

At the age of 10, Princess Margaret, like any other little girl, was interested in painting, in dolls and particularly horses, dogs and ponies. Even then, she "had a mind of her own," and was a lovely, determined young lady.

In 1937, on Aug. 21, Princess Margaret was seven years old and excited over the prospect of a pony ride.

Vivacious, Princess Margaret likes parties, has been seen with many escorts to theatres and night clubs. Dancing is one of her favorite relaxations and in Canada, she has a dinner-dance scheduled during her four-day visit to Ottawa.

At the age of 12, Princess Margaret's training as a representative of the royal house had begun. With her sister, now Queen Elizabeth, and her mother, she regularly attended state functions and ceremonies.

Princess Margaret is Chief Ranger of the British Commonwealth and Empire. In Hamilton, Ont., on Aug. 1 she will take the salute of the Highland Light Infantry of which she is colonel-in-chief.

Duties of a princess visiting other countries often become weary round of public appearance and functions. But Princess Margaret appears to enjoy everything. Here she accepts a bouquet from a native girl in the Windward Islands during her 1955 tour of the Caribbean.

Will Absorb Much Of Steel Price Increase

CLEVELAND (AP)—When the expected steel price increase comes, steel consumers will absorb more of it than they have ever before absorbed, the magazine Steel said today. The trade publication said a survey of steel users indicated a majority of them think price competition is the major consideration.

"They believe added costs could be relayed (to their customers) only at the expense of sales," Steel comments in its current weekly issue.

However, there was a wide variation in answers to its query. Steel says, with some direct competitors giving diametric answers. Some said they would pass along the entire increase in steel cost and others said none would be passed on to customers.

The steel price rise to compensate for higher costs of a July 1 wage increase is expected to come by fall, U.S. Steel Corp., which usually leads the way in an industry-wide price change, has held off. Steel magazine said the reason for U.S. Steel's "wait and see" attitude is that business conditions aren't right for an increase.

Steelmaking operations, which dropped sharply the first week in July, edged upward half a point to 53.5 per cent of the rated national capacity last week.

Lives After Fall Down 1,000 Feet

ANTONITO, Colo. (AP) — Two rescuers Tuesday located one of fishermen who fell more than 1,000 feet down a sheer wall of a river canyon.

The man, tentatively identified as John Sanders, was apparently slightly hurt, said a licenced guide who was with the rescue party.

Sanders' companion, William E. Garver, has not been located. "Sanders must have fallen about 1,000 feet down that canyon wall," the guide said, "he is not badly hurt."

"He is weak from no food and water and the cold night. He says he had been on that ledge for four days—must have fallen in Friday—so this would be the fifth day."

Garver apparently fell further into the steep canyon.

Presbyterian W.M.S. Holds Presbyterial At Clyde River

The 7th Annual Presbyterial of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church in Canada was held at Clyde River Church on Wednesday, July 9th, with a very large attendance of delegates and visitors representing every section of Prince Edward Island.

This beautiful old church was a picture with lovely flowers and newly decorated and refurnished, and the visitors were delighted with the spirit of genuine hospitality and friendliness. It was the first time in its history, that the Presbyterial was held at Clyde River. The devotional service at the morning session was conducted by Clyde River Auxiliary, with a very fine address by Mrs. Killen on the early beginning of missionary work in the days of our Lord, stressing how little one can understand how far our influence for good can travel.

The meetings were conducted by Mrs. R.R. Hurst, Provincial President, who in her capable and charming manner made the day a very enjoyable one.

The reports were interesting and informative and all showed encouragement.

Diligent Quintuplets Plan Birthday Party

By ALFONSO MAURI BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—The Diligent quintuplets are planning a mammoth 15th birthday party and their entry into adult life along five different paths.

The Diligent quintuplets have made it known they want to be different from each other.

But this week the quintuplets return home from their five different schools to greet 500 guests from three continents for their first big public appearance together.

For the three girls, the dazzling ball at their millionaire father's palatial home will mean the first white nylon tulle gowns and for the two boys, their first tuxedos, the end of short pants and boyhood.

Carefully planned the separate lives of his brood on July 15, 1943, after recovering from the shock of learning he was the father of five new children.

Diligent swore the household to secrecy and registered the births of Franco, Carlos, Maria Christina, Maria Fernanda and Maria Esther at five different public offices.

For eight months the secret was sacred, but the news finally leaked out when a deliveryman became curious about the family's monthly consumption of 220 quarts of milk.

"I didn't want a bunch of maniacs rushing around my house flashing bulbs in my babies' faces," the Argentine industrialist said. "I wanted them to lead normal lives."

"They had to forget that they were different from other children," Diligent said when he split them up.

Not only do the teen-agers display different personalities at different British-run boarding schools, but their appearances and modes of dress also are dissimilar.

MORE LIKE FRIENDS "When we go to the movies we could be taken for just a group of friends," auburn-haired Maria Esther said.

The only fair-haired member of the five, Maria Esther is called "the lawyer" by the family and shows tendencies at becoming a sharp businesswoman.
