Crop Prospects in the States.

THE crop bulletin of the New England weather service for the week ending May 22, is at hand this morning. It contains the usual selected reports from correspondents in various sections of the Republic, and a good deal of valuable information as to the weather and crops is given. A perusal of the report shows that the week has been too wet and cloudy for the growth of most crops and for farm work in general over the northern part of New England; farther south it has been warmer and more sunshine has been experienced. The rainfall during the week has been from one-half to three-fourths of an inch in Northern Vermont, Northwestern New Hampshire, in extreme Southeastern Massachusetts, and in Southeastern Maine and from one and one-half to over three inches throughout the central districts. In Southeastern Maine the rain was needed and none too much fell, but generally it came on ground already filled to overflowing and served only to delay work on anything but the driest ground. In the South many potatoes have been planted, and some fields of corn, but there are many more fields to be planted yet. The grass is growing well and a good crop is promised. In the central and most favorable sections of the northern counties much plowing and some planting has been done; but in the colder towns of the northern states reports indicate that almost nothing has been done on the land. It is from one to two weeks late in all farm work although the grass is starting well, and stock has generally been turned to pasture. The response has not been very general as to the number of acres of potatoes that will probably be planted. Several correspondents in Massachusetts and Connecticut report that the acreage varies very little from year to year. A correspondent from Peabody, Mass., (Eastern part,) reports a much less acreage than usual because of the scarcity of good farm help. One man writes from Alfred, Maine, (South Western part,) that the acreage of potatoes will be less because farmers are planting more sweet corn for the cannery, and one from Caribou, Aroostook Co., Maine, says there will be a large acreage of potatoes planted.

Notes and Comments.

—The star of the Duke de Veragua has apparently sunk from sight in the United States. He is now entirely superseded by the Infante Eulalie. Columns of space seem altogether inadequate to portray her beauty and grace and princely progress through the land.

—There will likely be no less than six expeditions leave for the Arctic regions in search of the North Pole during this season, the total cost of which is estimated at something like $200,000. It is calculated that Lieutenant Peary's expedition will cost about $25,000; Nansen's, $80,000 or more; Jackson's about $40,000; and the German and Danish expeditions around $30,000 each.

—In the Quebec Morning Chronicle of the 22nd inst., appears an editorial on the proceedings of the Royal Society of Canada, whose annual session has just been concluded in Ottawa. The writer thus speaks of the Rev. Frederic E. J. Lloyd's work on Prince Edward Island: "A striking work has been sent by the Rev. F. E. J. Lloyd, of Charlottetown, entitled 'Annals of Prince Edward Island.' It is an exhaustive treatise, and Mr. Lloyd has gathered an immense amount of interesting information relating to the history of the tight little Island which is known to few."

—Changes in connection with the sealing of goods in transit through Canada from one part of the United States to another part of the United States are announced from Ottawa. The practice has hitherto prevailed for the Canadian officer to accept the American consular seal, but if that seal was broken in Canada, the Canadian officers had no authority to act in regard to it. It is now proposed that Canadian officers shall at the frontier seal cars in transit, and if the Canadian seal be broken before leaving the Dominion, then the goods will become subject to the customs law.

—A wedding present to the Princess May from Canadian women is a graceful suggestion. The Princess is to be the wife of one who, in all human probability, will occupy the throne of Great Britain some day, and a tribute of regard and loyalty from Canadians would not be amiss. It is suggested that this present take the form of one of the finest Canadian sleighs, complete with fur robes, bells, etc. There is, however, considerable objection to this article. Many persons think that it would have a tendency to foster the idea that Canada is a land of perpetual snow and ice. We trust that the ladies who are to meet in the Legislative Library this afternoon to consider the matter will not be too hasty in determining what form the gift shall assume.

—Late advices from Ottawa state that it has been learned at the Department of Agriculture that the great majority of the immigrants who are passing through Canada to the Western States are coming out on prepaid tickets—that is, they have been sent for by friends already located in the West. The prepaid system is undoubtedly the great factor in inducing immigration to the United States, and in lesser volume to Canada. Once the practice becomes generally prevalent in Manitoba and the Northwest, a great volume of immigration to Canada must result. Hundreds of Scandinavians have already arrived this spring, which shows conclusively that the Minister of the Interior was fully justified in devoting attention during the past winter to Scandinavian countries as a field from which to draw settlers.

From the Far East.

