THE MODERN Foundry and Machine Shop

We would call special attention to our "New Foundry Department" which we have provided to be a decided success. We have spared no expense in fitting up this department. Having imported from the United States a special "grade of sand" and employing one of the best moulders in Canada, we are now in a position to meet the long desired needs of the people.

Our Machine Shop Dept which is equipped with the best modern machinery and experienced workmen, is capable of turning out work in a strictly first class manner. To those in need of anything in our line we invite them to call and be thoroughly convinced that we do work in an A 1 style.

HARD QUESTION TO DECIDE.

Lawyers Plead for the Life of Alfred C. Williams.

(Boston Herald.)
The executive council, Governor Wolcott presiding, gave a hearing last week on the proposition of commutation of sentence of Alfred C. Williams, sentenced to be hanged in Salem jail Oct. 7, for the murder of John Gallo in Lynfield, July 29, 1897.

Charles A. Sayward, of Ipswich, senior counsel, made the opening plea. He presented a large number of petitions. One which the Governor seemed to think the most important cited the prisoner's good character, and a belief that Williams did not intend murder, but larceny. To support this view it was stated that Williams was not armed when he entered the house. It was signed by Judge Harmon of the Essex probate court, W. J. Hale, registrar of deeds, and nearly all the Essex bar.

Henry P. Moulton of Salem, who has no interest in the case, except from the study of the evidence after the trial, made a learned argument of a technical nature. Under Massachusetts law, he said, there are only three classes of murder punishable with the death penalty—with malice aforethought, or with extreme atrocity and cruelty, or in an attempt to commit a crime punishable by death or imprisonment for life. There was no evidence of the first or second classes. Breaking into a house with intent to commit larceny is not a crime punishable by death or imprisonment for life. The evidence did not show where Williams was for some days before the crime. Williams bore marks of a struggle. There was no other evidence of one. Williams had no weapon and had made no preparation to commit a crime.

Henry F. Hulbert said the young man stood on the threshold of death without friends, and the Essex bar, practically without exception, had come forward to help him. He came simply as a matter of duty, without hope of reward. His brother lawyers, with himself, felt that the jury's verdict was not founded on the evidence. The point made by his brother Moulton was not made in the trial, and the Attorney-General will not deny its force.

Attorney-General Knowlton, who came in late, said no man in Essex county or elsewhere wanted this man hanged. There was no evidence. Gallo was an Italian who had accumulated in gold and other money $100. Williams had the Klondike fever and only the money Gallo had stood between him and joining a party of friends for that place. He went to Gallo's house—his castle—in the night to get the money. There was a fight—and Italians can fight—but Williams overpowered Gallo and he fell. To cover up the evidence of his crime Williams fired the cottage. That is murder, whatever may be said of it. Murder does not always come from a previous bad character. It comes from a temptation too strong to have a human life stand in the way.

The hearing closed and the councillors took the matter under advisement. They evidently found the question extremely difficult to decide, and in consequence five members of the council visited Salem yesterday, arriving at 3 p. m., and were at once driven to the jail. Williams was taken to the guard room, where the councillors had a long talk with him. The result of their investigation will not be made known until they report at the meeting today.

Later it was announced that the Executive Council had voted against recommending the commutation of the sentence of Alfred C. Williams, the murderer, to imprisonment for life. Councillors Sullivan and Atherton voted in favor of commutation. Williams will consequently be hanged.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—A New York paper remarks: "England furnishes the generals, but she enlists the Egyptians in Egypt, the Soudanese in the Soudan and the Sikhs and Goorkhas in India, and adds a few regiments of British troops, just enough to drill and encourage them. Here is a lesson for us. We should begin as soon as possible to form regiments of Cubans in Cuba and Porto Ricans in Porto Rico."

The Montreal Gazette reports: At the Tara Hall meeting Mr W. H. Davidson, a very active Liberal, charged the Government organs, such as Le Soleil, with misrepresentation and said that when they declared that prohibition would prevent the mass being celebrated, as there would be no wine, and that the movement was introduced by Protestants, as a means of striking at the Roman Catholic Church, they knew they were perjuring themselves. A very bitter feeling exists in local Government circles over the stand taken by the Government representatives from this district on the subject. "Is it wonderful that the Quebec majority was against prohibition or that the defeated prohibitionists of Quebec are indulging in bitter feeling."

A JOKE ON THE TEAMSTER.

A good story is told of one of General Sherman's Missouri teamsters. He had just joined the service, a raw recruit, and was assigned the task of driving a six mule team. When the army halted for the first night, he was wearily un-harnessing his team.

"Hello there," said the wag of the company in passing. "What do you mean by taking care of those mules yourself? Why don't you have the hostler do it?"

"Why, I thought every man had to take care of his own team," said the bewildered teamster.

"You bet he doesn't. We've got a hostler for that. There's his tent right over there. He's a lazy, contrary old cuss, and he may not want to do it, but you swear at him and he'll move off at double quick."

The Missourian strode over to the tent indicated, which happened to be General Sherman's headquarters.

"Here, you son of a gun," he roared fiercely, "get out of here and brush those mules."

Needless to say, the teamster spent the evening in the guardhouse.

A pious old Indiana farmer was assigned to the duty of teaming, probably by mistake. The roads were muddy, and the rest of the teamsters were literally bombarding their charges with oaths. It was against the old man's principles to swear, and he held his peace, albeit in impotent rage. At last one of the hind mules balked and refused to advance a step. The old man used every endeavor to urge the beast along, but to no purpose. At last he roared in a loud and solemn voice: "Oh, Lord, you know where this mule ought to be as well as anybody. This whole army knows where he ought to be this minute. He knows where he ought to be. I know where he ought to be, oh, Lord, and if he doesn't move in a minute I intend to say so, by gum."

Perfectly Cured

Weak and Low Spirited - Nervous Prostration - Appetite Poor and Could Not Rest.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla to others. It has been the means of restoring my wife to good health. She was stricken down with an attack of nervous prostration. She suffered with headaches and her nerves were under severe strain. She became very low spirited and so weak she could only do a little work without resting. Her appetite was poor, and being so weak she could not get the proper rest at night. She decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, as we had heard it highly praised, and I am glad to state that Hood's Sarsaparilla has perfectly cured all her ailments." G.
