AN OLD SCORE

BY ADRIAN SERRAVALLO

COPYRIGHT, 1899, BY THE AUTHOR.

... was a brute, I know, and a fool, too, it seems. It's useless to try to expiate oneself, but at the time I heard all the things—those things in the letter—about the woman who taught that school, I believe they were true. She was dismissed afterward for misconduct. But, of course, that's nothing to the point. I can only say that I regret my action. I regretted it long ago when I saw Lionel's development. There's nothing more to be said but to beg your pardon—and go."

Olwen turned her head away. This manner of treating the subject startled her. The man's humility was utterly unexpected. She had looked for a storm of rage, a tempest of reproaches, and these would have relieved her a little, for her conscience was not altogether at rest when she thought of the way in which she had treated Maurice Harding, but it disconcerted her to be met with this acknowledgment of wrongdoing, this abasement of spirit, in the man upon whom she had tried to wreak her revenge. She wished she could relent. She wished she could say something to atone for her past bitterness. But she had gone too far. It was hardly possible for her to take back what she had said. Besides, she had remembered her wrongs for seven years and more. She had acted on meeting Harding as she had always meant to act. And how would she stultify herself by owning to a softer mood?

Still, the look of dumb misery on Harding's face troubled her. She wished she could speak of some other subject so as to lead his mind away from the proposal of marriage that he had made, but she felt that she had neither strength nor courage enough to do so. She was almost relieved when he came to a sudden stop and confronted her.

"I won't afflict you with my presence any longer," he said in his harshest voice. "I can but say I am sorry—and I'll leave the house tonight. I congratulate you, Miss Dare. You have had your revenge and you had a right to it. Fate does not always give us the chance of paying off an old score, but you are fortunate and have paid it in full—and with interest. I will wish you goodbye now. You are close to the garden gate, so you will not need a guide any farther. Good evening."

"Oh, Mr. Harding, surely you will not go like this? I—I—am sorry!"

"Sorry? After attaining your end so completely? Oh, that is impossible!" said Harding, smiling and raising his hat. And Olwen could say no more. But she did not forget the mute reproach of that pale face, with the somber eyes and the frown of pain upon the brow.

CHAPTER II.

"Harding has been called away on business," the host explained that night at dinner; "a sudden telegram—something very important, I believe. I dare say Miss Dare can tell us what it is."

When a young woman sits down and ponders over her future life, there is one all-important subject which she should not forget. In a day dream she may build castles in the air with a happy home, laughing children and a loving husband in the foreground. At that moment she may be facing death. Matrimony and motherhood hold out no happiness to the young woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism. The woman who suffers in this way will be a weak, nervous, sickly, petulant wife, an incapable mother and an unamiable hostess. Not knowing the truth, her acquaintances will not understand that she is deserving of pity rather than reproach.

Any woman may be strong and healthy in a womanly way if she will use the right remedy. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all medicines for weak and ailing women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It makes them strong, healthy and vigorous. It banishes the dangers that surround maternity. It insures a healthy baby and an ample supply of nourishment. Thousands of women who were weak, sickly, nervous invalids, are now healthy, robust wives and competent mothers of healthy children, as the result of the use of this medicine.

Mrs. John M. Conklin, of Patterson, Putnam Co., N. Y., (Box 104), writes: "I am enjoying perfect health and have since I took the last bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had falling of the internal organs, or female weakness, and flowing caused by miscarriage, and was very weak when I commenced taking your medicine."

that moment that she had not encouraged him. But it would not have been true. She stood holding her handkerchief in her small clinched hands and looking down at the fire, while Lady Diana continued her remarks.

RAILROAD....

KIDNEY A Disease Peculiar to Railroad Men, which is readily cured by

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Did it ever occur to you that most railroad men die of kidney disease?

Such is the fact, however, and the disease is known among railroaders as "railroad kidney."

The first and most marked symptom is a weak, lame and aching back. You may think at first that you are only tired; but as this trouble increases day by day, kidney disease, with all its terrors, is fast claiming you as a victim.

Mr. Geo. Cummings, for over 20 years engineer on the Grand Trunk running between Toronto and Allandale, says: "The constant duty with my work gave me excessive pains in my back, racking my kidneys. I tried several remedies until I was recommended by my friend, Mr. Dave Conley, to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Two boxes have completely cured me and I feel to-day a better man than ever. I recommend them to all my friends."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c a box, at all dealers, or Edmansons, Bat; & Co., Toronto.
