

sure, and that he has been wantonly and wickedly assailed. It is worthy of notice, that the Islander's infamous attack upon the Government generally, and Mr. Lord particularly, about the winter mail service, though denounced in strong terms by other members of the House as well as Mr. Lord, was not palliated or excused in the smallest degree by the minority. They were evidently ashamed of the ruffianly tirade, and maintained a strict and prudent silence in regard to it. It is with much reluctance we have felt constrained to give it a temporary importance by noticing it here; but no amount of blackguardism from its evil-minded author will tempt us to return to the subject.

CHARLOTTETOWN INCORPORATION ACT.

We intended to give some account of the Charlottetown Incorporation Act, but as it will shortly be in the hands of the Printer for publication in the Royal Gazette, we shall abstain from any lengthy remarks for the present, but will, as soon as the Act comes into our hands, give a synopsis of its details for the information of those who may take an interest in the matter, but may not have leisure enough to go through so lengthy an Act. All we will say at present is, that we think it is a tolerably good measure, and is sure, if honestly carried out, to produce important improvements in Charlottetown, which cannot fail to be felt throughout the Island generally. Of course it is far from being a perfect measure. It will require amendments probably for half a dozen years to come, before it will attain to anything like perfection. It will, however, set the machinery of self-government in motion for this little city of ours—and every day's working of that machinery will show what alterations will be required in the Act. We know there are a great many very respectable and intelligent people opposed to the Incorporation Act, and they are opposed to it for two reasons: 1st—that it may entail heavy burthens on the citizens; 2d—that the Tory party are so numerous in Charlottetown that they will monopolise all the municipal functions. In answer to the first, we must say, although we entertain a very great respect for many who are opposed to the Act, that we think their opposition is based upon a mere chimera. By the provisions of the Act, the Corporation cannot increase the taxes now levied to a greater amount than £1000, unless by special permission of the Government of the Colony. Whether even this increase—which is to be raised by an assessment on real and personal property, according to their value, and will be very slightly felt in individual cases—will be deemed necessary, is a question for the representatives of the city in Common Council to decide. As regards the second objection, if the Tory party should monopolise the municipal offices, there is this consolation, they will have all the labour, for most of which no remuneration is provided, and all the difficulty, discouragement and odium of carrying out new institutions which do not appear to be universally acceptable. As to think they can play the tyrant, the idea is preposterous. They could do so only by enacting arbitrary bye-laws, but no bye-laws can take effect until they are approved of by the Lieutenant Governor in Council. In the face of this provision, the Corporation will find it a difficult matter to try its hand at despotism, with any chance of success. But we do not believe the Tory party in this city will be so numerically strong as to be able to hold all the offices for any considerable length of time, if the Liberals should think those offices are worth looking after. The last general election in Charlottetown showed that the Liberal interest had increased amazingly, and was nearly equal to that of the Tory interest. It is increasing every day twofold faster than the other; and in August next, when the first civic election will take place, we are confident the Liberals will be able to whip their adversaries, if they choose to put forth their strength, and be stimulated by the laudable ambition of carrying off all the civic honours with little or no pay.

POSTSCRIPT.

EXAMINER OFFICE, TUESDAY MORNING.

Arrival of the English Mail.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

The Courier arrived in Charlottetown at a late hour last evening with the English, Colonial and American Mails. Having delayed the publication of our paper for the closing of the Legislature, we are now enabled to give our readers, in advance of our contemporaries, as much of the news from the seat of war as possesses any interest or importance. We glean the following from our latest files.

THE CRIMEA AND BLACK SEA.

We are still without news of any striking importance from the Crimea. The weather is reported to be more than usually fine—the roads of the country in perfect order—the health of the Allied troops completely restored, and the men burning for action—the munitions of war in great abundance and ready to hand—everything, in short, in a state of perfect readiness for the commencement of offensive operations upon a large scale; yet, strange to say, we hear of no active movement whatever on the part of the Generals. At this distance from the scene of action, and ignorant as we necessarily are of the precise circumstances by which the Allied Commanders may find themselves surrounded, it would, of course, be presumptuous in us to pronounce any decided judgment upon their conduct; but seeing that all the terrible hardships of a winter campaign before the walls of Sebastopol have been encountered for the express object of having an army upon the spot prepared to strike a heavy blow upon the enemy with the first return of spring, we confess the continued inactivity of the Generals strikes us with great surprise. When we are told that the numerical strength of the Allied forces in the Crimea is at least equal to that of the enemy, and when we are informed that all the physical impediments to the movement of troops in the field have been removed by the fitness of the weather, we must presume that there is some overwhelming military reason with which we are not acquainted, to account for the inactivity which the Generals have lately exhibited.

The enemy is not by any means so inferior. Lord Raglan, in a recent despatch, says that the besieged forces are bringing forward their advanced works with great activity, and that the roads on the northern side of the place are covered with stores of food and munitions of war, which he cannot intercept. Yet we hear of no attempt from the 23d of February to the 15th March to check these formidable demonstrations, and to avail ourselves of the superiority of the Allied armies. We can only infer that in the opinion of the Council of War the dangers of such an operation outweigh its probable advantages.

