

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

AUGUST 7, 1882.

The Attack on Arabi.

Our special telegraphic news of to-day brings us the tale of some exciting work in the presence of the forces of Arabi. The British soldiers sustain their old reputation, and are highly complimented for their coolness and steadiness. Their General is a man "used to war alarms," and thoroughly conversant with military tactics. Sir Archibald Alison, Bart., is the son of the historian Alison. Sir Archibald entered the army in 1846, and went to the Crimea with the 72nd Highlanders. He took part in the operations before Sebastopol, and was present at the attack on the Redan. During the Indian mutiny he served on Lord Clive's staff, and lost his left arm at the storming of Lucknow. Sir Archibald was Brigadier in the Ashantee expedition, and did noble service at the battle of Amoaful. He was made Major-General in 1877, and Quarter-Master-General of the army in 1870.

Lascars on the Strike.

The transport ships carrying troops between England and Egypt are manned, to a great extent, by Lascars. These men are employed on most of the East Indian vessels and have often been the cause of much trouble. They are admirable workers when well led, but are untrustworthy and rebellious when storms and dangers approach. These Lascars are followers of Mahomet, and regard the war against Arabi as a war against the prophet. It is hard to believe that these poor frail specimens of humanity can care much about the fanaticism to which they cling; but the phenomenon affords another instance of the remarkable hold that religious-thought of any kind exercises over the mind of the lowest and most wretched of its devotees. The incident is one of importance to England. If these poor outcasts are rousing themselves on the side of the prophet, the Indian soldier and many of the lower castes of the Indian population may be expected to give serious trouble. Nor is the danger likely to stop there. Islam is ripe for an exciting religious movement. All eyes are expecting the Moslem prophet to appear. The intelligent classes think El Medhi to be the foretold one, who by his remarkable life and active religious aggrandizement has already effected the allegiance of over thirty millions of Mussalmans. In the present unsettled state of Egypt, it has been easy enough to propagate the religious tenets of El Medhi, and a crusade, or rather, a crescentade, has been organized and carried on with much excitement and fervour. It looks very much as if this Lascar trouble was but the beginning of the ramifying complications arising from this Egyptian campaign.

Ross and Hanlan.

The oarsmen of the day, spend much of their time in writing letters and challenges, and in submitting themselves to the tender mercies of an interviewer. At times, the battle between the rivals wages loud and long, and proves, too often, that a knowledge of rowing aggravates the snobbish spirit. Races are bought and sold; boats are martyred by being sawn asunder; oars are broken in a most mysterious way, making a square match almost an impossibility. We were present on board the umpire's steamer at one of the London Thames Club matches. Many clubs were represented by contesting boats. On board of the steamer was the trainer of one of the crews betting wildly against his own men. As these were the favorites, his bets were quickly taken. Just before his men started, he went into a small boat in order to rub them down—give them the finishing touches, as it was called. He gave them the "tip" to come in second, (that place ensuring them a position in the final heat, which they subsequently won) and on no account to come in first. The favorite crew led all the way, but when nearing the goal, one of the members dropped his oar. They came in second, and made a pretty round sum of it. That is a typical case of modern rowing, and has the advantage of being perfectly authentic. Ross and Hanlan are now being extensively advertised, and after much vituperation on both sides, Ross comes out with the following bulletin:— "I hereby challenge Edward Hanlan to row me a five mile race, two and a half miles and return, for one thousand dollars a side and the championship of the world, the race to be rowed within six weeks from the date of signing articles, and this challenge to remain open for three weeks from the 5th August. If not accepted in that time I will claim the championship of the world and be prepared to defend that title against all comers. (Signed) "WALLACE ROSS."

The Mail says the prophets are differing again on the great weather question. An American authority predicts great heat for the last week in August and the first week in September. Our own prophet says that for the last week of this month we shall have cool weather with probably frosty nights. The weather prophecy business suffers much by lack of unanimity on the part of those engaged in it. So contradictory are the weather programmes that we shall not be surprised one of these days to hear of an outraged public rising in its might and declaring its inability to believe all the predictions which all the prophets make. Of course, people like to humour the weather mongers; but everybody cannot force himself to expect that any particular day will be both sultry and frosty. The prophets should meet and agree to be bound in their weather predictions by the toss of some copper.

