Decision Is Reserved On Unethical Question

Hon. Frank Myers, Speaker of the Legislature, has reserved decision on a ruling that a Liberal amendment, deleting part of a report of a select standing committee of the House, is in order.

Yesterday, the rules and orders committee report which said Opposition Leader Alex Campbell made an "unintentional offence against parliamentary procedure" was discussed at length.

Mr. Campbell, earlier in the session gave copies of resolutions to the press after he had filed them with the clerk of the assembly but before members had a chance to see the resolutions.

NO RULE FOUND
The rules committee said in its report that no House rule could be found to cover the circumstances but said - Mr Campbell's actions were "unethical."

The Liberals said no mention should be made of the opposition leader committing an offence when there was no rule broken. The Liberals wanted the reference to an unethical offence deleted from the report and an amendment to this effect was discussed in committee.

When the Speaker took the chair, former opposition leader Alex Matheson moved that the "unethical" part of the report be deleted. The government claimed that the amendment was out of order as it had been lost in committee.

Mr. Matheson claimed his

EXPLAINS GRADES
"Elite 1", he explained, "is eye-indexed, tested and proven in the green house. 'Elite 2', he added, "is the product of Elite 1" and is grown under close supervision of the officials of the Canada department of agriculture.

The Potato Marketing Board, Mr. Burge emphasized, is at all times working towards reduced transportation costs and the easing of tariff barriers with trading countries. "For three years we have been working and will continue for a reduction in transportation costs to U.S.A. which is our largest receiver of seed potatoes.

"We are fortunate in having soil and climate suitable for the production of seed potatoes, but our greatest asset of all is our producers who have been educated to the point that they are in a class by themselves. Nearly all growers are capable of detecting and removing diseased or weak plants and this is so necessary in the production of good seed. Consequently the success of the potato industry of the province can depend a great deal on the soil, climate and our export growers.

"We emphasize again," the board chairman said, "the great need for the cooperation of the potato growers of the province. Our hope is that in the near future the growers of the province would cooperate to the point where 100 per cent of the planting would be done with Foundation Seed and the proper care taken to ensure that we will have nearly all Foundation seed potatoes grown in the province."

The Potato Marketing Board is greatly interested in the future of potatoes and seed potatoes in particular. "We invite any suggestions and look for every cooperation from all phases of the Potato Industry as in this way only can we expect to succeed," Mr. Burge concluded.

giving the resolutions to the press were unethical.

Liberals said they had been in touch with the clerk of the House of Commons and had been advised that Mr. Campbell was not unethical.

Rules committee chairman Robert Grindlay (PC - 2nd Prince) said, however, he had consulted Queens MP Heath Macquarrie who said the practice was unethical.

Mr. Matheson added "Heath Macquarrie is the worst offender in this practice the government is trying to condemn."

SLOW THE BOOM

The change in the income tax will bring an additional $140,000,000 into the treasury in the fiscal year 1966-67, which starts April 1. Coupled with growing population and steadily rising incomes, the finance minister expects his 1966-67 revenues from personal income taxes to amount to $2,378,000,000, compared with $2,150,000,000 in 1965-66.

The income-tax change was designed to reduce moderately the recent rate of increase in consumer expenditures.

Mr. Sharp served notice that the revenue department will start checking charitable organizations more closely on their incomes and expenditures, and qualification for income tax relief.

Starting next Jan. 1, receipts for charitable donations by taxpayers will be accepted for income tax purposes only when they are given out by properly-qualified charitable organizations. But no change is being made in the $100 deduction from income that an individual taxpayer now may make for donations or medical expenses without submitting receipts.

Special tax treatment for deferred profit-sharing plans of corporations, introduced in 1966 and 1961 by the former Conservative finance minister, Donald Fleming, is to be revised, Mr. Sharp said there have been abuses of the plan and the revenue department will not register any new profit-sharing plans until a new law has been written.

Repeatedly through his speech, Mr. Sharp emphasized restraint as a keynote in approaching the current economic boom. He said the country has to press more lightly on the accelerator, though it doesn't need a heavy foot on the brake at the moment.

He at first forecast a nine-per-cent growth in the gross national product in 1966 over 1965, which marked up a gain of 9 1/2 per cent over 1964's $47,003,000,000, if he made no tax changes this year. Then he said his tax changes should dampen the growth sufficiently to bring this year's increase down to about 8 1/2 per cent.

He lifted the sales tax, effective immediately, on steel stails for farm animals, crab and shrimp traps, tobacco dryers used on the farm, artificial teeth, stained glass windows and fuel oil used for generating electricity, among other things.

The big sales-tax changes, however, affected production machinery. It is removed, effective immediately, on dies, jigs, fixtures and moulds and tools used in production machinery for shaping and working materials.

MACHINERY TAX CUT
And he proposed to remove five percentage point of the 11-

PERCENT TAX ON PRODUCTION MACHINERY
on April 1, 1967, and the other six per cent April 1, 1968. With progressive removal of the tax in the future, business may be encouraged to defer equipment purchases, thus easing pressures on the economy, he said.

