HAVE A GUESS.

Oh, wheelmen, all take my advice,
And don't forget, be sure
To take a look at the famous "Bike"
In PROWSE'S well-known Store.

The handsome Brantford Bicycle
That in their window's shown
Is as good as any in Charlottetown,
And it may be your own.

A jar in which are cents galore
Is placed where all can see;
Guess how many cents the jar contains
And the "Bike" your own will be.

Be wise, make all your purchases
At PROWSE'S Clothing Store;
Each purchase, on that Bicycle,
Will give you one chance more.

Their Carpets, Hats and Furnishings,
And all, in fact, they keep,
Compared with others in the town
Are more than quite as cheap.

The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

The Abuses of Vivisection.

Authoritative comments leave no room for doubt that the atrocious vivisection sometimes practised or suggested by pseudo-scientists is as abhorrent to physicians as to laymen. On the other hand, the utility of legitimate vivisections in promoting the welfare of the human race and the races of domesticated animals has been abundantly demonstrated, most tangibly of all, perhaps, during the past decade, in reference to brain surgery and to bacterial diseases. This being freely conceded by practically all qualified observers, it would seem that the main problem of vivisection (so long a "vexed question") is in a fair way to be worked out to the mutual satisfaction of vivisectors and their aforetime critics. But there is a subordinate phase of the subject somewhat recently presented, which one cannot regard with so much satisfaction, namely, the growing practice of vivisecting before classes of young pupils in the secular schools. Such an over-zealous application of the "scientific method" is fit to appear only in that sorry system of pedagogics which makes light of sentiment and considers the goal of education to be the acquisition of bare facts. In a broader view it must appear that such grewsome exhibitions will have a most unwholesome effect upon the mind of a child, tending to strengthen rather than to repress its selfish and cruel instincts. The child who has been taught through "scientific" demonstrations to regard a pet cat or dog as an animated machine with contracting muscles and blood-propelling heart and bile-secreting liver, instead of a living being possessed of feelings and emotions somewhat akin to its own, can never again regard the sacred mystery of life in quite the same light as before. It has gained knowledge of very doubtful value at the expense of a distinct ethical sacrifice. Far better might that child remain ignorant of the appearances of vital organs than lose its awe for the vital principle that animates them. If physiological experiments must enter into the scheme of the modern syetem of education let them at least be deferred until moral principles are firmly grounded.

THAT LITTLE KID.

When I see a little youngster
Wrapped in long and swaddling clothes,
Strapped inside his wicker carriage,
Out of sight, except his nose,
When he's left with dazzling sunlight
Torturing each blinking lid,
Then with all my heart I'm thankful
That I'm not that little kid.

When I see him in the nursery,
By the fire, warm and bright,
Playing with his toys and trinkets,
Laughing gay from morn to night;
Keeping mother, aunt and sisters
Running hither at his bid,
Lest his life should know a trouble,
Would I were that little kid!

When I watch his helpless actions
As he tries alone to walk,
When I hear his wordless prattle,
As he does his best to talk—
When I think what tiresome studies
He must have, as once we did,
Really I am very thankful
That I am not that little kid.

But—when decked with bows and ribbons,
On his "ma's" reception day,
Held by scores of budding maidens,
Loved and hugged, he hears them say,
"Let me hold him!" "Kiss me, darling!"
Pressed to scores of lips, and hid
In their arms by clouds of kisses,
Jove! I wish I were that kid!

A RETURNED EXODIAN TALKS.

A Moncton Times reporter recently had a talk with Mr. James Howell, a native of Westmorland County, who has been absent in the United States for the last nine years, but who has now returned home with his family to stay. Mr. Howell lived in the town of Potsdam, St. Lawrence Co., New York state, a place of about 5000 inhabitants. He says he saw nothing in the United States that ever made him feel like settling permanently in that country. Since returning home he has discovered that a family can live cheaper here than in Uncle Sam's territory. In addition to other household utensils he mentioned crockerware as being much cheaper here. Farmers in this country, he says, are much better off than in the section of New York state where he lived. They realize about two cents more for their beef and the ruling prices generally are more stationary. Eggs are down to nothing almost this spring. A fair price is sometimes realized for potatoes, while at other times the price is away down. Cheese is two cents a pound higher here than there. Mr. Howell lived about 30 miles from where Mr. Taylor, M. P. for Leeds, Ont., instituted inquiries recently with a view to comparing the prices in Canada and the United States. Mr. Howell noted Mr. Taylor's report and says it was correct, not a single statement being exaggerated. Speaking about wages, he says millmen where he came from were working for $1 per day and were required to labor 11½ hours at that.

THE COGHLANS MAKE UP.

(Philadelphia Item.)

The reconciliation between Charles Coghlan and his sister Rose seems to be complete. Last week Charles went to St. Louis to join his sister, who was playing there. Miss Coghlan in an interview referred to the matter as follows:

"I will speak for Charles myself. He did not come to St. Louis to join our company. He will take no part in the play we are presenting, either in St. Louis or anywhere else. Our company is to be reorganized, and we will disband after we fill at an engagement in Cincinnati next week. I intend to open at Madison Square Theatre, New, York May 18, in Charles' own play, "Checkbook," and he is here to rehearse it."

Miss Gertrude Coghlan was a silent listener to the conversation. When Gertrude was asked if her mother or Miss Kneine Beveridge accompanied her father and herself to the city, Miss Rose broke in with some agitation:

"Now, for pity's sake, for the sake of myself and for my company, don't bring up Charles' domestic troubles again. The papers of the country have told of his troubles time and time again: why not let it drop now? I will state, however, by way of explanation, that Miss Beveridge is not in St. Louis. I don't know where she is, as I never asked my brother. She may be in New York for all I know. She will not be with our company, while Charles will. I have never recognized her as my brother's wife, and I never will. Mr. Coghlan only had one wife, and that lady is still living."

Miss Beveridge, it is said, has broken with Coghlan for good, and will shortly sail for Germany, where she has an offer for next season.

In the Spring

Nearly everybody needs a good medicine. The impurities which have accumulated in the blood durin the cold months must be expelled, or when the mild days come, and the effect of bracing air is lost, the body is liable to be overcome by debility or some serious disease. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a trial. We are sure it will do you good. Read the testimonials published in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla, all from reliable, grateful people. They tell the story. .....
