Discusses Plans For New Naval Quarters

That the new accommodation for the Navy in Charlottetown would be provided sooner than originally expected, on what was known as the "Pilot" property, was intimated last evening by Lieut. Cdr. J. N. Kenny, in Petty Officer's annual mess banquet. Lt. Cdr. Kenny, who has recently returned from a visit to Hamilton and Ottawa, also informed the gathering that the plans for the new building have been on the drawing board for the past two months. In addition approval has been given to recruit personnel for the Naval Reserve in all major centres in the Province.

He urged all present to make every effort to obtain new recruits, and to increase the efficiency, as a large hearing on the justification of having new quarters. He called upon the Chief and Petty Officers to help overcome this to the best of their abilities.

Presiding over the function, which was held at Parkdale Hall, Ronald Wilson, who was ably assisted by C.P.O. Reg MacMillan, Mess Secretary. The guests introduced by the President were Lieut. Cdr. Kenny and Lieut. Leith Douglas. Capt. J. J. Connolly, who was to have been the feature guest was unable to attend due to unavoidable circumstances.

Lieut. Douglas also expressed his thanks to the Mess, and gave his appreciation to the members for the assistance and guidance he had received from the Chief and Petty Officers since his taking over the duties of Training Officer. He also welcomed any suggestions and criticism which may be offered in the future.

After the banquet a very enjoyable dance was held, with music provided by Charlie MacGregor and his orchestra.

Saskatchewan Predicts Big Boom In Minerals And Food

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan predicted Thursday it is on the threshold of a vast new expansion in mineral and food production.

It appealed to the federal government for encouragement by bolstering markets and helping to pay for huge provincial and municipal construction requirements.

The provincial CCF government, appearing before the Gordon economic commission, said Saskatchewan's wheat surplus problem may prove worrisome for some time to come, but in the next 25 years world demand for food is sure to increase.

By that time Saskatchewan may almost double food production to about $250,000,000 a year. But more dramatic were prospects of the province — Canada's bread box — doubling manufacturing to some $600,000,000 a year. And in the next five years, mineral production was expected to almost triple to $200,000,000 annually from $80,000,000 in 1955.

Indications were that Saskatchewan has one of the world's largest supplies of uranium, along with a potential of some 60,000,000,000 barrels and 18 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Its forestry was a sufficiently large to support a $60,000,000 pulp and paper industry which the government predicted will spring up by 1960 if world demand for paper continues or freight rates drop.

Walter L. Gordon, commission chairman, said it would be "foolish" to boost food production without first finding markets. He asked Meyer Brownstone, a government witness, whether the province believed production should first be increased and then markets sought or whether markets should be obtained first.

Mr. Brownstone, research director of the Saskatchewan royal commission on agriculture and rural life, agreed it would be nonsense to increase output without markets.

But more markets could be assured, he said, if the federal government took positive action to stimulate sales by barter trade, international agreements, more aid to Southeast Asia under the Colombo plan, and the provision of food gifts to the world's needy.

The commission, beginning its hearings here Thursday, was welcomed by Premier Douglas who said Saskatchewan is optimistic about the long-term prospects.

But he emphasized the growing need of the municipalities and provinces for greater federal aid to meet demands of various facilities.

Later, Agriculture Minister Nolt told the commission Saskatchewan was looking to the federal government to launch a "long-overdue" national soil conservation policy.

LAY EDUCATION PROGRAM

period of time," said Dr. Warwick. "Medical research moves forward on a broad front and the research which is being done in other fields may in all probability prove to be beneficial to the cause of cancer control."

As an example of this, Dr. Warwick cited the instance of chemical research which was conducted by Dr. Parker of Montreal in which he was able to derive a chemical in which living cells could be grown. Among these was the virus of poliomyelitis and Dr. Parker's work contributed greatly in the discovery of the Salk vaccine. "So it is that research in one field may be the means of making a discovery in another field" he said.

Dr. Warwick noted that in his travels throughout the world, the individual community, wherever it is located, is doing its part in the fight against cancer. "I am very glad to see that in this respect Prince Edward Island has not lagged behind," said the speaker.

Dr. W.J.P. MacMillan expressed disappointment that there was not a larger audience present to hear discussion on what he termed the most important meeting going on in the City. "It is concerned with the salvation of human lives," said Dr. MacMillan.

PIONEERS

Dr. MacMillan recalled the first meeting which he attended concerning the Control of Cancer in 1937, and reviewed briefly the efforts of those who had pioneered in this work. He noted that the three most important steps taken were: 1. Observation and follow-up after operations; 2. The setting up of a lay society; 3. Education of the public. In this latter connection he paid tribute to the work of the local secretary, Mr. Jim McInnis.

