Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Davis and family and Mrs. Davis' mother, Mrs. William Gill, were recent visitors to Five Islands, N.S., where they were guests of Mr. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis.

Mrs. Garnet Turner and family have returned to Kensington after spending a week at Central Bedeque, where they were guests of Mrs. Turner's sister, Mrs. Heath Leard and Mr. Leard.

Mrs. William Gill and her grandson, Douglas Gill, Kensington, spent a few days recently visiting Mrs. Gill's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Heath Leard, Central Bedeque.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Docherty and daughters, Terry and Barbara of Scarboro, Ont., accompanied by Mrs. Docherty's sister, Marsha Spencer and her friend Joanne MacGregor, are visiting Mr. Docherty's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Docherty, Sherwood.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Profitt, Springfield East, were Mrs. Profitt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Docherty, Sherwood, her brother, Mr. Roy Docherty, Mrs. Docherty and family, Miss Marsha Spencer and Miss Joanne MacGregor, all of Scarboro, Ont., and Miss Claris Morrow, Sherwood.

Misses Mabel MacLean and Jean Ferguson were honored by their Montague friends at a delightful shower at the Presbyterian Church Hall, gaily decorated for the occasion.

The brides-to-be were assisted in opening the gifts by Evelyn McLure and Dianne Gillis, while the accompanying goodwishes were read by Carol Rose Ann Haye MacDonald. The guest books were in charge of Marjorie Westaway and Margaret MacLean. The guests of honor expressed their appreciation for the gifts and good wishes. All joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

The program was in charge of Mrs. Elsie Watterworth. Refreshments were served by members of the Presbyterian Guild.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Alderlea Is Among "Last Outposts" Of Solitudes

We recall now the delight of this day when we came to it, pausing at the door with the handful of shingles, discards of the current piece of carpentry being carried out at the house across the lane, with which we would kindle the morning's fire.

Though but a mile from the busy Highway, we seemed at times think this farm off to itself, amid its fields and groves and woodlands, is among the lessened "last outposts" of the Island's former solitudes...

Leaving the highway at the corner, you come to it, more or less tolerantly by way of an improved clay road, and a rise of land, which, while smooth in springtime, later becomes a roughened passage because of the wear and tear of the machinery which must travel on it to reach the choice field of the farming... The highlight of the lane is the span of bridge on the stream, aldered there, where if one comes on quiet autumn days she may enjoy interesting scenes— even these days, a wild duck boating in the ripples with her lively brood! Or is not the best sight to us, when returning from aome near or farther excursion, that which, screened a bit now by willow trees, is the houses and buildings of home?

The silence of the early day is enjoyable, if you chance to come to it before another hour, an is stirring. Shy creatures of fur and feather are abroad emboldened by the quiet prevailing. This morning a young cottontail rabbit, a bonny thing was adventuring in the dew. A dainty ruby- throated hummingbird was surveying the lawn from the telephone-line above. And with a friendly grin and a "Hi! How do we find ourselves this fine morning"? the Curiosity- cat paused on the driveway, feet damp from an outing to the mill, below in the valley.

"Want me to light the fire, Ellen?" James questioned, come now to the outdoors. He too stopped to look out to the fresh new of the morning, to the cattle and the horses, enjoying the fulness of the pastures of now. Four horses, this farm, boasts at the moment: fed out of the old "young marc" born and raised on the place; the bay horse that is Paddy, upon whose back any burden of natural horse- duty rests, and the black mare, acquired this summer to be most of all a pet for the children. She is much esteemed and well cared for by them; one with Scampie, and Curiosity, and the Mama-wife that is Tabby, and her kit-cats. We have also, as a visitor, the black mare who takes home at weekend, and returns our carpenter to work in the fresh of a Monday morning. She sojourns in the near paddock, and a gentle, kind lady, is too regarded as a pet by the family.

And as we go to our round of care we remember that these days, warm and lovely, bless not only the farmers at the haying but also "the strangers within our gates"— the summer's guests Island-over, giving them sunshine and silken winds, cooling dews and purpling dusks set with a growing moon. And nice memories, we hope.

"We must speed up our haying" one of our crew said today. "Why?" another queried.

Would we not know what was in mind? Old Home Week is nearing Yes, all the bewitchment that is "The Fair."

"Ellen" James calls now from the kitchen. "have you forgotten it's lunch-time?"

Until tomorrow— Diary — Good-night.....

MR. AND MRS. WENDELL PROFIT

Charming Summer Wedding Solemnized At Park Royal

KENSINGTON — Park Royal United Church was the scene of a charming summer wedding when Myrna Sadie Docherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Docherty of Sherwood, P.E.I. Island, formerly of Harrington, was united in marriage with Wendell Herbert Profitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Profitt, Springfield East, P.E.I.

