

New York Says Farewell To General MacArthur

NEW YORK (AP)—The people of New York city and others said farewell Tuesday to General Douglas MacArthur amid a scene of martial splendor and the echoes of American wars.

The honor guard of five representing each of the U.S. armed services, stood at attention around the casket. A sea of martial tributes shimmered in the soft glow. The 7th Regiment's Rainbow Division, so named by MacArthur himself in the First World War, was represented by a red, yellow and blue flower.

Next came four clergymen, Rt. Rev. Horace B. Fong, Episcopal Bishop of New York, Rev. Terence J. Donaghy, pastor of the St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church, pastor for the MacArthur family; Francis Cardinal MacCarthy, Archbishop of New York, and Rabbi Max Schenck, president of the New York Board of Rabbis.

PRAYER INTONED
"They took places around the coffin and each intoned a prayer."

It was a grey and melancholy morning. The streets glistened after rain during the night. Veils of mist hung over the top floors of New York's skyscrapers.

The line from the street began to move through the huge front doors of the army as the public was admitted at 11 a.m. AST.

Among the thousands were men who said they had served under MacArthur in the Pacific during the Second World War.

From one man came an echo of the great controversy that broke around MacArthur after President Truman stripped him of his Far Eastern command on April 11, 1951.

STAND ADMIR'D
Said Chris Spiro, a Hackensack, N.J. insurance man, "I was in the army with him during the Second World War. Nothing is a substitute for victory."

MacArthur's broad bombing Communist Chinese bases and strong position during the Korean war in late 1950, Truman disagreed.

MacArthur's body was on view until Tuesday night. The body was taken by train to Washington where it will be in state in the Capitol on April 10.

President Johnson, representatives of Congress and many countries will pay their respects to MacArthur's memory there.

The funeral has been scheduled for Saturday morning in St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Norfolk, Va.

MacArthur himself chose Norfolk for his interment. His mother, the former Mary Mackenzie Hardy, was born, reared and educated in Norfolk.

State Secretary Proposes Gov't Increase Cultural Aid

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Lamontagne said in the Commons Tuesday he feels the government should play a larger role in promoting cultural activities, but refused to elaborate on his proposal.

Lamontagne ran into a barrage of questions from Opposition MPs as a result of his speech in Quebec City Monday when he said the government has decided to establish a committee to inquire into cultural affairs, including broadcasting.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked Lamontagne to make a statement in support of his proposal, and said the minister should make the policy statement in the House of Commons.

Mr. Lamontagne said that when the government has decided the terms of reference for the committee and its composition, an announcement will be made in the House.

"What business did the minister have to make this announcement outside the House?" asked a Conservative MP.

Mr. Lamontagne said he simply meant the government was taking a great interest in the cultural development of the country, and added "I think it quite proper for me to make that statement to those people."

"Arrangements" should be made for the committee, he said. Paul Martineau (PC) asked Lamontagne to make a statement in support of his proposal, and said the minister should make the policy statement in the House of Commons.

MATURE

(Continued From Page 1) be persons of the past, or local, or regional interests, which sometimes have impeded our progress towards maturity.

PROBLEMS OF MATURITY The Canada of the future, Mr. Gordon went on to say, is but beginning to face the responsibilities of adulthood, but facing unparalleled opportunities for growth, she also faces many difficulties and complex problems. But these problems must be faced, and the opportunities broadened by a truly mature and united Canada, a Canada that is sure of its purpose and destiny.

Again referring to the future of Canada, the CNR president said it is hoped that this country should shape her modern political and cultural institutions as to help the French Canadian preserve his language and his identity.

"Indifference to the survival of French Canada, a total indifference to the survival of Canada as a whole," he said. "On the other hand, we think that the difference on the part of the French Canadian to the survival of Canada as a whole is equally dangerous to French Canadian economic and cultural aspirations."

He said that to many neither group would do as well on its own as the two can do together. "Surely, what we should keep most prominently in mind are the things and beliefs which we hold in common, those which we share, rather than those which tend to divide us, or to lead us to controversy."

Chairman was Canadian Club president W. J. Hancock, who introduced and thanked the guest speaker.

Guest at the head table included Lieutenant-Governor W. J. MacDonald and Mrs. Macdonald, Premier W. E. Stewart and Mrs. Shaw, Mayor A. W. Gaudet and Mrs. Gaudet, Dr. Frank Macdonald and Mrs. Macdonald.
