Cultural Development Is Seen For Kings County

By J.W. LAVERS
Following swiftly on the heels of a great industrial expansion, cultural development is also coming to Kings County.
All the romance of the beloved "summer stock" theatre is on its way as great Canadian names in the world of acting are preparing for rehearsals for plays opening in Georgetown's own legitimate theatre.
Heading a company of performers will be the team of Walter Massey and Ann Butler whose abilities recently received wide acclaim and recognition through a feature article on them in Weekend Magazine. Known to thousands of Canadian playgoers, they will bring to the Georgetown stage all the wizardry of show business and through their performances set a standard for all aspiring Island actors and actresses.
The shows will be staged in an ideal setting that in itself is as steeped in romance as the plays themselves. The 100-year-old Town Hall, one of Canada's few truly great country theatres, will be the site for the venture, and will be known across the land as Kings Theatre.
Refurbished outside and inside, modern conveniences are being added to give more comfort to performers and audiences.
Located on historic Kent Square, its new look will become the start of Georgetown's own 1967 Centennial Project as the ancient county seat is embarking on one of the most ambitious programs it has ever attempted. Low-lying areas of the square will be filled in, walks will be laid out, picnic tables will be set up in a reserved section, a children's play-

INQUIRY RESCHEDULED

The inquiry into ferry rates between P.E.I. and the mainland which was scheduled for yesterday and today has been rescheduled to be held in the Federal building sometime during the last two weeks in July.
Charles W. Moffatt, general manager of the Charlottetown Board of Trade, will make representation before J.H. Darling, chairman of the Maritime Commission protesting the discontinuance of the return fare discount rate on the ferries.

ground is planned, the whole square is to be planted in grass and arranged flower beds along with shrubs and trees to be set out and the town's memorial to its dead in two world wars is to be moved to a place of honor in the centre of the square.
THREE LEVELS
The great community project is to be financed by three levels of government, with the town of Georgetown planning on raising its share through voluntary contributions from present and former residents and through a series of entertainments and fund raising projects. Every former Georgetownian, who can be located, is being written to and told of the large and ambitious project and asked to contribute something towards the cost.
For many years a quiet old town, following the termination of its glory, as the Province's winter link with the mainland by water and the decline of its water transportation in the coastal trade with Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, Georgetown is rising from its years of inactivity, on the wings of a great industrial resurgence, which has brought with it tremendous changes in the daily life of the old and historic Kings County Capital.
Great steel trawlers are being built in Georgetown in a new and modern shipyard, to ply the Gulf waters and catch the fish needed to tax the capacity of the splendid new food processing plant, which is the newest and most modern in the Maritime provinces and those industries have brought an influx of workers and new residents which will continue to increase.
NEW DEVELOPMENT
It is into this setting of industrial expansion that Georgetown will fit its new cultural development. The town and its people are as enthusiastic about this phase as they are proud of their industrial growth. Women of the town are forming a Georgetown Theatre Guild and through it will capture for themselves much of the romance of the stage.
The old Town Hall has a romantic and intriguing history which dates back to the nineteenth century. It has always been a show house. Here Webber brought his troupes to treat the same boards many years. Many other companies brought laughter and tears to audiences of long ago. In the early days of the silver screen, Patterson and Yeo made it a stop on their Island circuit with the silent movies. For years the showing by local talent of St. Patrick's Day plays drew large crowds from all over Kings County, who among Georgetownians, many now residing in far away places will ever forget the annual school closing ceremonies held each year in the Old Town Hall or forget the years of the War of 1914-18, when the women of the town gathered in the hall with their old spinning wheels and here carded the wool, spun the yarn and knit the socks, mittens and scarfs that were sent to Canadian soldiers on the battlefields of Europe.
Perhaps the Hall's greatest glory of the past came when it was the scene of titanic political battles. Here the county political conventions were held and the joint meetings, where the great orators of another era held forth; some went on to the national scene in Ottawa's Parliament and many to the provincial legislature in Charlottetown. All of them knew the stage in the old town hall. Many great former Canadian Prime Ministers displayed their oratory here as the County capital in those days always merited a visit from the greats in Canadian politics as they pursued their campaigns across the land.
In recent years, due perhaps to fast and modern transportation and new media of entertainment, the town hall was used less frequently and upkeep and insurance payments made it a losing financial proposition for the town. Now all that is to be changed and it will blossom into an asset, particularly and more importantly from a cultural viewpoint.

With a long history of theatre background behind her, Mrs. Beth McGowan, saw the possibilities in the ancient and historic structure. To her it presented the long-sought answer to real revival of the legitimate theatre as a part of the everyday life of the average citizen.
Across Canada today the theatre revival is sweeping like a prairie fire. Artists are searching for places to stage productions. Suddenly a sense of urgency has come to the field of cultural development and in Georgetown's town hall. Beth McGowan saw the potential for a new outlet for Canadian talent.
Working with the Municipal authorities of Georgetown she sought and obtained a long-term lease and will bring top in entertainment commencing this summer season. July first is the date chosen and the day will be complete with all the traditional excitement of opening night as the cast begins a nine week run. Two plays will be alternated, with each running three nights each week. On Sundays there will be real swing along sing-along for the youth of the whole district, with local talent leading the way each week.
Who can now estimate the boon this venture will play in the Province's tourist industry or what it will mean to local talent through drama, festivals and avenues of entertainment and cultural development that have been dormant over the years.

Strange Substance Identified

W.A. Murphy, officer in charge of the fish inspection laboratory of the federal Department of Fisheries in Charlottetown told this paper last night that the yellow "sulphur-like" substance whose abundance has been causing some concern in several Kings County areas has been found to be pollen from spruce trees.
Mr. Murphy and Dr. Charles, head of the biology department at St. Dunstan's University, visited the Murray Harbour area yesterday and Dr. Cheverie positively identified the spruce pollen as the substance which has been found in large quantities in Island waters and on many beaches. There were reports from Murray Harbour of the pollen coating roofs, buildings and cars.
The phenomenon of the extremely heavy pollen growth has never been reported before, said Mr. Murphy.
Originally it was intended to send a sample of the pollen to the biological lab at St. Andrews, N.B., for analysis, but this has been found unnecessary.

Confederation Caravan Leaves On Trial Run

OTTAWA (CP)—A Confederation caravan, an eight-trailer convoy, scheduled to bring the story of Canada to some 700 communities next year, was launched on a five-day technical trial run this weekend.
The trailers—50 feet long, 10 feet wide, 12.5 feet high and hauled by a 23-foot truck—are the largest travelling on North American roads. Each caravan's exhibition space, when fully set up, is 40,000 square feet.
Eight such caravans will make the centennial tours.
The caravan left here Saturday to visit centres in eastern Ontario and western Quebec.
At each stop the crews set up and dismantle the caravan and its external equipment as part of the training for their centennial year tours.
The communities they will visit next year will be ones not served by the Confederation train which will move from east to west with special exhibition cars.
Both the train and caravans will carry original exhibits on Canada's history, Confederation, culture and technical achievements.
