UC Presbytery Plans For Annual Conference

The Presbytery of Prince Edward Island met recently at Morell, under the chairmanship of Dr. W. A. MacQuarrie, Tryon. Rev. R. M. Pocklington of Dundas conducted the opening worship. The court was welcomed to the new church at Morell by the minister, Rev. D. MacLennan, Mount Stewart.

The treasurer, Rev. G. Wyrwas of Trinity Church, Charlottetown, gave the financial report and commended the pastoral charges for a good response to the allocation for 1962.

The court moved the name of Rev. C. R. Webber of Summerside as a nomination for president of Maritime Conference. Arrangements were made for the visit of the moderator of the United Church, Very Rev. J. Mutchmor, next fall. The executive was empowered to appoint a committee responsible.

In the absence of the president of the Presbytery Men's Association, the annual report to presbytery was read by Sidney Green. Remarks were heard from the men's field secretary, Allison MacKinnon. Mrs. David Mutch read the annual report of the presbyterial of the UCW. Dr. MacQuarrie expressed the satisfaction of the court for the fine, encouraging work of both men and women.

Rev. J. H. Tye, in nominations, proposed Rev. E. Adams, Souris, as the new chairman of presbytery, and Rev. B. Jones, Hampton, the secretary. They were unanimously elected.

In reporting for the committee of world mission Rev. D. MacLennan spoke of the coming internation al missionary conference to be held this summer. Delegates appointed were Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Webber and Rev. D. MacDonald, Alberton. Following this conference, pastoral charges are urged to avail themselves of the use of these delegates.

Rev. E. Adams reported that the sector plan was being replaced this year by a "Partnership in the Gospel" program. Delegates to the training school included Rev. R. Burns, E. Adams and D. Hamilton.

STONE BROKEN

In the report of archives, Rev. G. Elliott, York, informed the court of the unsatisfactory condition of the memorial stone marking the grave of Rev. Peter Gordon. Mr. Gordon was one of the earliest Presbyterian ministers in this area. He was ordained in Charlottetown by the Presbytery of Pictou in the year 1806, and served a wide area until his death in 1889. The stone was broken and it was found beyond repair. The matter was referred to the committee and the executive for a recommendation and the financing of the same, at the next meeting of Presbytery.

The obituary of the Rev. George Morris was read. Dr. MacQuarrie paid glowing tribute to a zealous worker in the cause of Christ in this presbytery for many years.

Rev. W. B. MacPhail, Wellington, presented for pastoral relations two calls, one to Rev. R. M. Shaw of Lockeport, N.S. to the North Bedeque charge and second to Rev. W. A. Patterson of Boulardarie, N.S., to the Margate charge. Presbytery concurred. Rev. T. J. Humphrey was granted permission to be without appointment another year to continue his work for the Bible Society.

Dr. L. P. Archibald presented for pensions the application of Dr. MacQuarrie for retirement. Appreciation of Dr. MacQuarrie's long and rich ministry in this conference was expressed. W. B. Creed in presenting the missionary and maintenance spoke of his pleasure in the increase of 19 per cent compared with this time last year.

TO BE LICENSED

Following presentation by Rev. D. MacDonald, the court approved the step of incorporating a church extension board. A set of by-laws were ratified. The committee on colleges and students reported Alexander MacLean had completed his studies for the ministry and arrangements were made to license him to preach Gospel at Trinity Church, Charlottetown, May 17.

Rev. David Hamilton reported that youth camps were now organized. Ministers were urged to concentrate on finding leadership.

Appreciation was expressed to the session of the Morell Church for hospitality and to the ladies for meals at noon and evening.

The evening session was devoted to a service of worship led by the officers of presbytery. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Allan C. Boothroyd of Sharon Church, Stellarton, N.S. The court was adjourned to meet at the annual meeting of the Maritime Conference in Sackville, N.B., June 4-9.

Egmont Bay Group Planning Small Vegetable Production

About 20 farmers in the Egmont Bay area are planning this year to grow experimental plots of carrots, beets and other small vegetables that will be washed and packaged in the area for export.

Marketing director Reid Sangster said yesterday that dealers and wholesalers have pointed out that there is a need for washed and packaged vegetables and the Egmont Bay group will "see if it can furnish the required product." He said other farmers' groups in the province are planning similar organizations.

Thursday night, Mr. Sangster and department of agriculture horticulturist William Sterns met with the group in the Egmont Bay S chool to discuss the experiment. The group felt that an existing building in the area could be used for washing and packaging and if the experiment is a success it will lead to the construction of a small processing building.

About 20 acres of experimental plots are planned this year and may be run with the co-operation of Acadia Producers of Wellington.

Heading the Egmont Bay group is Cyrus Gallant.

Hunger In World Of Plenty Puzzles United Nations Experts

By CARDINAL MacGUIGAN

One of the most puzzling questions in today's world is: How can it be that in a world where technological skill is so advanced, where progress in part of the world are bulging, and in other sections there are still vast possible sources of food supply not untapped, and where there is enormous goodwill and human compassion to do good for fellow-man — how can it be that in such a world half the human family goes hungry?

The Director-General of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and his top advisors have been puzzled by this grim picture too. But, not content to remain puzzled, they have decided to do something about it.

Two United Nations programs are complementing each other in this battle to beat the spectre of hunger.

In 1960, the World Food and Agriculture Organization launched its Freedom from Hunger Campaign. Second, the United States and Canada have instigated a revolutionary world food program. On these two programs could depend the future of democracy.