We learn from the Penang Gazette that the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Straits Settlements, East Indies, opened in Singapore on the 1st April, Bishop Thoburn presiding. The reports from the several committees showed marked and wide advance during the year. It was noted that the Anglo-Chinese school, which was opened in Singapore six years ago, had now 450 pupils, and that it had this year succeeded in obtaining the highest average of passes of any school of its grade in that city. The school in Penang, under the superintendence of the Rev. D D. Moore, had met with even greater success, having in two years reached an enrolment of 220 boys and 40 girls. Mr. Hedley Balderson, son of Hon. John Balderson, of North Wiltshire, who has been engaged in educational work and was inducted into the ministry by ordination as deacon and elder, on account of the debilitating influence of the climate has been allowed to return home for a year. We are glad to learn that notwithstanding the great heat Mr. Moore retains his usual health. The Bishop has ordered a retreat to be built in the hills, to which the missionary staff may retire for rest during the hottest season of the year. This will be of great advantage and be the means of prolonging valuable lives.

The Behring Sea Court.

SIR CHARLES RUSSELL COMPLETELY RIDDLES THE AMERICAN SIDE OF THE CASE.

In the Behring Sea arbitration on Wednesday Sir Charles Russell quoted Bayard, Blaine and others, vindicating Elliott's reputation as an expert against Phelps' sneering reference to his status as such. He discussed Carter's argument that mankind was entitled to the usufruct only of property, and that exhaustible property should be entrusted to the nation which can utilize it most efficiently for common good. Sir Charles Russell contended that this principle, if applicable to nations, involves applicability to individuals, thus reducing the theory to absurdity.

Answering Morgan, he explained that the special principles adopted by the negotiators of the Washington treaty of 1871 applied only to points then at issue, which were not covered by international law.

He dissected Carter's argument on the rights of property. The argument, he said, treated of morals and not law. He challenged the Americans to quote any authority in which moral and natural laws are cited as constituting international law. He declined to discuss the vague propositions which Carter alleged should be embodied in international law. The tribunal, he declared, could not make law. It could merely apply existing law to facts as ascertained.

Russel examined seriatim Carter's references to British decisions on the right of property in bees, rabbits, grouse, etc., arguing that in every case the decision really supports the British contention. He quoted Kent and Angell to show that the United States law gives no right of property in wild animals, and showed by copious references to French jurists that the law of France is similar.

BELKAISER.—Attention is called to the advertisement in to-day's issue of the Young Wilkes stallion, Belkaiser, standard and registered, No. 18197, standing at stables of Mr. J. D. McLeod. This horse is especially deserving of the patronage of horsemen and breeders, as his owners, in starting out, have made a most liberal offer of a premium of $150 which they will give to the owner of the first of his get trotting as low as 2 30. Belkaiser is pronounced the most highly bred horse in the Province. He comes of the great Wilkes family—a young family, numbering over 1200 performers in the 2 30 list—and what performers! All race horses of the first order. Belkaiser was sired by one of the last of George Wilkes' get, and as a sire, has surpassed the best of them when his age—ten years. Belkaiser is only three years old. Young horses have proved great sires. Hambletonian, 10, was only three years old when his great son (perhaps greatest had he lived longer), Alexander's Abdallah, 15, was foaled, and this horse sired the campaigner Goldsmith Maid winner of 332 heats from 2.30 to 2 14. The records are full of such examples. Wilkes' stock is always saleable, and joined with the blood of Dictator, sire of the dam of Nancy Hank, 2.04, it is just the goods to suit the market. Those desirous of breeding sound stock of good color, good looks and first-class bloodlines should have a look at Belkaiser.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Slate Case.

SIR,—I have read in last evening's EXAMINER Mr. Fitzgerald's deliverance as rendered by him in the Police Court room yesterday. If I remember right this is a "third offence," he having on two previous occasions deemed "it necessary" to make explanations owing to adverse proceedings in other courts.

I do not intend even to attempt to answer the legal statements made by Mr. Fitzgerald. I will leave that to be done by the lawyers when it becomes necessary. Probably the six questions that he says Judge Hodgson did not decide will then be supplemented by at least one more. It is refreshing, however, to hear from Mr. Fitzgerald himself that there are these six points yet undecided. But the prudence of his making this admission may be questioned. I do think, however, that when he was informing the public of what the Superior Court judge did not decide he might have gone further and told them on what grounds he considers that learned judge released Slate. I read in the Patriot that it was because "it clearly appears that that Magistrate had no jurisdiction." Now that my former letter has had such a beneficial effect, I will not pursue the subject further, except to say that I have made no "untruthful comments on the administration of justice," and Mr. Fitzgerald, if he wished the public to accept his statement to the contrary as conclusive, should have pointed out where the untruth was. This he has not done, but instead has made a general allegation. The administration of justice in all our courts is a matter of public concern, and as such is open as of right to criticism. As a citizen, I exercised that right, and shall do so again when occasion requires.

CITIZEN.

The Juniors Heard From.

