

Stanley Park, B.C. Is Scene Of Picnic For P.E. Islanders

On July 15 a large gathering of former Prince Edward Islanders assembled in Vancouver's beautiful Stanley Park, and in a cleared area outlined with giant fir, and sweet scented pine, they held their annual picnic amid an atmosphere of peaceful beauty, where the hum of city traffic is lost in the silence of this ever-green wonderland of one thousand acres, which offers every attraction to satisfy the desires of many visitors and friends who came to enjoy a day's outing of relaxation, or perhaps delight in having a picnic as the Islanders did, and enjoyed so much.

The attendance at this gathering appears to be getting larger every summer, and it is surprising to note the number of Islanders who have drifted away from their native Province in the past and are now settled at the Pacific coast. Of them, we are very proud indeed.

Yes, it is true friendship combined with kind hospitality, and a variety of good food that really make an event of this kind worthwhile, and you never see a hungry looking person in the crowd. Not even the writer of this article, who by the way is a Scot, man, and I usually look a wee bit peaked until the day of the picnic. Then I begin to perk up.

It was a pleasant day of meeting old friends and renewing many memories of the past for everyone, and especially for those who came to Vancouver on the Overland Special, as they received a very hearty welcome from the gathering when introduced by Mr. George H. Campbell who for the second year was master of ceremonies and carried out his duties exceedingly well. After the introduction of the Overlander group, (who were Rev. R. A. and Mrs. Patterson, Cornwall; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dunning, Summerside; Mr. Fred A. Driscoll, Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. H. B. MacLeod, Kensington; Mrs. Olive (Jelly) MacDonald, O'Leary, and Miss Ina B. Phillips, Arlington), good luck and best wishes were extended to the Islanders in B.C. by Rev. Patterson, and Mr. Driscoll. Mr. Frank Woodside returned the compliments to the people in his native homeland. The highlight of Rev. Patterson's speech, and one he received loud applause for, was when he told his audience that the P.E.I. potatoes were the best on the market and he hoped that from now on everyone in B.C. would buy the Island spuds.

They repeated, "Buy them by the sack and give them to your friends as Christmas presents." There's a man who is truly a P.E.I. potato booster. Before concluding I wish on behalf of all Islanders who attended the picnic to express their sincere thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thompson, Mrs. May Allen, Mrs. Martin MacGougau, Mr. Munroe Bruce and son Clifford, for their unflinching enthusiasm in making the picnic such a success. The co-operation of this hard working group was outstanding and their earnest efforts made the picnic time very happy for Islanders and their many friends.

The following are the names of the Islanders who were present at the picnic: Mrs. Mary Allen, E. Austin, Mrs. Randolph Bennett, Mrs. A. Belts, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Birch, Mr. and Mrs. Rex Birch, Mr. and Mrs. W. Blanchard, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Blue and Bobby, Mrs. S. A. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. CPR Revenue Up MONTREAL (CP)—Net railway earnings of $4,482,805 for June, 1956, were reported Monday by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Earnings in June 1955 were $3,014,866.

Revenue for the month was $43,679,905 against expenses of $39,197,100. In June 1955 revenues amounted to $38,704,796 compared with railway expenses of $36,890,430.

In the year to date revenues were set at $242,874,499 against expenses of $227,404,122, resulting in net earnings of $15,470,376 for the first six months.

MANY HORSES
A stagecoach line in Australia in 1870 used 6,000 horses a day to haul its coaches.

Hill Conquers Niagara Rapids For Fourth Time
NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Major Lloyd Hill has conquered the Niagara River rapids a fourth time.

At 9:00 p.m. EDT Monday night, after hundreds were sure he must be dead, the 5-year-old adventurer opened the escape hatch of his stainless steel barrel and swam to the shore of the Niagara River. He had entered the swirling waters three hours earlier.

"I think that was the toughest trip I've ever made," he said afterward. "The barrel shipped about 75 gallons of water."

He made the first 2 1/2 miles of his journey down the rapids in seconds, but was then caught helplessly in the foaming water. Brained by the pounding against the sides of the barrel he decided to forego his planned journey to Queenston, eight miles further on, and swam to shore, towing his barrel behind him on a rope.

