Racy Literature.

An Englishman, Irishman, and Scotchman were once travelling together, and on their journey had to "put up" at a country inn. After paying eight hours' "attintion" to dreaming of home and friends far away, they awoke in the morning to hear the bell ringing for breakfast, to which they at once repaired. Boiled eggs were set before them, and after the obliging dame had attended to their several requirements, she left them "alone in" their "glory." The Scotchman and Englishman, upon opening their eggs, found, to their surprise, that they contained young "rewsters," and evinced their consternation in their different brogues. The Irishman, who was meanwhile doing his share of the business with great eagerness, on hearing the murmurings of his friends, asked what was wrong, and, being told, he soothed their sorrows by exclaiming: "Be jabers, ye's had betther be afther aitin' 'em, afore the missus comes in, or be gorra they'll charge ye for eggs, chickens an' all!"

Parson Green, an American preacher in the habit sometimes of drawing upon a box of sermons bequeathed him by his farther, who was also a minister, upon one occasion got hold of a sermon by mistake, which the old gentleman had once preached to the State prison convicts. It opened well, and the congregation were becoming deeply interested, when all at once the parson surprised them with the information, that "had it not been for the clemency of the Government, every one of them would have been hung a long time ago."

"Look here, Squire, where was yeou born?" said a persistent Yankee to a five minutes' acquaintance. "I was born," said the victim, "in Boston, Tremont street, No. 44 left hand side, on the 1st day of August, 1820, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon; physician, Dr. Warren; nurse, Sally Benjamin." Yankee was answered completely. For a moment he was struck. Soon, however, his face brightened, and he quickly said, "Yeas; wa'al I calcutale you don't recollect whether it was a frame or a brick house, dew ye?'

A Mississippi editor having given notice that he would inform, free of charge, enterprising young men how to make a fortune without capital, replies, to several anxious inquiries:—"Every one of you pull of your coats, leave off your army sixes, quit whiskey, go to work, make a crop of corn, cotton, pease, and potatoes; house them up, then marry an enterprising girl.

"Don't you think my eyes look quite killing this morning?" said a dandy to a smart girl, and he twisted his leaden visionaries in a most cruel and fascinating manner. "They remind me," said the damsel, "of a codfish dying of the tooth ache."

Whose pigs are those, my lad?" "Whoy, they belong to that there big sow." "No; I mean, who is their master?" "Whoy" again answered the lad, "that little 'un—he's a rare 'un to fight!"

A young woman being asked by a politician which party she was in favor of, replied she was in favor of a wedding party.

Why do the young ladies lace their corsets so tight? To show the young fellows how much squeezing they can stand. A fact.

"My son, said a man of doubtful morals, putting his hand on the head of a young urchin, "I believe Satan has got hold of you" "I believe so, too," replied Sylvanus.

Why is Summerside like a dirty bed? Because there are a lot of big bugs in it.

Agriculture.

Destroy the Caterpillars.—We would like to say to every farmer, and every one that has a fruit tree on their premises, now is the time to destroy every caterpillar. Lose no time. Get up earlier, or neglect other work, rather than not destroy them. We are sorry to see the trees so full of them. But remember it must be done, or in a little while they will destroy your trees. If you neglect them now, they will be worse next year. Persist in destroying them, for it is the only way to save your trees, and give you fruit. If neglected, they will eat up the young leaves and the trees will die of consumption; just as you would if you allowed something to gradually eat up your lungs. The leaves are the lungs of the trees. If a tree is thus killed, it will take many years to replace it, besides the loss of the fruit. Wage exterminating war on the pests.—B. Tidings.

Chloroform is now said to be extensively used in England, without injurious results, to stupify bees so as to remove the honey.—For this purpose, a table is set about ten feet from the hive, and covered with a cloth. Some chloroform, about a quarter or a sixth of an ounce, is then poured into a shallow dish and covered with a wire gauze, to prevent the bees from falling into it. The hive is then removed from its stand and set over the chloroform. In about twenty minutes, all the bees will have fallen down on the table in a state of stupefaction, not one remaining in the comb. After removing the comb, the hive and the bees are restored to their place, the latter soon recovering, without suffering the slightest inconvenience.—Ex.

A Connecticut cattle breeder, after trying several breeds and crosses, has come to the conclusion that a cross between the Alderney and Ayrshire makes the most profitable animal for ordinary farm use—having special reference, we suppose, to the production of milk and butter.

Colic in Horses.—Prof. Gamgee says regularity in feeding, and the use of sound corn, oats, and well-cured hay, are the best preventatives of colic in horses. As a cure he recommended injection of tepid water in the intestine, and a ball of five or six drachms of aloes. He says above all thing do not bleed a horse when attacked by colic.

Grand Diet of Worms,

DISSOLVED BY
WATSON'S SCHOLEDION,
WHICH is offered to the public as a perfectly safe, pleasant and efficacious expeller of Worms from the human system. A compliance with the directions accompanying it will prove it deserves the character claimed for it above, while the promptness and painless character of its action render it the cheapest and safest remedy for worms hitherto discovered.
