French Finances.

The financial situation is the most engrossing subject at present in France. The budget commission has knocked the budget on the head; how the Minister of Finance will survive this demolition, remains to be seen. No two persons in France appear to be agreed as to the condition of the revenue, and the current debt of the nation. This indicates confusion. There is a consensus of opinion that a chronic deficiency exists; it is respecting its amount that opinion differs. M. Clarigny, in the Revue de Deux Mondes, says that since five years there exists an "effective insufficiency" of expenses over receipts. The average annual total of this deficit he estimates at 608 million francs, or £24,000,000 sterling, or more than one-fourth of the total revenue of the United Kingdom. The same high authority further states that the true floating debt of France, and whose payment is exigible at the present moment, amounts to £140,000,000 sterling, or something like two-thirds of the war indemnity paid to Germany. If to this be added the figures of M. Seignef given at the recent congress held at Bordeaux, the exports of France have been diminishing during the last ten years, at the rate of 100,000,000 francs yearly, the picture is sad. These figures, says the writer, may well cause the Budget Commission embarrassment, and the friends of France anxiety. It is plain she cannot continue this rate of expenditure, simultaneously competing with Germany, in her gigantic land army—a necessity for a continental power—and England, in her omnipotent navy and almost boundless colonies. The commission has decided to adopt an income tax, which will be about as popular as the new poll tax in Tonkin. Paying taxes, philosophers say, is what distinguishes man from all other animals. It is to be hoped that if the income tax be established, and which is still among the glorious uncertainties—though everything happens in France—the collectors will not include, as in Germany, Christmas boxes on revenue. Other financial doctors propose not to tax incomes, but capital which is not fluctuating and not personally inquisitorial.

A Bleak Home.

On the map of Iceland may be seen a speck of an island called Grimsey. It is the most northern, and consequently the coldest, of the Iceland group. Eighty-eight people—nay, more—live on it. They have tried to keep a few cows, but the winters are too hard for them. Two horses, and a few sheep with very coarse fleeces are the only animals of the kind on the island. A good minister, Peter Goodmanson, lives in this remote place. He is a poet and an astronomer, and is employed to take observations for the Meteorological Institute at Copenhagen. Once or twice a year some of the islanders visit the mainland, but the stormy seas, covered with icebergs, make the passage always dangerous. On one side of the island, which is a high precipice, countless birds build their nests, and the collecting of eggs is one chief means of living for the little settlement. Men are lit down over the face of the rocks by ropes. They wear suits thickly wadded with feathers to save themselves from being hurt on the sharp rocks. Each man carries a pole to help himself with, and a ladle for scooping up nests that he cannot reach with his hands. There is in his frock a great pocket in which he can put 150 eggs. There he works with the sea roaring beneath him. Many accidents occur and many lives are lost in this business.

About Annexation.

Those Reform orators and writers who are so fond of talking about annexation should ponder over the following remarks made by the Springfield Republican, a journal whose utterances carry great weight: "The readiness with which writers in Canada speak of annexation to the United States whenever they get into deep political waters is amazing, the assumption being that Uncle Sam has had for a long time an old-fashioned cushioned rocking chair placed upon the border all ready for a Dominion occupant. It never has occurred to any of them to think that getting out of the Dominion Confederation is one thing, and getting into the American Union quite another." Annexationists never take into account the possible unwillingness of the United States to open its arms to us, although it is a very important consideration.

The New York Mayoralty.

Whether Mr. George's presence in the field be the cause or not, the regular parties in New York have this year made a remarkably good selection of candidates for the Mayoralty. The Democrats have chosen Mr. Roosevelt, a man of national reputation, who has made his mark in the Federal legislature. The Republicans have selected Mr. Roosevelt, who is all personally that a candidate for so high an office should be. His chances of success, however, are considered problematical, and depend on the number of votes Mr. George is able to draw from the support of his Democratic opponent. This is not likely to be sufficiently large to serve the Republican's purposes.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain; and the little shrub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

"When Shall I Stop Advertising?"

