

Fun Galore At Bill Lynch Shows

Back in town again for another edition of the Provincial Exhibition and Old Home Week is Bill Lynch who in spite of his youthful appearance is a veteran of 25 years in show business. The Lynch Shows which require 18 railway cars and 25 trailer trucks to transport it to the Province, has been completely revamped this year. There are rides galore for both young and old. Particular emphasis has been placed on getting the type of ride that appeals to the little tots, but there are thrills for the adults as well. A new ride, called the spitfire, promises to make one's hair stand on end. Those seeking entertainment other than that provided by the rides will find plenty to amuse them in the many shows which include the "motordrome" with a South African lion roaming in the bottom of the pit while cyclists defy death on a straight wall. There is fun for everybody at Lynch Shows.

Fine Army Display At Exhibition

The colorful flags of all the members of the United Nations make a picturesque foreground for the Canadian Army display marquee at the north end of the poultry barn on the Exhibition Grounds. The display is sponsored by the local Canadian Army Recruiting Centre under the direction of Capt. E. R. Burke and Sgt. A. MacLeod. Displayed within the marquee are the standard quarters of the modern Canadian soldier. The cubicle, which accommodates two men has a five drawer dresser, with mirror, single beds, writing table, desk lamp and easy chair. Also on display are pieces of Arctic equipment, consisting of clothing which is made of heavy bear matts of very light, porous material and muktocks, other articles displayed are a pressure cooker, a gas stove, a casualty toboggan and a light-weight toboggan for carrying the soldiers kit and weapons. This equipment has been developed after four years of intensive research in the National Defence Laboratories of Canada. This display is not specifically set up for recruiting purposes, but is intended to acquaint the public with some of the conditions under which the Canadian soldier lives and work. A rear-view projector will carry a continuous series of shorts and movies relating to army life. This display booth is gaining favorable remarks from the many visitors who have been inspecting it.

Varied Activities Yesterday At Fair Grounds

Workmen were busy erecting the show ring within the new Exhibition building yesterday and adding fresh sawdust to the floor in preparation for the livestock judging which commences this morning at 9:00 o'clock. Merchants put the finishing touches to their tastefully decorated booths as a well organized crew outside erected the Bill Lynch midway. During the day the poultry entries kept coming in and this year's exhibit of hens, geese and ducks of all breeds will make up a most interesting show. Also on display at the poultry building will be the most popular grades of Island eggs both white and brown in color. This exhibit will give consumers an idea of what they should expect in purchasing eggs of any particular grade. The swine entry this year is slightly below other years in number but there is no doubt that visitors to the Fair will have the opportunity of seeing the finest of Prince Edward Island's bacon hogs which have gained an enviable reputation throughout the world. The main dining room which for a number of years has been run by the Women's Institutes, will this year, be in charge of Mrs. Malcolm MacAulay and will feature three full course meals a day. A woman with years of experience in home cooking, Mrs. MacAulay's dinners and suppers will be most appetizing with home cooked pies or strawberry short cake with deep whipped cream for dessert.

She also spent a couple of days in Glasgow before going to Belfast. Last week she visited Dublin and reported the streets all crowded with people as the big racing meet was in progress then. She sailed from there late last week for the Isle of Man to spend some time before returning to London this week. At every point during her visits she called on the various art galleries and museums. She is leaving London this week for Paris where she will call on the Museums and Monuments Division to make final arrangements for visiting Athens, Greece, to attend the UNESCO seminar on museum services. Miss Johnston expects to return to this city in October.

CONFIDENT FAIR WILL ECLIPSE PREVIOUS LOCAL EXHIBITIONS

"If the weatherman is good to us we will be able to give the people of our Province and our many visitors the greatest show in the history of our Fair", said Mr. H. J. Kennedy its manager, last night, just before the opening ceremonies of the Provincial Exhibition. The administrative head of the annual show and admittedly the spark plug of the organization Mr. Kennedy believes that from every point of view the show is an improvement over anything presented in past years. To the astute manager and vice-president, the week long exhibition is the wind-up of many months of planning, negotiation and preparation. It is Mr. Kennedy who gathers together the ideas of various committees, composed of directors of the exhibition, weeds them out and each summer produces the Island's most outstanding summer attraction. The horse-racing, the cattle and poultry exhibits, the horse show, the vaudeville, the Women's Institute exhibits, the hiring of staff, the erection of new buildings - all of these are things which come under the scrutiny of Mr. Kennedy and on which he is the final arbiter. It is his responsibility that many diverse interests be reconciled, that no overlapping occur in arrangements, or that no loose ends are left which might throw the show into confusion. If he fails in any one particular, the big Exhibition could go awry, and throughout the months leading up to the big week he carries a great weight of responsibility. Long recognized as an able organizer and executive, it was Mr. Kennedy who brought together the syndicate which bought the Exhibition plant from Col. D. A. MacKinnon and other stock holders. As a cattle breeder of distinction, Mr. Kennedy was long connected with exhibitions and fairs in the Maritimes. He was given Canadian-wide recognition when elected president of the Holstein Breeders Association of Canada, the largest breed organization in the British Isles. On many occasions he has acted as judge at Class A shows in eastern Canada, including the Maritime Winter Fair at Amherst. He was complimented last night many times on the erection of the new Coliseum, which will serve as a cattle show arena and many other purposes in winter and summer. Modestly, Mr. Kennedy shared the credit for the erection of the building with his great personal friend, the late Premier J. Walter Jones. "Walter Jones and I conceived the idea of this Coliseum more than five years ago," said Mr. Kennedy, "and in the face of many difficulties it has finally become a reality. My great regret is that Senator Jones is not here to see the building which was one of his pet projects. He was a great contributor in many ways, to the growth and continued success of this fair, and his passing was a heavy blow to this annual exhibition." "Don't think for a minute," continued Mr. Kennedy, "that the construction of this building signals the end of the Exhibition's progress. In the next few years we hope to have a new concrete and steel grandstand, modern in design and capable of accommodating, in comfort, far bigger crowds than are attending our show at the present time. It is our aim to keep the proud position the show holds today, as one of the finest of its kind in all Canada."

Mr. H. J. Kennedy, manager of the Provincial Exhibition, last night, just before the opening ceremonies of the Provincial Exhibition. The administrative head of the annual show and admittedly the spark plug of the organization Mr. Kennedy believes that from every point of view the show is an improvement over anything presented in past years.
