DUBLIN, Dec. 8.

A terrible tragedy occurred near Cookstown, county Tyrone, this morning. A bailiff named James Mulholland was employed to execute a decree against a farmer named David Gormley, living at Lough Fay, a wild part of the country. The decree was at the suit of a trader, two of whose clerks accompanied Mulholland. Upon arriving at Gormley's house, the latter came out with a shot gun and called out to Mulholland to stand. Then, drawing a line across the road, he threatened to shoot Mulholland if he crossed it. Mulholland paid no heed to the warning and advanced. Gormley then raised his gun and shot the bailiff through the heart. The corpse was soon afterward removed to Cookstown. Most of the police were away at Brookborough, where a land meeting was in progress.

A sad and dramatic eviction took place in county Wicklow to-day. An old man named Arthur Kavanagh, in feeble health, who had a cabin on the property of Earl Fitzwilliam, had fallen behind in his rent. A decree of ejectment was obtained by the Earl at the last Wicklow Sessions. His gamekeeper, with two bailiffs, went to execute the decree this afternoon. They had to carry Kavanagh out of the house, and as he was crossing the threshold of his cabin the poor old man gave one gasp and died in the gamekeeper's arms. His body was laid by the roadside. Over it for hours sat his only mourner, a granddaughter. Kavanagh was formerly in a good position. Kavanagh had been previously a carrier between Dublin and Wicklow. He has been unable to work for two years, and was bedridden for some time.

DUBLIN, Dec. 9.

Our Boyle correspondent telegraphs:—"An extraordinary scene took place here to-day. A league meeting there assumed the powers and nature of a court, after the fashion of O'Connell's Arbitration Courts, despite the fact that such action constitutes an offence under the statutes. A council of members was present, P. Sharkey, presiding. Its first business was the trial of Patrick Higgins, of Tartan, a woman named Bridget Higgins having preferred a charge against him of undermining her in her holding. After deliberating, during which Higgins was greeted with angry cries, it was agreed to fine him £1. Higgins paid the money and left the room. The cases of three shopkeepers whose names appear on the black list circulated in the neighborhood, were next considered. They applied for admission to the League, and their cases were thereupon postponed. The cases of other offending tenants were considered and adjourned for a week for examination. Edward Cunningham then produced a list of shopkeepers in Boyle who had not joined the League, and moved that they get one week to make up their minds or be boycotted. To-day the shops of traders, whose names are on the black list, were entirely deserted. Parties seen entering their houses or known to be dealing with them were warned. Various acts of intimidation are reported.

The Land Leaguers are about to desert their dingy central offices, and will go immediately into more spacious quarters. A large meeting of the League was held at Parsontown to-day to denounce Lord Rosse for attending a meeting of landlords in Dublin and proposing a resolution declaring that the country was in a state of anarchy. A resolution was carried condemning Rosse. In Kilrush to-day a well-known nationalist was engaged in painting the letters "L. L." over several shops, the signs denoting houses in which business should be transacted by the Land Leaguers. Great excitement was created in the same town by the refusal of Major Studdart's tenants to pay even Griffith's valuation, unless allowed half-poor rates also on the county cess. Lord Rossmore arrived at Monaghan to-day from London. He is accompanied by a considerable body of men and will fulfill his promise of presiding at the anti-league meeting at Scotstown to-morrow. The leaguers also have arrived and are determined to hold their meetings. Messrs. O'Kelly, Dillon and Biggar have written to Mr. Foster saying that Lord Rossmore, in fulfillment of his threats to oppose the land meeting at Scotstown on Thursday, has arrived at Enniskillen with a body of armed men, who intend to attack the meeting, and they call on the Government to protect them. At the Omagh Assizes to-day, a farmer was sentenced to twenty years' penal servitude for firing at his landlord. The appeal of the Leaguers to the Secretary is founded on a misapprehension; as Lord Rossmore's friends, who met him at the station, are not armed. Great fears, however, are entertained of hostile action on the other side. Lord Rossmore, who is accompanied by Lord Mandeville and Lord Crichton, repudiates a placard calling an anti-League meeting, and says his name was appended without authority. He will not apparently take part in the proceedings.

LONDON, Dec. 10.

A terrible colliery explosion occurred this morning in one of the pits in the Rhodra Valley, South Wales. There were a number of men and boys in the pit at the time, but the exact number cannot as yet be ascertained. It is believed, however, that 87 lives have been lost. As soon as the men at the pit had recovered from the shock occasioned by the explosion, energetic steps were taken to organize a relief party, and a number of volunteers descended to the bottom, at the imminent hazard of their own lives. A sad spectacle met the explorers' gaze at the bottom of the shaft, but no time was lost in mere observation. Owing to the prevalence of afterdamp their work was necessarily very slow, but they succeeded in discovering 16 bodies, which were conveyed to the top of the shaft. Efforts will be made to extricate the remainder of the imprisoned miners, but very little hopes can be held out of any being found alive. The sad news of the calamity quickly circulated among the colliers' dwellings, and in a brief space of time crowds of women, some with infants in their arms, and hundreds of the unfortunate miners, relations, and others. Men, women and children thronged the pit's mouth, the pale and weeping faces of many telling of their deep interest in the calamity. The colliery is in the vicinity of the Divas mine, where nearly 200 persons lost their lives two years ago.