Ten successful business men were asked when, in their judgment, it would do to "stop advertising." Hear their answers to "My Lord West," and take their advice:—
1st. "When population ceases to multiply and the generations that crowd on after you, and never hear of you stop coming on."
2nd. "When you have convinced everybody whose life will touch yours, that you have better goods and lower prices than they can ever get anywhere outside of your store."
3rd. "When you perceive it to be the rule that men who never advertise are outstripping their neighbors in the same line of business."
4th. "When men stop making fortunes right in your very sight, solely through the discreet use of this mighty agent."
5th. "When you can forget the words of the shrewdest and most successful business men concerning the main cause of their prosperity."
6th. "When every man has become so thoroughly a creature of habit that he will certainly buy this year where he bought last year."
7th. "When younger, and fresher and spunkier concerns in your line cease starting up and using the newspapers in telling the people how much better they can do for them than you can."
8th. "When you would rather have your own way and fall, than take advice and win."
9th. "When nobody else thinks it pays to advertise."
10th. "Judicious and persistent advertising is the keystone of success, therefore don't stop, or others will get ahead of you. And advertise in THE EXAMINER."

The Dimensions of Heaven.

And he measured the city with a reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and breadth and the height of it are equal.—Rev. xxi: 16.

Twelve thousand furlongs, 7,200,000 feet, which being cubed, 486,743,088,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the Throne of God and the Court of Heaven, and half the balance for streets, leaving a remainder of 124,198,272,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Divide this by 4,096, the cubical feet in a room 16 feet square, and there will be 30,321,843,750,000,000 rooms. We will now suppose that the world always did and always will contain 990,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts 33 1/2 years, making in all 2,970,000,000 every century, and that the world will stand 100,000 years, or 1,000 centuries, making in all 2,970,000,000,000 inhabitants. Then suppose there are 100 worlds equal to this in number of inhabitants and duration of years, making a total of 297,000,000,000,000 persons, and there would be more than 100 rooms, 16 feet square for each person.

New Use for Cattle.

A new use for cattle has been apparently found in Prussia, where a band of "smugglers" employed a cow in their attempts to avoid the tax on lace. A strong 10 months' old cow was wrapped round with a quantity of lace valued at $1,000. Over this was fitted a false skin, so ingeniously constructed as to defy detection. They passed the cow quite easily at the customs office, the man there admiring her size and beauty, some of the excise officers even offering her bread. The owners of the cow were kept in suspense, while the cow quietly strolled on, quite unconscious of the numerous whacks and pokes she received from the smugglers, who wanted to hasten her gait. However, all things have an end, and the cow was at length got out of the dangerous vicinity of the excise men, much to the relief of her owners.

A Gigantic Tower.

The final estimates for the gigantic iron tower which is to be a feature of the French exhibition of 1889 is now ready. The State will contribute 15,000,000 francs and the remaining sum of 6,000,000 francs will be furnished by the contractors, who will acquire possession of the tower for twenty years. There is still some dispute about its height. The difficulty will shortly be solved in this way—A captive balloon will be let up to the proper height and four cables, reaching down to the ground, will represent to the eye the four edges of the tower. At intervals flags will be hung to mark out the positions of the several stories.

Long Distance Telephoning.

Long distance telephoning must be set down as having suffered a crucial test when the Chinese minister at Washington talked in the Chinese language with the Chinese Consul in New York, three hundred miles away, last Sunday. The wires stood the strain and transmitted the chopstick inflections perfectly, and the Oriental diplomats were much pleased.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

Dr. J. Simond, New Orleans, La., says: "Scott's Emulsion is the finest preparation of the kind ever brought to my notice. In affections of the lungs and other wasting diseases, we may consider it our most reliable agent. In a perfectly elegant and agreeable form."

The London Standard says that Mr. Gladstone's latest contribution to the Home Rule controversy is not likely to strengthen
