A New Crusade.

DR. TANNER, OF FASTING FAME, SEEKS TO REVOLUTIONIZE MODERN USAGES.

Dr. H. S. Tanner, who became famous eight years ago by fasting for forty days, is now at Chicago. He is apparently in perfect health. At present he eats two meals a day in summer, and one meal a day in winter. In an interview he said he had been in New Mexico pursuing investigation into the subject of suspended animation or counterfeit death. He is convinced that large numbers of people are annually buried alive all over the world; and from his study of various cases, and the records of societies on the subject in Holland and elsewhere he is convinced that so subtle is the principle of life that no one can undertake to say that it is extinct until decomposition, the only sure sign, has set in. He declares that the dead in this country are buried with indecent, almost criminal, haste, and that burials of persons who are not absolutely dead are murders. The doctor is also pursuing another branch of semi-suspended animation, viz., hibernation. He declares that bears and other hibernating animals do not use their lungs during the hibernating season. He is convinced that man can hibernate. He refers to the long trances of the Hindoo adepts, accomplished through long seasons of fasting, and declares it to be his belief that these trances are merely seasons of hibernation. The doctor says he is studying with a view to making some experiments on the line, and that the time may come when he may permit himself to be sealed up in an air tight coffin and laid away until such time as he shall designate for it to be opened.

She Wanted a Husband.

The following curious letter was received by President Arthur while he was President of the United States:—

President Arthur—Dear Sir: I take the liberty of addressing you This is leap year, and I want you to get me a husband. Here there are seven girls to one boy, and there is not one whom I know that I would marry. I am a good neat housekeeper; can cook lots of good things, knit, make all my own and my mother's dresses, beside other kinds of sewing; play the piano and organ—in fact people call me a sensible and clever girl. Now, I think I am worthy of a good, kind husband, don't you? Well, I want one who neither drinks, smokes or chews tobacco, who is moral and honorable, who is not too old or too young (about 35 or 40) and who has money enough to have a comfortable and pleasant home, and who will love me, and in return I will love him and keep his house and clothing in good order and see that he has plenty of good, well-cooked victuals to eat, for the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Now, then, if you know of such a gentleman (because I am well born and part Yankee; my grandmother was a Connecticut lady), please send him here. I am tired of this cold region, and I would like to live among the warm-hearted, friendly Americans; besides, I think the Americans make the best husbands, and the Canadian girls are the most rugged and healthy. I am fair, and I think contrasts are best, but that is immaterial. Now, I am in earnest, and I want you to help me if you can, and I will ever be grateful to you. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, your true friend,

CARRIE AUGUSTA KENNEDY.

Good Manners.

Never try to outshine, but to please.

Never press a favor where it seems undesired.

Never intrude ill-health, pains, losses or misfortunes.

Never intentionally wound the feelings of a human being.

Never talk or laugh aloud in public places or upon the streets.

Never forget that vulgarity has its origin in ignorance or selfishness.

Never urge another to do anything against his desire unless you see danger before him.

Do not ask another to do what you would not be glad to do under similar circumstances.

Never omit to perform a kind act when it can be done with any reasonable amount of exertion.

Never heedlessly wound the vanity of another or dilate unnecessarily upon disagreeable subjects.

Do not make witticisms at the expense of others which you would not wish to have made upon yourselves.

Remember that good manners are thoughts filled with kindness and refinement and then translated into behavior.

Be not ostentatious in dress or deportment; nothing can be more vulgar. See that costumes fit the time and occasion.

Be rude to none; rudeness harms not even the humblest and poorest to whom it it is directed, but it injures the exhibitors.

Never treat superiors with servility or inferiors with arrogance. Speak as kindly to a day laborer as one occupying a high position.

Always give precedence to elders, visitors and superiors. Offer them the best seat at the table, the best place by the fire, and the first of everything. Go further than mere form and seem comfortable and happy.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

QUICK BUTCHER WORK.—Some of our readers may be interested in the performance of a butchers' assistant at Rochdale, who has "dressed" a bullock of 52 stone, (about 5¾ cwt.), in 21¼ minutes, finishing his work well in that time. The result decided a wager of £10 to £9, the odds being given that the work could be done under twenty-five minutes. The Meat Trades Journal, from which we get the story, says the performance may be placed among the best on record.