Rev. J. Henry Tye officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Baskets of pink and white peonies, and ferns decorated the church, and the guest pews were marked with miniature nosegays in pink and white. Mrs. Stanley Newman was in charge of the nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Sterling MacLeod, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" prior to the ceremony, and "The Voice that Breathed O'er Eden" during the signing of the register.

The winsome bride, given in marriage by her father wore a floor length gown of white nylon net and lace over satin. The fitted bodice of lace, trimmed with pearls and sequins, was styled with square neckline, and fastened at the back with tiny satin covered buttons. The long pointed sleeves were of lace in the same design. The bouffant skirt of nylon net featured a very deep yoke effect of lace. A tiara of stiffened lace held her two tier tulle illusion veil. She wore cultured pearl earrings and necklace, a gift of the groom, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with rose buds caught in the white ribbon streamers.

Miss Claris Morrow, a friend of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in pale blue silk chiffon over taffeta with lace jacket. She wore a matching flower headdress, and carried a nosegay of white carnations centered with blue.

The bridesmaids were Faye Docherty, sister of the bride, and Mabel Profitt, sister of the groom. Their gowns were fashioned of organza over taffeta, designed with fitted bodice featuring scooped neckline and softly gathered skirt finished in the back with a large bow. Miss Docherty wore pink with matching flower headdress and carried a nosegay of white carnations centered with pink. Miss Profitt's dress was in yellow with matching headdress and her nosegay was white with yellow.

Alden Profitt acted as best man for his brother and the ushers were William Stone, cousin of the bride, and Ian Dunning, friend of the groom.

Mrs. Docherty, mother of the bride, chose a pink linen sheath dress featuring a deeper pink brocaded full length panel, a matching hat and other accessories in white, and pinned on a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Profitt, mother of the groom, was attired in a sheath dress of silk chiffon over taffeta, in heavenly blue with white accessories and her corsage was of white carnations.

A reception for 60 guests was held at the Queen Hotel, Charlottetown, where the bride's table was centered with a three tiered cake topped with miniature bride and groom. The decor featured white lighted tapers and vases of pink and white peonies.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Hugh Lowry and the groom responded. Telegrams were read by the best man. Miss Thelma Docherty, sister of the bride, circulated the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip in Nova Scotia which included the Cabot Trail and other interesting points the bride chose a pink arnel two piece dress in linen finish with white accessories, and pinned on a corsage of white carnations.

Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered a shower at Harrington Community Hall, and later the bride and groom were honored at a community shower at the home of the groom's parents.

Before her marriage the bride was employed with the T. Eaton Co., Charlottetown. The groom is with the Department of National Defence at the RCAF Station, Summerside.

Shower Honors Newlyweds

KENSINGTON — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Profitt was the scene of a happy gathering when the community of Springfield East, tendered their son Wendell and his bride, the former Myrna Docherty, a post nuptial shower. Cousins of the groom were also among the guests on this occasion.

To the strains of the Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. Claude Barrett, Alden and Mabel Profitt escorted the newly weds to the seat of honor. The bride wore her wedding gown.

The pretty pink and white baskets were carried in by Joan Sinclair and Lena Barrett, and the ribbons were cut by Mrs. Eric Sinclair and Mrs. Gerald Mayne.

The gift cards were read by Mrs. William Thompson and Mrs. James Jollimore, and Miss Olive Moase and Mrs. John Haslam arranged the many lovely gifts on the table.

Mrs. Profitt opened the gathering, and all joined in singing "For they are Jolly Good Fellows."

Lunch was served by the women of the community.

Dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening with violin and guitar music was furnished by Raymond Gallant and a friend.

Interesting New Ways To Use Peanut Brittle

WE WERE having a long session, my wardrobe designer, Clara Johnson, and I, planning a package, complete co- ordinated wardrobe, including three formals, for my coming visits to several foreign countries of differing climates.

"Let's take a coffee break," I finally suggested.

Just as the coffee started to drip, there came a knock on the door.

"Goodies for you, Madame," chuckled a messenger, handing me a package.

In it was a big box of peanut brittle, my favorite candy, which proved a delightful coffee accompaniment, a real "double-picker-upper"!

"This peanut brittle tastes like that made in New Orleans when I lived there," Mrs. Johnson remarked. "The peanuts themselves are not hard, but pleasantly tender because they were probably steamed or boiled to remove the hulls and the molasses used in the candy has that real deep-south taste.

"Are there many bits and pieces in the bottom of the box?"

"As usual there are some," I reported, cautiously poking around.

"My children used to like them sprinkled over cereal, either cooked or dried," she remarked.

"And mine loved sundaes made with layers of vanilla ice cream and crushed peanut brittle," I recalled.

"To crush the peanut brittle, I put it in a heavy paper bag, tied the end and gently pressed the brittle with a rolling pin. A 'poly' bag could be used, if all the air was pressed out before closing it.

