New Gloom For Gold Miners

OTTAWA, Aug. 1 (CP) - The Canadian official price for gold sagged to an 18-year low today, bringing further gloom to Canada's gold-mining industry. The Finance Department announced that the Mint's price for gold during the current week is $33.823125 a fine ounce, down from last week's $33.939062 and the previous low of $33.873437 for the week ended July 3.

This week's price is the lowest since the official price of the monetary metal was pegged at $35 per fine ounce in United States funds in 1934. Before that it was priced at $20.67.

Though the American price remains unchanged at $35, the rate of conversion into Canadian funds depends on the fluctuations of the Canadian dollar on world markets. Gold producers have been aided in two ways but neither has greatly enhanced their financial positions. One was the direct government cost-aid subsidy which runs to at least the end of next year. This average out to about $2.70 an ounce for those selling on the official market.

For those who agree to forego the subsidy, the government is allowing them to sell on the free markets, but these no longer are as lucrative as they used to be. The price on the free market has sunk to about $37 per ounce in U.S. funds from a high of more than $50 two years ago. Gold producers generally feel that the only real solution to their problem is for the United States Government, the world's ready customer for gold, to boost the purchase price to $50 per ounce. The U.S., in reply to Canadian and South African demands for higher gold prices, has argued that such a move would be inflationary and detrimental to countries other than those which are large-scale gold exporters.

Propaganda Continues. Meanwhile, at most of the day's meetings, communist propaganda efforts, which have slowed the conference's main business, continued, occasionally drawing sharp rejoinders from other delegates. Canada figured in today's replies. Leopold Macaulay of Toronto, chairman of the Central Council of the Canadian Red Cross, took the rostrum at one point to denounce the Russian charges as "garbage". "I call them packages of political garbage and they smell," he said warmly. "They ought to be passed on to the garbage can where they belong."

Statements had been made which "would not be allowed in any democratic legislature that I know of." Even the most successful diplomats had not been able, in the U. N., to solve the questions to the satisfaction of the Communists. "There is a rule of law in the Anglo-Saxon world and not a far- flung with conditions in Soviet courts of law—that he who comes to court and asks for equity must come with clean hands," he added.