The correspondent of the Globe, writing from London, says:—Another Canadian Northwest Land Company has been launched on the market here. The Anglo-Canadian Land Company issued its prospectus to-day. The Company will have a capital of £500,000, divided into 50,000 shares of £10 each. Half the total stock only is placed on the market, and of this 12,500 shares are offered for subscription in Canada and the other half in England. The object of the Company as set forth in the prospectus is to invest capital in the purchase of real property in Ontario, Manitoba, and the Canadian Northwest Territories. Lord Erskine is Chairman of the Board of Provisional Directors.

The war now in progress in Egypt will not only all but ruin the natives, nearly all of whose industries were guided and supported by Europeans, who are now fleeing the country, but will seriously affect certain businesses in Europe. The export of cotton and cotton seed was the principal trade in Egypt. This has all but ceased, and the English consumers have already felt the effects of it. — Chronicle.

That P. E. Island Election.

(From the Moncton Times).

The election to fill the Murray Harbor vacancy in the Local Legislature of P. E. Island, caused by Dr. Robertson's election for the Commons, resulted in the return of Hon. Samuel Prowse, Liberal Conservative, by a majority of 105. This gives the Local Government a working majority of three or four, and is at the same time an indication of the state of public feeling in the Province. In 1879, Mr. Prowse had a majority of about 120. At the election in May last he was defeated by a considerable majority, partly the result, as his friends claimed at the time, of over-confidence. No doubt, however, the inclination to find fault with governments and government supporters, even though their general policy be approved, had something to do with bringing about Mr. Prowse's defeat. The election of Monday must be taken as an indication that the electors of Murray Harbor at least are willing to reverse their condemnation of the Liberal-Conservative party at the late election. The fate of the Local Government, it was said by its opponents, fairly depended on the success of Mr. Prowse, who is a member of the Cabinet, and if the Government had been distasteful to the majority he would certainly have been defeated. Mr. Prowse and the Local administration of P. E. Island are to be congratulated on the renewal of the confidence of the people. Their management of the affairs of the Province has been such as to excite the admiration and envy of the lovers of economy in the sister Provinces.

Briefs of Latest News.

Count De Chambord is ill of paralysis. The Conservatives defeated the Liberals at Fredericton in the cricket match. In South Park Canal, Chicago, four persons were drowned by the upsetting of a boat. The American yacht Gleam won the race at the Royal Regatta, Cowes, beating all the English yachts. At Pittsburg, Pa., a railway accident occurred. Six men were killed and thirteen others terribly injured. Manitoba is prosperous. A short time ago 900 car loads of goods were waiting for entry at the Winnipeg Custom House. The House of Lords intends to maintain the amendments to the Arrears Bill. The prospect of a settlement of the difference between the two Houses is regarded as hopeless. For the quarter ending June 30, there were 74,000 persons emigrated to the United States, against 68,000 during the corresponding quarter last year. Emigrants to Canada for the same period numbered 19,000, against 9,600 for the corresponding quarter last year. The leading article in the London Daily News says there is a possibility of a dissolution of Parliament, either by Mr. Gladstone, or, after his acceptance of office, by the Marquis of Salisbury. After attacking the House of Lords as being an unrepresentative chamber, the News says it hopes that the Lords will give way in their opposition to the Arrears of Rent Bill, and shrink from the responsibilities of obstinacy. The News declares that the country will do well to ask itself how far the existence of the House of Lords, in its present shape, is consistent with the interests of the realm. Mr. Parnell has issued an urgent whip to the Irish members of the House of Commons to oppose the amendments made in the House of Lords.

Personal.

MATTHEW ARNOLD thinks of visiting America this fall. Should he come, he intends to lecture in the principal cities. ARABI is adopting vigorous measures of coercion among the natives who fail to recognize his authority. His method with the disaffected is to shoot them and burn down their houses. The Princess Eugenie, sister of the King of Sweden, recently sold her diamonds to raise funds in order to complete a hospital in which she is interested. When visiting this hospital, after its completion, a suffering inmate wept tears of gratitude as she stood by his side, and the princess exclaimed, "Ah, now I see my diamonds again." The funeral of Mr. S. R. Warren, of Toronto, took place last week. The remains arrived from Providence, R. I., where the gentleman died. The deceased was 74 years of age, was an American by birth, and came to Montreal in 1836, and has been largely engaged in the manufacture of church organs. He was well known in the United States and Dominion as one of the best organ builders on the continent, and was the inventor of many valuable improvements and additions to the organ.