"Fruit cocktail topped with whipped cream and peanut brittle is a quick and eassy dessert. And a frozen peanut brittle mousse is in the gourmet class. Yet peanut brittle is very inexpensive."

Measurements level; recipe for 6

PEANUT BRITTLE MOUSSE

¾ tbsp. unflavored gelatin
2 tbsp. strong coffee
2 cups heavy cream
1 cup fine-crushed peanut brittle
Stir gelatin into coffee. Heat- stir until gelatin dissolves. Cool until tepid.

Stir into cream; then whip until stiff. Fold in peanut brittle. Pour into 6 custard cups; tray lined with waxed paper. Freeze 2 hours or more, or until firm.

Cut in squares for serving. Garnish with coarse- crushed peanut brittle.

TOMORROW'S DINNER

Miss M. Inman Is Life Member

A life membership pin and certificate were presented to Miss Myrtle Inman at the July meeting of Hampton UCW held recently at the home of Mrs. Bill Myers. The presentation was made by Mrs. George Dunsford, president, who presided during the evening.

Pantry sales were planned for the local stores during the summer.

The meeting opened with the purpose repeated, in unison. Mrs. Dunsford and Mrs. Marion Morrison presented the study portions of the program from "The Word and The Way" with scripture selections read by Mrs. Best.

Roll call was answered by 13 members and the minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Mrs. Best read a letter of thanks from Toronto for a shipment of clothing from the organization.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Falls, with Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Bud Morrison in charge of the study book, and Mrs. Charles Dunsford, Mrs. Bryer Jones and Mrs. Marion Morrison comprising the lunch committee. Roll call will be answered by the word "life" contained in a "Bible verse."

Mrs. Falls and Mrs. Bill Myers will clean the church during this month. Benediction closed the meeting.

MARY HAWORTH

Visible, Loving Behavior Key To Happy Marriage

Dear Mary Haworth: Consider the marriage that never has included spiritual love. The marriage was based on the mutual desire of the contracting parties to settle down, raise a family and lead a normal balanced life.

Having reached a psychological age for marriage, they decided to settle for something less than elusive "true" love. They hoped that the passing of time would forge a stronger bond than mere physical and material satisfaction.

But suppose time doesn't work in their favor. The marriage is humdrum and the couple have no interests in common except the welfare of offspring.

Suppose that more than a decade later the wife meets the man of her dreams and feels for him the spiritual love her marriage lacks. The feeling is mutual. Love grows. She lives for those precious moments, all too few, when they can be together.

Then suddenly the possibility of scandal brings an abrupt end to their relationship. He must place his family first; he has a tremendous sense of responsibility. Only at this hour is there an emotional display by the woman, of deep grief and pain; she who never had made any demands on him.

What next for her? That woman is me. I cannot return to a marriage that never should have been made for lack of spiritual love. I would be living a lie and I cannot feel God wants that of me.. I have sinned but I have lived to the full; life hasn't passed me by. I am putting my trust in God and hope that He will forgive me.

Meanwhile, I hope with all my heart that my husband, a really fine man, may find this same type of spiritual love, which he admits never having known, and marry again. We have reached an amicable agreement regarding shared custody of our children and believe they will fare much better away from the tension of the past several years.

I shall stress over and over again when they reach marriageable age the importance of true spiritual love in wedlock. Please print this, as it may help someone.—A.B.

Dear A.B.: In the July 1963 issue of Jubilee magazine a young theologian is discoursing brilliantly on love, in the Christian and religious sense — as a breath, so to speak, of divine life.

And in a somewhat marginal way, he sheds light on "even human love" (to use his phrase). I am hopeful that his views on that subject may help to clear up the confusion in your thinking.

In part he says: "Even human love is not merely an attitude of mind... We tend to believe that psychological terms such as 'love' and 'thought' are the names of invisible activities taking place in our minds...

"Human love is visible, though of course it can be pretended or counterfeited. It is visible in loving behavior which is not some purely external arbitrary indication of invisible love. Such (loving) behavior enters into the meaning of the word 'love.'

"The idea that love means something essentially invisible and 'spiritual' has had seriously distorting effects on our understanding of New Testament language ."

Do you get the pitch? Real or true love is loving behavior simply that. It is not an ineffable feeling of affinity for the magnetic stranger "across a crowded room." True love is never a bewitchment of the senses that lures two married persons off course, blindly in pursuit of a will-o-the-wisp that leads them into the swamps of a desolating dishonorable, guilty, sneaky, futile affair.

If you haven't consciously savored the experience of real love in your humdrum marriage, it is because you haven't known what real love is. Hence you haven't concerned yourself with making love in the absolute sense of the word.

If it isn't too late to reconstitute your marriage to your husband ("a really fine man," you say), if he would be willing to meet you halfway in trying again, I think this is the high road to a meaningful happy life for you, in the years ahead.