MARSHALL RESOURCES

These world food programs have been well planned in advance and have won warm endorsement from heads of governments and Pope John XXIII.

The realistic goal of the FAO is to vastly improve methods of production and distribution. Fully aware of, and probably under the pressure to "do something" about our well-known population explosion, FAO has marshalled all resources to fight this desperate hunger race with nature.

Within 10 years, the world population will reach four billion. By the end of the century, it is estimated that the world's population will be six billion. The biggest part of this population explosion will take pace in Africa, Asia, and in Latin america, where malnutrition and starvation already stalk the land.

The Director-General of the FAO sees the central problem as not over-population, but underpopulation. As India's Binay Ranjan. Sen. Director-General of FAO stated recently, "hunger is neither inevitable nor irremediable. It is within our power to bring this old affliction under control."

Certainly Mr. Sen knows whereof he speaks. When the great famine struck South Bengal in 1942, he was Director-General of Food for all India. But he was helpless to prevent deaths from starvation because although "there was sufficient food within the borders of India at the time, widespread corruption and the lack of any adequate means of distribution blocked it from the stricken areas."

FATTEN ON MISERY

One need not be cynical to realize that human corruption will always be at hand to fatten on human misery. But one is not starry-eyed, either, in holding the firm conviction that Providence has placed it within the compass of human genius to solve the problem of human hunger without recourse to immoral means.

How can we Christians, who enjoy the abundant fruits of nature in North America, turn away from Christ's words in the Gospel when He said: "For I was hungry and you fed me," Or can we ignore the clarion call of Pope John XXIII when he said recently "we have today an undeniable duty towards man, and justice and charity, to do everything possible to insure the subsistence of the undernourished people, to develop everywhere a more reasonable exploitation of the riches of the soil, for the benefit of a rapidly growing world population."

It behooves all of us to begin to reflect how we can direct public opinion towards this problem and harness the goodwill and human compassion necessary to see that the other half of the human family does not go hungry.

Scripture—Psalms 78; 105.

The psalmist named Asaph speaks and writes of the history of Israel, so that the coming generation may know God's wondrous deeds and follow Him, despite the sins of their forbears.—Psalm 78:1-8.

He recalls how God led His people out of bondage in Egypt, dividing the sea and bringing water from the rocks, making streams and raining down upon them manna, bread and fowl. —Psalm 78:12-16, 24-29.

Yet continually, despite the Lord's bounty to them, His people returned to their sinful ways, acting insincerely, rebelling against Him and even putting up graven images.—Psalm 78:32, 36, 52-53.

Continually, too, therefore, God had to punish His people, sending swarms of flies to devour them, and locusts and hail to destroy their crops.—Psalm 78:45-47.

MEMORY VERSE: — "He . . . appointed a law in Israel, which He commanded our fathers to teach their children" — Psalm 78:5

GREAT TRUTHS PASSED ON

History Of Israel Told

(Editor's note: The following material relating to tomorrow's Sunday School lesson is based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of Churches in the U.S. and is used by permission.)

By N. SPEER JONES

Some of the Psalms are what may be called historical psalms, including Psalms 104, 105, 106, 107, 108 and 78, the longest of the historical psalms. This psalm recapitulates the history of Israel from the Exodus to the union of the 12 tribes under David, although it is not done in strictly chronological order.

The great purpose in outlining such a history of Israel is made clear in verses 1-8. It is the passing on of the great truths of the religion to the next generation. If such repetition is not made periodically, any past history becomes meaningless and lost, just as the great history of Greece and Rome was lost during the Middle Ages.

This is one of the great purposes, not only of the Bible, but of the institution known as the church and that of the family. How can one make a decision or commitment about religion unless someone tells him about it? Although each individual may make his own minor variations in his beliefs, each coming generation may have the right to expect the same standard facts on which to base its beliefs.

The word parable (verse 2) finds frequent usage in the Old Testament, particularly in Psalms and Proverbs; in the New Testament Christ brings this form of teaching to perfection.

The reference (verse 2) to dark sayings simply means obscure or enigmatical sayings.

The "testimony" referred to in verse 5 means a reiteration, a repetitive witness. The "law" is meant in its simplest sense. The specific laws issued were meant especially for the people of those times; the abstention from pork, for example, was meant to avoid the disease prevalent in pork not properly processed and cooked. One germ of the great ethical law which has abiding truth for all of us, however, is to be found within the composite of all these many laws.

The rituals and customs to be followed were meant to carry meaning to the adults, in terms of periodic reminders of the truth and strength of their religion. Even more important, they were designed to provoke the questions of the young for generation, so they should learn the meaning behind these customs.

Verses 9-11 contain a rebuke to the tribe of Ephraim, one of the 12 tribes of Israel. Precisely what the rebuke is for, we do not know, except that the tribe apparently was equipped and expected to do something in battle for the nation, but turned back. It may have been their slackness in conquering Canaan, as mentioned in Judges 1. Previously Ephraim had been greatly blessed, being a standard-bearer, and producing Joseph.

The rest of the psalm deals with God's infinite patience and goodness to his chosen people, and with their incomprehensible ingratitude and sinfulness.

The reference to Zoan in verse 12 indicates a city in Egypt, greatly important as the residence of the pharaohs in the 18th and 19th dynasties.

Verse 61 refers to the capture of the Ark of the Covenant by the Philistines.

Psalm 128 outlines some of the blessings for those who follow in God's way.
