

City Revenues Up For Nine Months

City revenue for the first nine months of the year is up $178,000 while ordinary expenditure for the same period of time is down $53,000 according to the financial report submitted at the regular monthly meeting of the Council this week.

Finance Chairman A.W. Gaudet said the council was justly proud of its financing program in the past eight years, during which time no tax increase has been realized by the citizens.

Councillor Earle Baker also noted the city's record of no tax increase and suggested that very few cities in Canada could boast of such a showing.

Credit items showing the biggest jump with the 1958 figures in brackets were: real estate tax arrears, $97,941 ($35,570); accounts receivable, $91,422 ($1,852); labor license, $11,065 ($3,738). Non-resident licenses dropped from $4,305 at the end of September, 1958 to $3,420 at the end of September this year.

On the debit side of the following significant changes were noted: city government costs, $14,924 ($19,127); health, $17,227 ($9,925); school board, $205,000 ($193,000); public relations, $7,812 ($3,488); bills payable, $13,878 ($63,118).

In addition $430,358 has been paid out in the extraordinary expenditure account. Total estimated expenditure in this division during 1959 is estimated at $850,160.

Capital expenditure to the end of September amounted to $418,049. Largest items therein listed were: sewer outfall, $122,185; Eastern Trust, $94,000; seawall, $47,219; property, $37,900; bank overdraft, $26,420; storm sewers, $23,538; W.H. Crandall, $17,872; streets, $14,717; British-American engineering consultants, $2,100.

Only P.E.I. and Newfoundland are at present without organizations. CMHA membership shot from only 2,600 in 1954 to a present enrollment of nearly 90,000 and contributions to the financial campaigns of the organization have risen from $100,000 in 1954 to a total now of over $400,000. Of this only six per cent is donated by the federal government.

Writing in a pamphlet entitled "Mental Health", Dr. Griffin went on to say that while in recent years a noticeable change for the better has been in evidence mental illness has always been regarded "with horror and dismay."

In medieval times the mentally sick were thought to be bewitched or possessed of devils... consequently the stigma of mental illness while having no basis in scientific reason and fact is still an effective handicap to mental health progress.

The ultimate removal of this stigma is one of the main objectives of the Canadian Mental Health Association, a branch of which is to be formed on Prince Edward Island next Monday night.

Guest speakers at this meeting at the Charlottetown Hotel will be Dr. R.O. Jones, professor of psychiatry at Dalhousie University and Roy D. Cosman, executive director of the New Brunswick division.

In addition to the education of the public in the field of mental illness, CMHA divisions also promote research into the causes and prevention of the disease and give voluntary service and assistance to patients in mental institutions.

The first steps to educate the public and arouse widespread support for a more humane and scientific care of the mentally ill were taken in Canada with the forming of the first CMHA in Ottawa in 1918. Pioneers in the field were Dr. Clarence M. Hincks and a young U.S. engineer Clifford W. Beers. However, it was not until the Second World War that real strides were made in the fight against mental illness.

The vast extent of psychiatric maladjustment among apparently healthy adults was discovered as the result of medical examination of recruits. The importance of treatment was recognized and this stimulated a new wave of public interest in Canada.

Since then the CMHA has made tremendous strides and now has active divisions in eight provinces.

Service Station Approved, Also Change In Shore Road

Approval to build a service station at the corner of Euston and Elm Avenue was given at the regular meeting of the City Council this week. Final approval of the structure however will have to come from the Public Utilities Commission.

The application to build came from Wendell G. Barbour who has offered the city a one-lane drive on the west side of Elm Avenue between Euston and Chestnut Streets.

The resolution giving Mr. Barbour civic sanction passed seven to two. Councillors Boyles and Gormley were the dissenting voices. Coun. Foster abstained because of his implication as counsel for the applicant.

Councillor Gormley said he was very much concerned with the status of the pedestrian, if a third lane were added at this point. "I agree that a third lane would be desirable but we cannot do it at the expense of our pedestrians," he said.

Coun. Gormley asked that a plan of the proposed new addition to the street be prepared so that the police committee could study it further.

Coun. Boyles said he was against the motion. He said he did not like the idea of trading a third lane for a service station when there were already two service stations at the corner of Elm Avenue and Euston.

Coun. Gaudet said he was no more in favour of a service station than anyone else. He pointed out however that if a large brick structure were erected, it might well be 100 years before any such widening could be contemplated.

BRIGHTON SHORE Some minor alterations will have to be made in the roadway around Brighton shore if present property owners are not to be entirely dispossessed.

A letter from Mrs. James Creighton to the City Council Tuesday night showed that the land in front of the residence would be reduced to two and a half feet from the road.

In consultation with engineers it was agreed that the road at this point could take a slight curve in order to avoid serious disruptions of this kind.

It is reported that three other residents in the area have similar complaints to that of the Creightons. Mayor Johnstone said every effort will be made to alleviate the impending inconvenience.

Home Nursing Classes Expected To Increase

Thirteen nurses from various parts of the province yesterday took part in an all day refresher course for home nursing instructors held at Red Cross headquarters in Charlottetown.

The program, arranged by Mrs. Wendell Wood, RN, director of Red Cross nursing services, consisted of talks, demonstrations and discussions designed to provide the nurses with tips for teaching home care of the sick through the organization of Red Cross home nursing courses.

Mrs. Lois MacDonald, RN, provincial chairman of the Red Cross nursing committee, had a session with the nurses as did Miss Doris Anderson, MSc, supervisor of home economics at Prince of Wales College and the Vocational School, and Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore, director of Red Cross first aid and water safety services. Miss I. Arsenault, provincial Red Cross commissioner, also spoke to the group and showed a film depicting Red Cross services.

The enthusiasm displayed by the nurses at yesterday's Refresher Course augurs well for the prospects of having twice as many home nursing courses taught this year. A knowledge of how to care for the sick at home should be of the utmost importance to every woman.

These in attendance at this refresher course were, Mrs. Felix Arsenault, Bloomfield; Mrs. Lorne Adams, Margate; Mrs. James Lewis, Cable Head East; Mrs. Kenneth Heustis, New An-

Attitude Is Changing In Mental Health Field

One of the great obstacles to progress in the mental health field is the fact that public attitudes have not always been favorable," says Dr. J.D. Griffin, general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

Writing in a pamphlet entitled "Mental Health", Dr. Griffin went on to say that while in recent years a noticeable change for the better has been in evidence mental illness has always been regarded "with horror and dismay."

Queen Mary

When the Duchess of Windsor once became ill in New York, Queen Mary wrote her son with concern: "I feel so sorry for your great anxiety."

Her wisdom is shown in another hitherto-unpublished letter which she wrote on the eve of the Second World War.

"However victorious this country might be," she said, "a Second World War would spell the decline of the British Empire."

One night she penned in her diary: "In case of invasion, I do not wish to become a prisoner of Hitler."

From the last great emotional shock of her life—the death of King George VI in 1952—Queen Mary never fully recovered.

"I suppose," she wrote in her diary, "one must force oneself on to the end."

Damage Claim Is Dismissed

The hearing of the lone civil case on the docket of the Supreme Court yesterday with Mr. Justice Mark R. McGuigan presiding resulted in dismissal of the plaintiff's claim for damages.

The case, a suit for damages, followed an automobile accident several months ago. The plaintiff was James Ernest McCabe who represented his son Barry. The boy was alleged to have been injured in the accident.

The defendant was Garth W. Scott also of this city. Allison Gillis represented the defendant and J. O. C. Campbell, QC the plaintiff.
