Show of Grenada, and the new leader of British Guiana, Dr. Cheddi Jagan. Leaving the airport, the Queen will drive through the streets of Montego Bay and then over to Kingston, the capital. The Queen will stop for an informal rest and picnic lunch at one of the beautiful beaches along the north shore.

In Spanish Town

Then she will come to the ancient capital of Spanish Town. Here she will see the statue of Rodney, the British admiral who saved the West Indies from the French and to whom the statue was erected by grateful colonists. In Spanish Town, too, the Queen will see the facade of old King's House, the dignified residence of the early governors of the island where lavish balls and splendid parties gave a governor's wife, Lady Nugent, material for a best-selling diary 15 years ago.

In Kingston, the Queen will go to the new King's House, which will be her headquarters during her three-day stay.

A military parade at army headquarters in Jamaica, will open the second day of the visit: The day of formal receptions.

Then Her Majesty will witness a rally of 2,000 schoolchildren at Sabina Park, the island's leading athletic field. Later in the morning, she will go to the Kingston race course, to be welcomed by the mayor of the city and to see the King George VI park, now being created in memory of her father. Here, she will plant a tree as part of a tree-planting campaign to commemorate her visit.

Next the Queen will visit Headquarters House, seat of the local legislature, to receive a loyalty address from the legislators.

The Queen will go through the residential and commercial sections of this city of 300,000 population, gay with its decorations of flags, bunting and ceremonial arches.

In the afternoon, the Duke, in keeping with his interest in science and education, will hold an informal meeting with members of the University College of the West Indies

That evening, 100 of the political and official leaders of the island will dine with the Queen at King's House.

Afterwards, at the biggest reception over to be given in Jamaica, 2,000 guests will gather to greet the Queen against the background of the illuminated gardens and lawns of King's House.

Folk Music For Queen

Jamaican dancers and singers will entertain the folk and diggers songs of the island.

Early next morning, the Duke will play a game of polo, taking his last exercise before starting on the long sea voyage to New Zealand. The Queen will watch the game which the governor, one of the island's leading players, will take part.

Afterwards a formal visit will be paid to the university where the Queen and Duke will be received by the principal, Dr. Walter Grave, members of the University College council and leading West Indians.

As the day ends the Queen will go to Port Royal, Jamaica's most historically famous town.

Then the Queen will go by launch from the end of the parade ground to the waiting liner Gothic, which will take her and the Duke to New Zealand.

success will depend largely upon the way in which you use your innately dynamic personality. On October third, the Mara-Venus conjunction in your Sun Sign occurs for the third time this year and, beginning with this date, you will have a magnificent opportunity to test your latent talents and skills. You can achieve a great deal professionally during this period if you do your best.

During November and December you will experience a release from financial pressure, and the temptation toward extravagance may be great. Do not yield to it. Rather, consolidate gains for the future and build up a cash reserve so that you may be able to take advantage of new opportunities offered early in 1954. Social and domestic affairs are favored, but romance will be of secondary importance in your life for several months.

Mr. Jerome Ranahan of Kinkora who has been a patient in the Prince County Hospital, is now convalescing at the home of his son Fred and Mrs. Ranahan at Borden.

Mr. Clive Sharpe of Moncton, is spending his holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Sharpe at Borden.

Messrs. John and Arnold Sherry of Detroit, are visiting relatives and friends in Borden and vicinity.

His many friends here regret that Mr. William Ozon is again a patient in the Prince County Hospital and hope that he will be home soon.

Mrs. Palmer Trenholm and sons Borden, Everett and Lloyd of Borden, spent the past week with relatives at Halifax.

Mr. and Mrs. Bedford MacDonald, Moncton, were week end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Jay at Borden.

The regular meeting of Borden Credit Union was held on Thursday evening at the home of the secretary, Reginald McAleer. Besides the regular business of the Credit Union, plans were made for the annual meeting and banquet which will be held next month in the basement of the United Church. The banquet, a hot turkey supper, is to be put on by the Social Club. If their efforts in the past are any criterion then this is sure to be a bang-up affair.

BURGESS BEDTIME

He was sent flying heels over head, his long hind legs kicking frantically. He landed sprawling over in the grass.

It was Johnny Chuck's turn. He could laugh at Peter now, and make fun of him. He did. You may be sure he did. And Peter didn't like being laughed at any more than Johnny Chuck did.

But the one who got the biggest laugh and the best laugh was Old Mr. Toad watching from under the big cabbage leaf. It was a silent laugh. Perhaps if you had been there watching him, you wouldn't have known he was laughing. You know, it is possible to laugh silently. It is a sort of inside laughter. "I don't know what has happened, but I guess now those two rascals will stay out of this garden," thought Old Mr. Toad.

Peter and Johnny were quarrelling, each blaming the other, and both keeping a safe distance from that fence.

Daily Dusting

YEARS of medical research sponsored by the Ontario Mining Association may have found the answer to silicosis, the disease which attacks the lungs of miners exposed to silica dust. Curiously enough, the treatment consists of breathing very fine aluminum dust directly into the lungs; the aluminum renders the silica particles harmless. The treatment has been adopted in gold and other mining areas in Canada and throughout the world.

Aluminum, long used in hospital kitchens, today serves the medical profession in many ways—from aluminum foil for covering serious burns, to aluminum acetate for medical dressings, to aluminum blenders for the preparation of sterile biological products. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan) the children you entertain, I think it can be disregarded. I would, however, make two suggestions. One, that you don't give up the companionship of your contemporaries altogether; and, two, that you try to direct your talents to more organized activity.

There is a tremendous need in most communities for people like you and your husband, who understand adolescents and are willing to work with them. If you would continue your present course, under the auspices of a church, or community club, the scope of your work could be extended to include many more teenagers, giving them all a chance to develop socially.

You might begin with a square-dancing session, then go to round dancing, putting more stress on the relationship of the youngsters to each other, rather than between them and you older people. You have a wonderful opportunity here for service among the young people of your community, but I do think a wider field is the answer to your problem rather than restriction to small groups.

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past several months I've been meeting the same boy at our church dances. He walks me home, but never asks for a regular date. Finally, he admitted the reason he doesn't call for me is that he's afraid to meet my parents. He is very shy, but my parents want to meet him, since they know about our being at the dances together.

MILLY H.

ANSWER: Talk the matter over with Mom, and see if she can't arrange a more or less casual way to meet the boy. It's not a bit uncommon for adolescent boys to be scared stiff at the prospect of meeting a girl's parents, but once the first step is taken, they get along well.

Miss Nissen cannot reply personally to readers but will answer problems of interest through this column.
