

Catalyst First Need Of New Drama Corps

By JEAN SHARP
 A the top will be the person without whom no drama group can be put near the bottom ever starts. He will probably be of the list of things to think someone who is dying to direct about when starting a drama play.

Catalyst to get people who are usually interested in theatre. Mrs. Woodburn Thomson of Richmond Hill, Ont., advisory chairman for the Central Ontario Drama League. "The catalyst is usually someone knowledgeable. Then you need a strong, dedicated executive." Mrs. Thomson, a member of two drama groups, the University Alumni in Toronto and the Curtain Club in Richmond Hill, says about 20 people and a director are needed.

Along with the executive and director, you will probably need a designer, stage manager and carpenter, someone in charge of lighting, properties, costumes, makeup, the theatre and staff, publicity and programs, tickets, and a good prompter as well as a cast.

Next step is to find a rehearsal hall and theatre. A small theatre is best for amateur groups. Audiences will be more comfortable in a nearby filled small house, and actors will have less difficulty making themselves heard.
