FASHION HEADS DIVIDED ON SWIMSUIT EXPOSURE

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — As temperatures rise, mercurial and otherwise, a new beach and bathwear item looking surprisingly like Brigitte Bardot's famous towel is popping up with the frequency of freckles.

Tying securely across the bosom, spanning the middle, and ending all too shortly thereafter, the garment is aptly called next-to-nothing.

At first glance this brief style fad along with "barely-there" bodices on cocktail dresses, skin midriff evening costumes, and "solely-sole" shoes) promises a great summer for mosquitoes and girl watchers.

But this spare apparel is only one side of a style war of fashion extremes in which the industry is currently divided. On the other side is a distinguished lineup of creators who advocate more anatomical mystery through modesty.

Chief among the espousers of calculated exposure is California designer Rudi Gernreich, who points out that in all good design, architectural or fashion, space plays an important part.

PREDICTS BARE BREASTS

Not only does he allow plenty of space between fabric with some of his swim suit designs, he prophesies a less prudish era in which ladies' bathing suits will lack tops.

That North Americans have belatedly come to accept the skimpy bikinis, long appreciated by Europeans, is part of Gernreich's defence for his prediction. Yet in St. Tropez, Brigitte Bardot's former playground on the French Riviera and birthplace of the bikini and low-slung sailor pants, beach beauties are beginning to cover up, knocking holes through Gernreich's argument.

Reading these signs on the sand, Gaston Berthelot, designer for New York's Christian Dior House, says the one-piece suit, generous in fabric, is the trend of today as well as tomorrow. Certain U.S. swimsuit houses already have taken heed by adding much more yardage, even sleeves to their beachwear.

Sleeves are also playing a big part in the modest cover-up scheme by Paris designers this season.

EYE-CONDITIONED

In other years the French couturiers have gone along with the hot weather, by air conditioning their apparel for women.

But in preparing their last collections they apparently decided en masse that the best time to swathe the female in fabric from chin to shin and all the way down to her diamond rings is when she least needs it, in summer.

Fashion for women is not supposed to make sense.

Four-Masted Russian Ship Creates Halifax Interest

HALIFAX (CP)—Three Russian oceanographic ships, including one of the largest sailing vessels ever built, brought hundreds of sightseerers to the Halifax waterfront Sunday.

The Kruzenshtern, Polyus and Stvor arrived here late Saturday for a five - day visit. On board are 50 officers, 220 men and 105 scientists.

The 400 - foot four - masted barque Kruzenshtern, open to the public for two hours, attracted the greatest number of visitors.

Capt. George Bochkovsky, commander of the three - ship fleet, said in an interview the sailing vessel provided an excellent, stable craft for oceanographic work.

He said the Kruzenshtern by making use of her sails could remain at sea longer than a powered vessel. Powered vessels have to make regular visits to port to re-fuel. The sailing ship also has two diesel engines.

Kruzenshtern, originally named Padua, was built at Hamburg in 1926. She was turned over to Russia as a war prize at the end of the Second World War.

The 6,000-ton Polyus was built in 1960 for oceanographic work. The 2,000-ton Stvor is a converted freighter.

Quebec Owns Power Firms

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec government now has effective ownership of all major hydro-electric production in the province, the government-owned Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission has announced.

It said that as of Thursday, a majority of shareholders of eight privately-owned electricity companies had accepted hydro's takeover offer.

Cyclones Take Toll In India

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — The death toll from a cyclone which swept across 15 villages of Assam state and West Bengal in Northwest India has climbed to 172, according to official information reaching here.

In the Dhubri area of Western Assam, where the Friday night cyclone hit nine villages, the death figure rose to 84 among 22 of the 512 injured died in hospital.

In the Toofanganj area of West Bengal, where winds up to 100 miles an hour struck six villages, the toll was 28 dead, 138 injured and three missing.

Probe Asked In Roundup Of Suspects

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Chaput, leader of the Separatist Quebec Republican Party, says he has written Attorney-General Georges Lapalme to ask for an investigation of police tactics during a roundup last week of persons suspected of belonging to the Quebec Liberation Front.

The FLQ is a group of self-styled "suicide commandos" pledged to bring about Quebec independence by violent means. It has claimed responsibility for a series of bombings in recent weeks, mainly in the Montreal area.

Mr. Chaput said Saturday night that if the actions of the police were described accurately in the newspapers, "they were actions worthy of a police state."

He said it was a very serious matter that police should arrest suspects in the middle of the night and hold them several hours for questioning.

Sharp Drop Seen In Imported Cars

OTTAWA (CP)—Sales of new Canadian and American motor vehicles in Canada jumped in February while sales of foreign vehicles fell sharply, the bureau of statistics reported here.

Sales of new Canadian and United States models rose 30.8 per cent to 45,139 units from 32,974 a year earlier. At the same time, sales of motor vehicles manufactured overseas dropped by 36.5 per cent to 2,599 units from 5,562 a year earlier.

Sales of all vehicles—those from Canada, the U.S. and overseas—rose by 17.4 per cent to 45,738 units from 38,956 units.

The retail value of sales advanced by 21.7 per cent to $143,738,000 from $118,128,000.

TO PUBLISH REPORT

LONDON (Reuters) — The government will publish Thursday the report of an official inquiry into British security set up after the jailing last year of spy William Vassall, authoritative sources said Monday. Politicians expect the report by the committee presided over by Lord Radcliffe will be published at considerable length. The only sections excluded would be those involving national security.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — queen of hearts.

This hand was played in a team match. The bidding was the same at both tables and so was the opening lead, but at one table the contract was made while at the other it was defeated.

At the first table, declarer won the heart with the king, and seeing only seven ready tricks, naturally turned to the club suit as the best source for additional tricks.

When he led the king of clubs West played the two and East the nine, and when he then led another club, West followed with the ten.

This falsecard did not deceive South, who was well versed in safety plays, and he therefore played low from dummy, guarding against the possibility of a 4-1 break. The safety play paid off in the actual case, because East showed out and South later finessed the jack to bring home exactly nine tricks.

It is true that South's method of play would have cost him a trick if East had started with the 9-8 of clubs, in which case finessing the jack would have produced four notrump, but the safety play was surely right since it guaranteed the contract.

At the second table, the play started the same way. Declarer won the heart lead, cashed the king of clubs, and continued with the five. But the West player at this table shrewdly put the queen on it and declarer quickly gobbled it up with the ace.

But his face sagged a mile when East showed out of clubs and he realized that he had been hoodwinked by West's unusual play. There was no recovery possible and South ended by going down one.

Obviously, South should have invoked the same safety play adopted by the first declarer. By ducking the queen he could have assured the contract beyond doubt.

Maybe the moral of the tale is that a defender should do all he can to give the declarer a chance to make a mistake. The West player at the second table certainly met his obligation fully in this respect.
