Chinese Views May Drive Russia Further From West

By ALAN HARVEY

MOSCOW (CP)—The muffled sounds of ideological mayhem emanating from the Sino-Soviet meetings in Moscow can hardly be hailed as soothing music for the West.

When Mao Tse-tung's China first emerged as a formidable to Soviet primacy in international communism, Western nations naturally stood ready to applaud a division that seemed likely to restrain Russian expansionism.

Nikita Khrushchev, it appeared, would be too busy looking over his shoulder at China to bother making trouble for non-Communist countries.

Instead, it looks now as though Instead of pushing the Soviet leader closer to the West, he has driven him further away.

With the Chinese insisting that they and they alone are the Mao Tse-tung may have a more baleful effect on Khrushchev, custodians of the holy writ of Marxism-Leninism, Khrushchev finds himself obliged to assert a greater revolutionary zeal than he feels now that Russia is becoming a more or less "satisfied" nation.

EMPHASIZE IDEOLOGY

The desire to show themselves at least as tough and orthodox as the Chinese may explain Russia's renewed emphasis on the importance of the ideological struggle. This was the big theme at the recent Moscow meeting of the Soviet Communist party's central committee.

Yet there are strong signs in Moscow that Khrushchev, more pragmatic than dogmatic, would rather consolidate Soviet power than engage in sterile debate about ideology. Two projects close to his heart, it is thought, are to do something about the deteriorating situation of Soviet agriculture and to continue the gradual movement toward a more rational regime within the Soviet Union.

In recent months, the easier atmosphere that seemed to be prevailing in the domestic field has given way to a sudden chill, characterized principally by warnings to intellectuals and those questing for new freedoms in arts, literature and painting.

As long as Chinese pressure continues, Soviet policy is likely to reflect a certain indecisiveness resulting from the conflict between what Khrushchev really wants to do and what appears profitable in the Sino-Soviet context.

A puzzling aspect is why the Chinese are so openly intransigent.

In the course of a month-long visit to the Soviet Union, this reporter popped the question frequently and the consensus of replies was that China, in deep economic trouble, is trying to blackmail Russia into offering help on a gigantic scale.

Living Costs Reveal Sharp Increase In May

OTTAWA (CP) — A sharp rise in the price of a wide range of foods helped boost living costs in Canada in May to a record high, the bureau of statistics reported.

The consumer price index—a prices yardstick based on 1949 price levels equalling 100—rose to 132.8 at June 1 from the previous record of 132.3 in March and April.

The index at June 1 was 1.8 per cent or 2.3 points above the June, 1962, index of 130.5.

The one-month increase of one-half point in the index was caused mainly by the food index rising 1.4 points in May to 129.7 from 128.3 in April.

This gain in the food index, which now is at a record high, resulted from substantial price increases for a number of foods basic to a normal diet.

BEEF PRICES RISE

These include sugar and a number of fresh fruits and vegetables, particularly grapefruit, apples, potatoes, onions, carrots and lettuce. Smaller price increases were reported for a wide variety of similar foods including beef, pork, milk, bread and flour, jam, coffee, jelly powder and orange juice.

Prices were lower for eggs fish and chicken, butter, strawberries, oranges, tomatoes and cabbage.

The May rise in prices followed an increase in salaries and wages in April. The index of average industrial wages and salaries for May 1 — latest date available — was 194.5 compared with 193.1 a month earlier and 186.7 a year previous.

Besides foods, prices for clothing, health and personal care, and recreation and reading advanced in May. There was no change in the cost of housing, tobacco and alcohol.

The clothing index advanced four-tenths of a point to 116 from 115.6. Higher prices for men's, women's and children's wear and clothing services such as cleaning outweighed a small decline in footwear prices.

A gain of one-tenth of a point was registered by the health and personal care index which moved to 162.7 from 162.6.

Shipwrecked Family Set To Continue

JONESPORT, Me. (AP) — A shipwrecked Canadian family of four was preparing here to resume its trip from Digby, N.S., to Vancouver overland.

Sgt. and Mrs. William A. Thompson of Greenwood, N.S., had planned to make the journey in their 40-foot boat, the Flying Swan, by way of the Panama Canal.

But they were caught in heavy seas off Cross Island in Machias Bay Wednesday and forced to abandon the craft.

Mrs. Thompson was reluctant to talk about the experience or the family's plans. But she did say that she, her husband and their sons Dale, 15, and Robert, 14, were all in good condition. Mrs. Thompson said they planned to continue to Vancouver—where her husband was transferred by the RCAF—and would stop along the way at Winnipeg to visit her parents.

The Thompsons were brought from Cross Island by the U.S. Coast Guard to Jonesport to be cleared by U.S. customs.

A coast guard spokesman said Thompson anchored off the island when they encountered heavy seas. He said although fog cut visibility to 10 yards, Thompson could hear breakers and decided to attempt to make shore in a 13-foot dinghy.

The dinghy capsized, but the four made it to shore with the aid of lifejackets. After spending the night in the open the family located the island's coast guard station Thursday morning.

The Thompson boat broke up on the rocks, the coast guard said.

Two Ontario Boys Smother In Trunk

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — The bodies of two boys were found here in an old-fashioned steamer trunk. They apparently climbed into it became trapped when the lid closed and were asphyxiated.

Dead are Frank Smith, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith, and Daniel Woodward, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Woodward, both of nearby Copetown.

Mr. Woodward found the bodies in the trunk in an old shed shortly before midnight after a search of the neighborhood.

The two boys left home before noon and failed to return for supper.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♥	2♠	3♣	Dble
4♥	Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead—eight of clubs.

The bidding by the opponents sometimes draws a neat blueprint which declarer can successfully follow to arrive at his destination.

This hand was played in a rubber bridge game. South opened with a heart and West, playing preemptive jump overcalls, bid two spades. North came in with three clubs, a doubtful call excusable because his side has a part score of 60.

East doubled, which was certainly reasonable, and when South ran to three hearts, doubled again. West led the eight of clubs.

The situation was unpropitious from South's viewpoint, since the club finesse was marked to lose if he took it and the spade finesse likewise seemed unpromising. In addition, there was also the likelihood that the trumps would break badly.

But, undaunted, declarer went up with the ace of clubs and returned a heart. When East played low, South finessed the jack, and then discovered, when West produced the ten, that things were not as bad as they seemed.

This favorable development presented South with a legitimate chance to make the contract. By this time — even though only two tricks had been played — he could be reasonably certain of East's distribution.

The indications were that East had started with four hearts, one spade (since West's jump overcall was probably based on a six-card suit), five clubs (judging by the double of three clubs and hence, three diamonds).

So at trick three South played the king of diamonds, taken by the ace. West returned a club. South ruffed the ten, cashed the Q-J of diamonds and ace of spades, and then played the ace and another heart.

East took his trump tricks, but was then left with only the K-J-6 of clubs. When he now played the king, South discarded a spade, and when East was then forced to continue with a club to the queen, South got rid of his other spade.

So South made the contract, losing in all, two hearts, a diamond and a club.
