fresh Air" was Crapaud's play, directed by Mrs. John Slagmons, and showed subtle humour and good acting.

Among the vocal selections, two young ladies from Victoria, Miss Donalda MacLeod, "Miss Prince Edward Island" of last year, and "Princess," Miss Ruthie Boswell, delighted the audience with their talent and charming appearance.

Miss MacLeod sang "Embraceable You" and "Mr. Sun." Miss Boswell sang "The False Prophet" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Miss Boswell, who is majoring in music at Mt. A., also gave piano selections by Haydn and Bowen.

Miss Deanna Bell, DeSable, sang very sweetly "Alice Blue Gown" and "The Little Old Mill," and Norman MacDonald was heard in "Old Man River," in his usual good voice.

The Choral Club's Male Chorus sang "Kentucky Babe" and "Santa Lucia," which proved very popular, under the direction of Mr. William Jones.

The Scottish Reel, danced by four Victoria girls, delighted the audience with the intricacy and grace of the many figures, and eight Hampton girls presented a pleasing picture in the Highland Fling. These dances were under the direction of Mrs. Hart.

Mrs. Maurice MacDonald with her family, of Kelly's Cross, filled in the pauses with her ever-popular old-time music, and the step-dancing brought down the house.

Mrs. Jones was heard in two readings, "The Highway Man" and "Mrs. Clancy's Husband." The Crapaud girls, with Joan Howatt as soloist in "Daisies Won't Tell" presented a number of songs very pleasingly. The accompanists of the two evenings were Mrs. Keith Boswell, Mrs. Mark Cameron and Mrs. Leroy Howatt.

Contributing largely to the success of the concert was the loan of a beautiful piano by the R. T. Holman Co. Ltd., which they delivered for the occasion. This is the third annual concert held for the support and maintenance of the Crapaud branch of the P. E. I. Libraries, which serves this area.

Sport Echoes From Prince County

The "evidence for the prosecution" in regard to that disputed 13-inning contest in Summerside last Wednesday has been given an airing, so we presume it is only fair play that someone give a little publicity to the "evidence for the defence."

Personally we wouldn't care to go out on a limb and say that Charlie Ryan did or did not touch the plate, but since it seems to be an umpire would deliberately miscall such a decisive play as that one, he should be barred from umpiring for life. On the other hand, if he saw the runner fail to touch the late, it certainly took a lot of courage to make the call, and that's the kind of umpiring we like.

When we heard that Charlie Ryan had stated positively he had touched the plate, we'll confess it was rather disturbing. We've always admired Charlie Ryan for a fine, heady player, and a square shooter, not to protest, without cause. We decided to do some investigating on our own. One man closely connected with baseball, and certainly not given to misrepresentation of the facts, told us that after the game he went over to Charlie and asked him what he honestly thought about the play. The figure said Charlie, "I got the edge of the plate with my foot." By the time he had arrived in Charlottetown, and was interviewed there, he had "tramped all over the plate."

We don't take too much stock in the evidence submitted by fans, but since it seems to be the vogue now we may as well get into the game. One ball player on Holman's intermediates, who is probably not too anxious to see the Curran & Briggs team pile up a large lead in the Island League race, stated that he was positive that Ryan had missed the plate. He was the first of the fans to call attention to it.

Two other fans stated they were too far from the plate to give a definite opinion, but that they had noticed that Ryan did not check his stride to make contact with the plate, that is, shorten or lengthen his stride to be sure of contacting the rubber. He ran right along past the area with an even stride. This, in itself, of course, would not mean that he had of necessity failed to touch the plate, but a runner could touch easily miss home base in that way.

If Charlie "tramped all over the plate" as he now suggests, then it seems strange that the issue should have come up at all. If he barely touched the plate, as he seemed to think right after the game, this might lead to a mistaken call.

We are the chairman of a committee which has charge of selecting the local umpires. If we were sure this call was a deliberate steal, we would certainly attempt to persuade the committee that the umpire concerned should be dismissed. We think, however, that the evidence falls far short of being conclusive, and in this country, even umpires are innocent until they are proved guilty. It will take more than "two Summerside fans" who must have been a considerable distance from the spot marked X, to clinch the case for the prosecution."

It is our opinion that the R.C.A.F. Royals have now the best team they have ever assembled since they started playing organized ball with Summerside and Charlottetown. They have kept the best of the old guard in Cox, St. John, Mackenzie and Richardson and they have added a lot of strength in such fellows as Meier, Petty and Wanless. Meier, who, they say, had never played anything but softball until this year, is coming along rapidly, and promises to be a good fielder, and a dangerous hitter. Wanless in left field is a fine ball hawk, and "You're Out" Petty, behind the plate, is a capable backstop, and has a lot of pep to help keep the team on their toes.

Unless the Island League has deteriorated a lot in the last two years, this fellow McCulloch, has improved remarkably since he last pitched for the R.C.A.F. It's our guess that Mac has really improved and that the Island League still has its quota of dangerous hitters. Twice now, this boy has been brilliant in relief. Both times we expected he would be let off of the mound, but he fooled us on each occasion.

WANTED - Three Summerside girls who can throw a ball as fast as a jack-rabbit skipping scatter shot.