HELMET SPLIT
When he reached shore his clothes were dripping and his army crash helmet split across the top, was twisted back to front.

One of the ex-paratrooper's assistants did not escape as easily. After helping Hill into his craft at a point near the whirlpool bridge, kept secret to avoid police interference, Jack Nookes, 47, fell 100 feet down the gorge and had to be rescued by firemen.

He was taken to hospital, suffering chest injuries, a possible broken back and multiple cuts and bruises.

Hill's previous trips were in 1949, 1950 and 1954. The last one a year ago today.

DARED NIAGARA
He comes of a family known throughout Canada and the United States for its exploits on the river.

and is its only survivor.

His older brother, William (Red) Hill, was killed in an attempt to go over the falls in 1951 in a flimsy barrel made of inner tubes. Another brother, Norman (Corky) Hill, died in 1952 when a rock fell on him while he worked on the Niagara tunnel development of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

His father, William (Red) Hill Sr., died a natural death in 1942 after daring the rapids three times.

Major, his given name, and not a rank, has never gone over the falls. In 1952 he made an attempt but was hauled out by police.

After his hair-raising journey Monday night he announced plans for another try at the falls on Labor Day—in a boat.

Would Like To See French-Canadians Travel
LONDON (CP)—A young French-Canadian who set out in 1954 to see Europe in six months wound up spending two years on this side of the Atlantic—and found even that wasn't enough.

Gaston Roy, from Quebec province, decided he needed time to do some "real" travelling after his six months had passed, and used his return passage money to visit North Africa.

Hitchhiking and staying in youth hostels, he went through Nigeria, Libya, Algeria and Morocco. Once he strayed in the Casbah in Casablanca.

His favorite country was Spain. "It's wonderful there," he said. "The people are so friendly."

TELLS OF PLOT TO KILL HITLER

Twelve years after an abortive attempt to kill Adolf Hitler and free Germany from nazism, Friedrich Georgi (top), one of the plotters and now a West Berlin book publisher, reveals how a briefcase bomb wounded the Fuehrer. Placed beneath Hitler's seat at army headquarters near Rastenburg, the briefcase was moved and the target escaped with arm and leg wounds. Below is the special execution chamber, set up at the Plotzenze prison for the thousands killed or tortured when taken as suspects. A steel bar is shown equipped with meat hooks from which victims were hanged. A cement block marks spot where a guillotine stood.

RUHAMAH SCHEINFELD FRANK

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS

OUR NEAREST NEIGHBORS
Men and Women—our nearest neighbors yet so often failing in understanding and appreciation of each other. When the vacation season is over we shall go further and more deeply into the differences in their abilities and attitudes but now let us just glance at a few traits—not too complimentary ones — labelled typically "feminine".

GOSSIPING
Do women gossip more than men or is it just that men's gossip takes a direction more in tune with men's closest interests — as women's gossip does of theirs? "Too bad, too bad," says Mrs. West, "the way that man neglects his wife. Just the other day I saw him . . ."

TRICKINESS, TREACHERY
Closely akin to deception, trickiness and treachery have also been pinned on women. The man, common opinion has it, goes after what he wants in a straightforward way, while the woman would rather work indirectly, through trickery. Perhaps she must do so when there is neither respect nor understanding between her and the man — just as men themselves are honest in business and politics to the extent that mutual trust exists.

DECEPTION
Women have been accused of resorting to deception, to lying to gain their ends. And indeed, where women are entirely dependent on men, there often seems no other way to get even the most reasonable request granted. (Children in the home will seldom lie when they are sure of fair treatment.) Are men scrupulously honest in their particular department . . . business dealings with other men. And as for their relations with women! How indulgently and smugly they repeat the old proverb: "All is fair in Love (and of course, War) . . ."

THE SEXES
There are indeed differences between men and women, and traits characteristic of each sex that seem inherent. We touched on higher verbal fluency in women; greater mechanical and mathematical ability in men. But such traits as the above (vanity, deception etc.) are clearly common to both, taking a form arising from the special interests of each. It seems likely — and desirable that home and children will always be woman's chief interest, their support man's chief interest and responsibility. But the bounds of the home stretch wide and far nowadays. The special domain of men and women touch more and more. Some day there will be no flattering labels attached to the traits of either. There will be understanding between the sexes.