"People today have become more cancer conscious than ever before" said Dr. MacMillan. "The show that progress is being made in the control of the disease, he pointed out that a few years ago it was not uncommon to have a patient report with a cancerous condition from which he or she had been suffering for years. "Now it is seldom that a person will allow a condition to exist for more than two or three weeks before reporting," he said. "People have to realize that their best chance of effective treatment is in reporting early."

Dr. Temple Hooper, of the Division of Cancer Control, said that this department set up by the Department of Health had served the purpose of bringing a great many people who through lack of funds would ordinarily put off treatment. He said that most cases of skin cancer were curable and almost 100 per cent results were being experienced in first stage cancer.

Delicious refreshments were served in the staff room by the catering committee.

Stocks Of Newsprint In The U.S. Drop Sharply

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks of newsprint held by U. S. newspapers have dropped to the lowest level since June, 1933, the American Newspaper Publishers Association reported Thursday.

At the same time, The Wall Street Journal said some newspapers are considering cuts in advertising during the Christmas season in order to conserve dwindling supplies of newsprint. It said some papers have raised their advertising rates.

The ANPA reported stocks of newsprint on hand and in transit at the end of October were 27 days' supply. This is 10 days' supply under Oct. 31, 1954 and six days under Sept. 30, 1955. Many publishers like to have 30 to 60-day supply of newsprint in the heavy consumption period which precedes Christmas.

Consumption of newsprint in the U. S. in the first 10 months of 1955 rose to a record 4,165,928 tons, a gain of 8.1 per cent compared with the 3,855,296 tons in the like period last year, the ANPA said.

Figures are based on 525 U. S. newspapers, which use around three-fourths of the newsprint consumed in the country.

Cabinet Ministers Give Reports On Upper, Lower Crusts Of Life In Russia

By DAVE McINTOSH

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Canadian cabinet ministers have returned from Russia with varying accounts of Soviet life.

External Affairs Minister Pearson spent nearly all his time with the upper crust; Fisheries Minister Sinclair put in a lot of his with the lower.

While Mr. Pearson came in contact almost exclusively with the political bosses of the U. S. S. R., Mr. Sinclair was able to get back into the hinterland where he came into contact with ordinary Russians about things like prices and the state of children's teeth.

Their press conferences here in the last week—Mr. Pearson Wednesday, Mr. Sinclair Nov. 10—were as different as caviar and black bread. The former talked about the intricacies of diplomatic dealings with the Russian leaders; the latter about workday life in a Siberian fishing port.

WORKERS WANT PEACE

Nothing exhibited this difference more clearly than what the two ministers had to say about peace.

Mr. Pearson said the Soviet leaders had made it clear to him that one of their primary objectives is to break up the North Atlantic alliance. They profess to believe that the West intends to attack Russia but Mr. Pearson said he didn't know whether the really believed this.

Mr. Sinclair said the ordinary Russians talked a great deal about peace. He added:

"There's nothing phony about that when it comes from a Russian fisherman."

LEADERS "IGNORANT"

The external affairs minister told something of his meeting with Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchey—"a man who speaks with great frankness and who is not a diplomat of the old school." Khrushchey had said that the first thing Canada should do is to get out of NATO.

Mr. Pearson said the Russian leaders are "so ignorant" about the West, its processes of government and its thinking, they made no attempt to take a balanced view.

Mr. Sinclair said he was impressed with the passion for learning among the ordinary Russians. The only way they could change jobs was to advance through better education. There was a great curiosity about the West, particularly North America.

OTTAWA TRAFFIC COPS VERY BUSY

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa's traffic cops are so busy these days they have thrown traffic court into a tizzy.

A total of 480 cases were on the docket for hearing Wednesday. One ambitious officer had handed out 65 tickets, mostly for overtime parking.

The court, which doesn't meet until afternoon, faced the possibility of sitting into the evening.

"This is the worst yet," said one harried court official, eyeing the crush of policemen, lawyers and motorists struggling to get into the courtroom.

"Things are out of hand."

Junior Farmers Adopt Crest

The P.E.I. Junior Farmers Federation officially adopted a crest for all Junior Farmers' members of the province at a directors meeting held at Dept. of Agriculture, Charlottetown last night.

A leadership course of rural youth 16 to 18 years followed by an agricultural short course for all rural youth will be held at Charlottetown the latter part of December.

The meeting was presided over by President George C. MacDonald and after directors attending were Urban Laughlin Glovia Jenkins, Kathleen Dekker, Eddie Clarke, Charles Wright and George MacDonald.