There have been some smart engagements between the Russians and the French in the trenches before Sebastopol, in several of which the loss on both sides has been considerable, but no permanent advantages seem to be gained by either. The English troops have not been assailed; and what is more strange, their batteries, whenever they have opened, have scarcely been replied to. This has excited a good deal of surprise in the camp. A correspondent writing from the spot, after describing the successful practice of an English battery in shelling out a party of Russian riflemen who had established themselves in front of the line on our right attack, says:—"Strange to say, the Russians scarcely returned one gun for ten of ours. A week ago, and a single shot fired from any of the English works would have been replied to with such a volley as would have levelled our works; and to-day, to the intense surprise of every one, the riflemen were driven in almost without their batteries offering any resistance."

Some minor operations have been effected by the fleet. On the 8th of March, Lieut. Armytage, commanding the Viper, steam-vessel, attacked and destroyed the barracks and martello tower at Djimitia—the tower having been recently erected by the Russians at that place for the defence of the direct communication between Anapa and Kertch. "It is my pleasing duty," says Lieut. Armytage, in his despatch to the Admiral, "to inform you that I have effectually destroyed the fort, barracks, and granaries—spiked and disabled the guns—and destroyed the whole of the ammunition—all, I am happy to say, without any casualty on board the Viper." So much for that affair.

Captain Giffard, of the Leopard, in conjunction with the French Captain, Le Bris, has also attacked and partially destroyed the Russian works and stores at Soujak Kale; but being unsupported by the Circassians, who had promised him their assistance on shore, he was unable to complete the demolition of the arsenal. "I moved the squadron," says Captain Giffard in his despatch, "to within a thousand yards of the south face, and opened fire on it. From this point the enemy had only ten guns to bear on the ships, but the light wind and damp weather made the smoke hang over and conceal them from our fire, while our masts above were conspicuous to them. We soon drove all the inhabitants and troops out of the place, except those in the earthen batteries, but I was much disappointed to find that the Circassians did not advance to attack them when out of the town, as they had promised. I therefore moved out again, as with our small force of men it would have been too great a risk to land, the main body of the garrison being close at hand. The arsenal and public buildings are much injured, and several of the guns were silenced and dismounted."

These are all the achievements we have to record of her Majesty's land and sea forces in the Crimea and Black Sea up to the 17th March. We are informed that the Emperor of the French has agreed to send 50,000 additional troops to the Crimea if it should be necessary after the Vienna Congress, on the condition that England shall find the vessels to convey them.

THE CONGRESS AT VIENNA.—Halt in the Negotiations.—Fear of a Shameful Compromise and a Dishonourable Peace.—The impression appears to be universal, not only in this country, but on the Continent, that the Western Powers have agreed to recede from their first demand on Russia—that the fortress of Sebastopol should be razed to the ground. A fear is gaining ground that all our boasting—all our dearly-bought alliances—all our sacrifices of money and men—are coming to a very ignominious result. It is felt, by a kind of instinct which seldom misleads a whole people, that we are on the eve of some shameful compromise—some hollow, inadequate, and patched-up Peace.

COUNCIL OF WAR—RESOLUTION TO RE-COMMENCE ACTIVE OPERATIONS.—At a Council of War, held on the 4th, it was resolved to re-commence active operations. General Burgoyne remains in the Crimea at the request of Lord Raglan. A continual fire was kept up between the French and Russians. The health of the troops is satisfactory. The Russians are said to have received reinforcements.

SEBASTOPOL STRONGER THAN EVER.—News from Sebastopol, of the 10th of March, states that the principal Russian batteries, and especially those of the tower of Malakoff, have been doubled by an inner line, and the re-lands in many places tripled. The place is stronger than ever. The effect of the French rockets is exaggerated. Little damage has been done to the town.

Advices from Odessa of the 14th inst., bring a report that Prince Menschikoff has died of typhus fever. The report requires confirmation.

Advices from Constantinople of the 12th of March, state that shocks of earthquake continued. The sulphurous springs at Brousa had been dried up. Mount Olympus vomits smoke like a volcano.

A Russian circular has been addressed under the form of a despatch to the Russian Ambassadors, declaring the mission of the new Emperor to be "the preservation of the integrity of the Empire, and especially the restoration of peace to Russia and the world."

The instructions sent to Vienna have been renewed in this sense.

Mr. C. H. Darling, late Governor of the Cape, has been appointed Governor of Newfoundland, vice Mr. Kerr Baillie Hamilton, appointed Governor-in-Chief of the Leeward Islands.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—"A Brother" gives some wholesome, though, perhaps, not very palatable advice, to one who is styled the "ex-squatter member of the House of Assembly." We do not like these personalities; we would much rather keep our columns clear of them; but when our opponents fling them about with the utmost recklessness at our personal and political friends, we cannot see that there is much justice in refusing to let those opponents be paid off in their own currency. "A Brother" is, therefore, under favorable consideration.