The sales tax was imposed on production machinery and building materials by former finance minister Walter Gordon, first in a lump in his 1962 budget and then, following protests, progressively. Mr. Sharp said the tax brought in large revenues and its removal progressively now would mean that it would have to be replaced in future as a revenue-earner.

He made no change in the sales tax as it now applies to building materials, also imposed by Mr. Gordon.

In a move Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan repeatedly pressed for - and which Mr. Gordon steadfastly refused - Mr. Sharp announced that new potash mines using the solution method of extraction, such as is employed in Saskatchewan, will be treated now like other mines for tax purposes.

The finance minister's refundable tax on cash profits is a new tax and he told the Commons he wants the advice of businessmen and tax experts on its operation. The proposal is to collect the tax monthly for 18 months and then pay it back in the following 18 to 36 months, depending on the state of the economy then.

The refundable tax would be five per cent of corporation cash profits of more than $30,000, worked out on a complicated formula taking into account the taxes they pay, the debt repayments they make and the capital cost and resource depletion allowances they enjoy. A portion of the tax is to draw off a portion of the big companies' cash profits, freeze them for a waiting period and then release them for company use again when pressures on the economy aren't as strong.

CUTS INVESTMENT
Mr. Sharp expects the effects of the refundable tax and other measures aimed at business should defer about $300,000,000 worth of the business investment in new plant and equipment planned for this year.

A recent report said business expenditure plans on new construction, machinery and equipment in 1966 amounted to $2,955,000,000, compared with $7,719,000,000 in 1965.

He also announced a stretching-out of some major federal projects, amounting to 10 per cent of departmental construction programs in the fiscal year now ending.

Among the projects deferred: The next stage of work on the New Brunswick-Prince Edward Island causeway; a taxation

Legislation Considered
Second reading was given yesterday afternoon in the Legislative Assembly to a bill which will enable municipalities in the province to establish their own industrial commissions.

The bill, promoted by Minister of Industry Lloyd MacPhail, gives the municipalities through the establishments of an industrial commission the right to promote, solicit and encourage the establishment of industry in the area.

A bill amending the Steam Boiler Act was also given second reading. The amendments takes authority from the Public Utilities Commission and places it under the jurisdiction of the Minister of Labor.

The Teachers Superannuation Act was amended by a bill which received second reading. The amendments deal with the contributions of the teachers.

Second-reading was given to a bill which amends the Insurance Act. The amendments deal with insurance adjusters and the licensing of them in the province.

HOLD DOWN DEMANDS
To do so, it was necessary to restrain the demands being made on the economy by governments, businesses and consumers. The government would make no new commitments for substantial expenditures in the new fiscal year starting Friday, April 1.

The federal government is stretching out some of its grants to the provinces for construction work and hopes the provinces will defer non-essential projects.

It is exempting federal, provincial, municipal and government-guaranteed utility bonds from the 15-per-cent withholding tax on interest payments abroad. This should make it easier for governments and government agencies to sell bonds in the United States.

The government's budgetary accounts do not include $1,277,000,000 to be collected from income, corporation and sales taxes by the old age security fund and the payments of $1,035,000,000 to be made by that fund to old age pensioners. Nor do they include contributions now being made to the Canada Pension Plan.

The accumulation of these funds, along with the receipts from the new refundable tax on corporation profits, will have the effect of skimming spending power off the crest of the economic boom. The Canada Pension Plan funds are invested in provincial government securities, thus lessening their pressure on the money markets.

NO FLUCTUATIONS
All of this, Mr. Sharp said, should have a moderating effect on the economy. The long-term objective is to have sustained growth without erratic fluctuations.

There was no mention in the budget speech of two big subjects - revision of the Bank Act this session and incorporation of the proposed Canada Development Corporation.

the cost of maintaining the complex is taking place, with the hope that Ottawa will assume a greater share.

It was after the normal ten o'clock closing time when the premier moved the debate on the resolution be adjourned.

REPORTS NEEDED
Mr. Matheson maintained that up-to-date reports on the affairs of crown corporations should be made available to the Legislature and "the people of the province." He pointed out that the provincial auditor has no way of checking the books of the government corporations and "if we are going to be the representatives of the people, we should have these reports. It would avoid a great deal of difficulty."

Premier Shaw said he was in "substantial agreement" with the purpose of the resolutions and said "I can assure you that these requests are entirely in keeping with my own views in presenting information to this Legislature and the people of the province."

LOT OF WORK
The premier said that some requests for information involve a lot of work for the government departments concerned in completing the Canada Pension Plan at the first annual meeting of the East Prince Fishermen's Association held in the fire hall, Summerside, by Jack Sark of the taxation division, Department of Revenue, Charlottetown. Mr. Sark explained the regulations and formula used for the calculating of contributions by those fishermen who are self-employed or those who are hired-hands or helpers.

President of the association, Dosithee Poirier, reviewed the year's activities expressing satisfaction that many fishermen were interested in establishing and supporting their own organization. He also commended the provincial government for its $50,000 assistance to the fishermen of District No. 8, who suffered a lobster catch failure during the past season. Mr. Poirier expressed his disappointment of the federal government's failure to make comparable contributions to the scheme.

The meeting went on record in favor of supporting application for membership in the P.E.I. Fisheries Federation.

A number of resolutions were given approval by the members present. One commending the