SIR, — In this morning's Guardian some person signing himself "Spectator" writes concerning the football match — Junior Abegweits vs. P. W. College second team. Judging by "Spectator's" whine he is either a member of the last mentioned team or a student at the college. The burden of his tale of woe is that the accounts of the game in yesterday evening's papers were unfair to the P. W. C. team; that they were not heavier than the Juniors; and that they did not get a fair show. With the newspaper reports we have nothing to do; but in the matter of weight we would wish to have our say. To any spectator (except the aforesaid one) who sized up the two teams, it could not but have been apparent that the P. W. C. were the heavier. Certainly every individual member of their team was not heavier than ours; but their team on an average was. By arguing this point in the newspapers we cannot arrive at the correct weight of each team; so to settle the matter we are agreeable to arrange with the P. W. C. team to have both teams weighed. We are perfectly confident of the outcome if this be done. Even "Spectator" admits that there was a few pounds difference in weight between the teams, and that the superiority was on the side of the P. W. C. Regarding receiving a fair show, we think both teams received justice. We were quite satisfied with the treatment we received. If the P. W. C. team imagines it did not receive justice on the field, we will be only too happy to again meet the team they placed upon the field on the 24th with the same team with which we battled with them on that occasion. Surely this is a fair proposition. Before closing, I would like to remind "Spectator" that if he wishes to find out how much he doesn't know about football, he should immediately call upon either of the umpires for enlightenment. Who the "empire," of whom he speaks, may be all our boys are in complete ignorance.

A. HOGAN,
Capt. Junior Abegweits.

The Guardian Corrected.

SIR,—I was surprised, and I must say rather annoyed, at a statement made in this morning's Guardian in regard to a picnic held at Keppoch on the 24th, in which it says that Mr. Gardiner failed to come after the party in the evening. Now, this is not correct, for he did come, but was delayed by an accident to his boiler, and he had to get the tug boat William Aitken, which gave him a good deal of extra work as well as expense. I am sure all the party fully exonerate Mr. Gardiner and will all agree with me in saying that he was most kind and obliging and did all in his power to make the trip pleasant. In conclusion, I think it would be well if the Guardian made sure of the truth of its locals, especially when they tend to injure any person, as this one evidently was meant to hurt Mr. Gardiner.

THE GRAVEYARD CASE.

Welton and Randall Set Free.

ST JOHN, May 26.

C. B. Welton and Dr. Randall have been set free after seven months' imprisonment. They were dismissed on their own recognizances to appear at the next county court to answer to the other indictments against them, the amount fixed being $10,000 for each indictment. This makes $60,000 for Welton and $70,000 for Randall. There is not the slightest possibility of the matter being further prosecuted.

General Telegraphic News.

CHICAGO, May 24.—A reception was given in the Canadian building at the World's Fair to-day to the British subjects in the celebration of Queen Victoria's birthday. It was made the occasion by most of the speakers to denounce the annexation of the Dominion to the United States, and to indulge in an eulogy of the mother country, a united empire, the glory of being British subjects and of Her Majesty the Queen.

MONTREAL, May 24.—In spite of the embargo upon Canadian cattle the shipments from this port are going on apace, and, in fact, the figures for the past week exceed by 2,000 those of the week ending May 13. From the last mentioned date up to yesterday no less than 6,605 head of live stock were cleared from this port to the United Kingdom, and accepting the estimate of a well-known exporter, the value of the past week's shipments will be about $90 per head, or amounting to a sum total of $594,450. It is not probable, however, that these figures will keep up for many weeks, as there has, for several reasons, been more than the ordinary spring rush during the last three weeks. There will be eight boats taking cattle the present week against eleven last week, consequently the number of head will be less.

SALEM, Mass., May 24.—The Atlantic tannery property at South Salem, occupying over 10 acres with manufacturing buildings, was totally destroyed by fire last night. The premises were partly occupied by Poor Bros., tanners. The occupants were Reed & Vaughan, manufacturers of leather measuring machines; Lynn Glue Co. and Salem brass foundry. The total loss will reach fully $250,000. Partially covered by insurance. Help was summoned from all surrounding places.

BOSTON, May 24.—Prof. Pickering, of Harvard, was interviewed to day on the newly completed Bruce photographic telescope, which is to be sent to Areqnipa, Peru. He said that the telescope, which will make a complete sidereal map every year, is more powerful as a star finder than any other instrument in the world. Prof. Pickering also said that the new telescope marks a distinct departure in astronomy, and will enable astronomers to make many new discoveries as well as radical changes in present astronomical data.

MADRID, May 24.—Emilie Castear, for some time dictator of Spain, and for nearly 50 years conspicuous among Spanish republicans announces that he has retired from public life.
