THE POTATO'S LAMENT

I'm a lowly little Spud. People tell me I'm no good, While I do the best I can Working for ungrateful man. When my crop fails, hear them curse, If I grow abundantly, 'tis worse. For then they raise an awful fuss About a potato sur-pul-us! Man tells me that my eyes are blind, I feel like answering (in kind) For any one at all should see That the fault is not with me. To make farming more secure, A quota system is the cure. Allow each one to ship his share, Then feed or process what's to spare. Remove the excess, thus each year Will keep the markets nice and clear. It would help the market out again, If I could get that trip to Spain. I always keep right up to date To cope with style, disease, or fate. I've done my best, but now I'm through Unless man uses his head too. —A Spud From Spud Island. Elliotvale, P. E. I.