The Parnell Commission.

In London the public are reported on the tip toe of excitement over the Parnell Commission, which opened on Monday last. It is felt that this impartial tribunal, removed from the heat of politics, will arrive at the truth, though it be hid in the very centre of the earth. The expenses on both sides will be enormous, £50,000 is what is estimated as the sum it will cost the Times, and while Mr. Parnell's bill will not be as high, he is less able to pay, and it is hoped his outlay will be covered by subscriptions, although the efforts in that direction, as far as England is concerned, are not hearty. A central fund is wanted, but the Liberal leaders decline to subscribe as a matter of principle, refusing to acknowledge that the fortune of their party is dependent on the character of any individual. At the outset the Parnellites scored a success in enforcing the production of the Times letters, including those which are alleged to have been written by Parnell, Egan and Campbell, Parnell's secretary. On the other hand, the Times secured access to the bank-books, accounts and minutes of both the land and national leagues. Two men who are now in penal servitude for connection with the Phœnix Park murders will be brought to London to give evidence. Dillon has also been liberated for this purpose; and application will be made for certificates of indemnity to permit the return of Egan and other Irish-Americans who will give evidence on behalf of the Parnellites. The court has declared that the widest possible scope will be given to the enquiry on both sides. The commission will hold its second session on Saturday. As an evidence of the popular interest in the enquiry, it is stated that no less than two hundred press reporters are in attendance.

Hand-Shaking.

On hand-shaking as a factor in successful evangelical work, Mark Guy Pearse at the anniversary of the Wesley mission said: The right hand is the biggest human power. Man is the only animal that has a hand. The hand my brother, marks thee off to help men. I do believe in that brotherly grip. I was walking alone one day by the sea-shore, and a friend on the cliff said, "Come up here." I said, "Lend me a hand." Twenty feet was too much. I had a church once in which there were no workingmen. I said, "We shall never prosper until we get workingmen in here." One day I got hold of their hands, and one hand felt different from the rest. I said to that man, "Come and see me to-morrow night at eight o'clock." He did. For thirty years he lived in that town, and nobody had ever spoken to him. He said, "I have kept my soul alive by praying about the streets." What brought you to my place?" I asked. He said. "My boy came home and said some one shook hands with him, and I determined to go and see if he would shake hands with me." That man brought ten men to the Bible-class the next Sabbath afternoon. I believe the biggest human power is downright hearty hand-shaking.

Two Kinds of Squeezes.

"James," said the father of the family, sternly, "your school reports have been anything but favorable this term. I suppose you failed in your examination as usual."

"No, sir," protested the boy. "I passed, but it was a tight squeeze."

"Laura," continued the father, turning to his oldest daughter. "I think I heard voices in the hall late last evening. I have told you repeatedly not to let that young man stay later than eleven o'clock."

"It was just eleven o'clock when he left, father."

"That's so," testified James, coming to the relief of his sister. "I was at the top of the stairway and saw him go. He got away at eleven, but it was a tight squ——"

"James!" shrieked Laura.

He who makes the best of everything that happens to him, will always have the best that his circumstances will allow, and will surely be a much happier man than he whose habit of mind is to make the worst of everything.

Brilliant talents are captivating and pleasing; yet nothing makes man so truly an object of admiration as the manifestation of virtue. This is the brightest gem that can be worn by human nature. It is far better to be good than to be simply great.

SALT FOR COWS.—Always give salt in the food—never less than one ounce per day, or one-half per cent. of the live weight per month. The length of the milking period of a well-bred and well-fed cow depends on regular and persistent milking by her attendant. It should be 300 to 350 days, or within a month of calving.

A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is that in which the sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is that on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper, the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper under the sleeper until the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper by striking the sleeper under the sleeper on the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleeper sleeping in the sleeper on the sleeper.—Boston Journal of Commerce.

Since the year 1881, the beginning of Russian emigration to America, not less than thirty Russians have graduated from the medical department of the University of the City of New York, a number of them are successful physicians. The College of Pharmacy has also graduated a number of apothecaries, and the School of Mines of Columbia College has graduated one. in 1889 the University promises fourteen new Russian doctors, the Women's Medical College four, and the Pharmacy three; in all twenty-five Russians.
