An Island Girl in Trouble.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.

A decidedly pretty little girl of 15 years was arrested by officers Conboy and Whiteman just as she was taking a train for P. E. Island. Her name is Winnifred D. Dooley, and, with a recommendation from the Young Women's Christian Association, she had gone to work for Mrs. Jennie N. Southworth, of Seven Hill Avenue, on Thursday morning. That night a gold watch valued at $225, a chain worth $60, and $25 in money were missing, and so was Winnifred. She went to the Eastern Depot and spent $7 for a ticket home, and was entering the car when the officers caught her. She was taken to the station, where she admitted her guilt and gave up the property, and crying hysterically, was locked up in a cell.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Southport Ferry Officials.

SIR,—In Mondays' Patriot I notice an article from the pen of G. B. N. censuring the Southport Ferry Officials.

I happened to cross the ferry the same day, and seeing the letter in question, asked an explanation of some of the boat hands, and they gave the same reason as stated by Mr. N. in his letter: That a young man drove hastily down to the steamer on her arrival at Southport, and told them his mother had taken ill and that he was going for a doctor. Mr. Boyver, of course, as was the custom, and always has been so far as I can learn ordered that the boat should cross over at once, and of course Mr. N. was left, which under ordinary circumstances would certainly be sufficient cause to call for his letter of protest. I have frequently been left in the same way myself; but when I came to know the reason always tried to exercise humanity to say it was all right.

For a number of years past my business has taken me over the ferry on an average about twice a week, and I can conscientiously say I never saw an insult or even discourtesy offered to any who had occasion to cross; and it has frequently come to my mind that the Government or Government contractors were fortunate in their selection of men to manage their affairs, not only now, but now speaking from I am not a political standpoint, or attempting to defend the accommodation we have, which is certainly not up to my ideal; but so far as the officials are concerned, I believe I am safe in saying that no better men can be found than are now there under Government employ. If they have been in the public duty at any time, it has been in the favor, and against themselves, as they have frequently done before, and after hours, when actual necessity required it; and I have seen them even back the boat up after leaving the wharf, when there was no rush of business, to accommodate passengers who happened to be a few seconds behind time. I really think correspondents should be a little cautious before giving breath to statements, true no doubt, but calculated to prejudice those unacquainted with the facts, and tending to discourage officials who have always striven to do their best to accommodate an already exacting public.

ROBERT JENKINS, Mt. Albion, Aug. 8th, 1890.

Personal.

Hon. James Clow, Murray North, was registered at the Osborne yesterday.

A Quebec despatch says it now seems to be an accepted fact that Mr. Fitzpatrick, M. P. P. for Quebec county, will enter the Mercier cabinet as representative of the Irish Catholic minority.

Hon. W. E. Foster, of Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, is on a visit to this, his native city. Mr. Foster with his parents removed to Pictou Landing, N. S., when quite young, and for the past twenty years has made his home in Honolulu, where he is successfully engaged in business. He is a member of the Legislature of Hawaii, and is also a prominent Oddfellow, being District Deputy Grand Sir of the Order in his jurisdiction. Mr. Foster is accompanied by his wife and two sisters. With his wife he leaves for his far-off Pacific home next month.

A few days ago Queen Victoria left Osborne House for a drive to witness the yacht squadron parade at Cowes. Her carriage had to cross a steam ferry on a pontoon. A too sudden letting down of the platform on which the carriage stood caused an inrush of water, which partially submerged the pontoon. The Queen and the spectators were for a moment panic-stricken, but the pontoon soon righted and floated free. The Queen was conveyed safely to her destination.

Among the many distinguished tourists at present sojourning in the eastern part of the Province are Mr. and Mrs. Green, the former head of the firm of Andrew L. Green & Co., 37 Letitia Street, Philadelphia, Pa. They are staying at Mr. Ronald (Ned) McDonald's, East Lake, on the North Shore, within a mile and a half of East Point Light. They are both delighted with their first visit to the Island, and intend coming again next summer.

Mr. Green says that the Island far surpasses in beauty anything that he has seen on this side of the Atlantic. What between exceptionally good facilities for trout fishing, beautiful rural scenery, bracing air, kindness and hospitality of the people, P. E. Island he thinks is destined to become at no distant day the favorite summer resort of America.
