

Sees Possible Leadership Shakeup In Soviet Union

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY
Associated Press News Analyst

Current developments in Poland and Hungary probably will have serious repercussions inside Russia.

They could lead to a change in the leadership of the Soviet Communist party or to a basic change in its policies, or both. In the present situation this could happen quickly. Much depends, of course, on how things go in Warsaw and Budapest and in the other East European satellite capitals, but already the post-Stalin leadership in the Kremlin has been hoisted on the horns of a most difficult dilemma.

The problem which Nikita Khrushchev and his colleagues must now decide is this: Shall they push further with a program of liberalization and "de-Stalinization" in the satellites and the Soviet Union or attempt to backtrack on this program in a big hurry? PRESSURE FOR FREEDOM

There is great danger to the Soviet Communist party in proceeding further with liberalization. The cases of Poland and Hungary demonstrate vividly that a little freedom is a dangerous thing that once a totalitarian regime begins letting up all sorts of pent-up pressures begin to exert themselves in such a way as to endanger the foundations of the regime itself.

If the Soviet Union permits liberalization and "de-Stalinization" to go any further in Poland and Hungary, both countries will shortly cease to be Soviet puppet regimes. Like Yugoslavia they will have their independence from Moscow and the Kremlin will have to deal with them, as it deals with Yugoslavia, on a completely new basis.

And this is not the end. If Poland and Hungary should defect from the Moscow orbit of communism then other satellites would be tempted to follow. Czechoslovakia is the obvious next weak link in the chain. Ultimately this sort of thing might arouse within the Soviet Union itself some of the same spirit now motivating Poles and Hungarians.

NO ROAD BACK

On the other hand, for the Kremlin to try to backtrack now on liberalization and de-Stalinization would probably be even more dangerous. Having already exposed Stalinism and discredited some of its methods, in particular the method of purge on which Stalinism rested, the Soviet leadership can hardly return to this method without exposing itself. Particularly in the satellites this could easily lead to open revolt against communism or at any rate against the Soviet Union. The whole situation could explode.

One thing is obvious. If things go badly for the Soviet Union in Poland and Hungary it would be a logical occasion for a clique of young and tough men from the ranks or from the marshals of the Soviet Army, or both, to sweep into history's ashcan most or all of the present leaders of Russia.

French Right-Winger Charges U. S. Run By "Tired Old Men"

PARIS (CP)—The United States was accused by a right-wing assembly in the French National Assembly Wednesday of putting "tired old men" at the head of its affairs.

Pierre Andre, a rightwing independent deputy led strong criticism of American foreign policy for the second consecutive day as the Assembly switched from discussing Suez to Algeria.

Referring both to the Suez dispute with Egypt and the Algerian nationalist uprising, Andre said: "It is more and more evident that the U.S. state department prefers the Arab card in the Middle East and Africa to ours."

"Our American friends have three times imposed on us tired old men—Wilson, affected by the general paralysis in 1919, Roosevelt, who returned from Yalta to his country to die, and Eisenhower, who is a sick man."

"Whatever our American friends think," he said, "Nasser's nation announced that he will seek a vote of confidence on his foreign policy as well as domestic issues next week, was mostly criticized by right wingers in the debate."