Feminine Ideas on P. O. Clerkships.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR MR. EDITOR.—A writer over the signature of "An Official," in THE EXAMINER of the 3rd instant, invites attention to that branch of the Post Office occupied by the subordinates, who have to be on duty at night, to receive and despatch mails. He tells us a bed is provided for them in one corner of the room or hall leading to the delivery room, but it is "primitive," and "in an 8 x 10 apartment," and has not the appearance of a "bed-chamber." It is wonderful, Mr. Editor, how the ideas of our young Knucks expand when once they enter the Civil Service. No more 8 x 10 rooms for them after that. Your primitive "shake-downs" won't suit their fastidious tastes any longer. Nothing will please them but a "chamber," bless you, with modern appointments in crimson and gold, no doubt, or patent spring-bottoms to rest their weary limbs on after their arduous labors. Then just think of it, after five or six weary hours selling stamps—such laborious work—or delivering letters, to say nothing of the time occupied in harmless flirtation with the pretty girls at the delivery wickets, to have to retire to a "primitive bed in an 8 x 10 room." I declare it "is quite too utterly utter." The parties who impose such duty on these hard-worked officials should be prosecuted for cruelty to animals. But worse is yet to come. These unfortunates have to make their own bed, to dust their room and offices, and still worse than all, the pious young men "are not supplied with a single chair to kneel to." I really do believe that they have to stand up to pray. Oh! Mr. Editor, did you ever hear of anything so cruel?—not even a kneeling cushion or predieu chair! How my heart bleeds for them! How many good prayers they must have said!

I have a proposition to make for their benefit, so that they can return to the more congenial chambers of their boyhood. Let them retire to their original occupations, if they had any, and let the Postmaster-General employ female clerks. We will not grumble at sweeping or dusting or keeping the place tidy. We can sell stamps or deliver letters as well as those hard-worked young men, we are satisfied with even an 8 x 10 room. When we pray we do not require a chair to kneel to, though our orisons may be brief as compared with theirs, and we will not object to even "a primitive shake down" after a hard day's labor. Yours ever, LUCY LIGHTFOOT, Charlottetown, August 5, 1882.

Religious Notes.

Rev. Dr. Rigg will write the article on "Aethiodism" in the "Encyclopaedia Britannica."

It has been stated that Canon Liddon, the eloquent preacher at St. Paul's Cathedral, and author of the well-known Bampton Lectures on the Divinity of Christ, is unwilling to accept the Bishopric of Sydney, with the Primacy of Australia and Tasmania.

There is about to be formed in Great Britain a "Green Riband" Army, composed of all members of the Roman Catholic temperance organizations throughout the kingdom. A green riband will be worn at the button-hole of each member of the army. There is already in active work a "Blue Riband" Army.

The clerical party in Naples recently mustered in force and attacked the Methodist-Episcopal Church, broke the windows, and attempted to burn the building. An excited crowd, led by a youth carrying a red and white Bourbon banner in one hand and a large knife in the other, kept up a score of terror and danger to the Protestant community for hours, the secular authorities making no sign of disapproval. This is the first fruit of the recent clerical electoral victory in that city.

The Salvation Army recently hired the Alexandra Palace and grounds for a whole day, and early in the morning took possession with banners flying. The most imposing demonstration was a "march past" at sundown on the race-course, in which a great multitude participated. One feature, to which the younger portion of the army especially had looked forward, was of necessity omitted. It had been advertised that the missionaries about to depart for India would appear in native uniform upon an elephant. The animal, however, after the Alexandra Park authorities had undertaken to execute the order, slew her keeper, and although the report of her killing a second groom had no foundation in fact, it was thought prudent not to enlist "Blind Bill" under the Salvation Army banners.

Says the N. Y. Graphic:—Arriving emigrants complain of steege abuses. Difficult to get at the rights of this matter? Some steerages for some emigrants give them better and more varied fare than ever they enjoyed before in their own country. Hot bread, tea, and coffee for breakfast; gruel for children and the sick at half-past ten a. m.; bread, meat, potatoes and pudding for dinner; tea, bread and butter for supper—very plain and very coarse to be sure, but many a European peasant lives on far less at home. A sea-sick emigrant must grumble. Besides some emigrants on some steamers have cause to grumble. Sailors washing down decks in the morning will sometimes turn the hose on one of these unfortunate passengers whether he is in the way or not. There's a list of similar insults and brutalities on some ships.

Miss Kate Pattison, who will accompany Mrs. Langtry to this country and be a prominent actress in her company, is a beautiful and vivacious young English lady belonging to a family of excellent social rank. She has already met with marked success in her chosen profession.
