Agriculture's Long, Long Road

There is an old French saying to the effect that "the more things change the more they are the same." That thought is underlined anew each year on the Island with the advent of the plowing match season. No sharper reminder of its meaning could be offered than by the Provincial Plowing Match and Agricultural Fair which opens its two-day run at Dundas tomorrow.

The procedures of farming, of course, change enormously over the years, as mechanization plays an ever increasing part. Yet good plowing remains, as always, the fundamental feature, the starting place, of successful farming, no matter what methods of accomplishing that good plowing are employed.

A look back over the long, long road agriculture has travelled is provided by these pictures taken at last year's Provincial Plowing Match.

There was a time (in many parts of Canada, even if not on the Island) when oxen were the symbol of good plowing. Then came the long reign of the horse. Now the sway of the tractor has become almost complete.

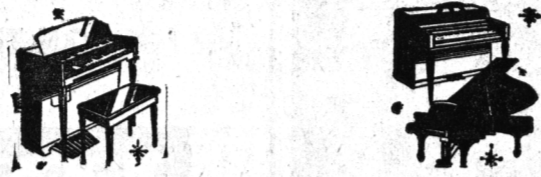

But always the goal has remained unchanged—good plowing.

Agriculture Minister Cullen, as he attended last week's Prince County Plowing Match near Knutsford, remarked that good plowing always was the essence of good farming and that there was need to strive after skill with the tractor plow. Those who did not compete, he observed, could learn by watching.

It is in that spirit that interest in the Dundas event tomorrow and Thursday is expected to reach a new peak. Agriculture both goes back to its beginnings and looks to its future as it stages these competitions in the cause of good plowing.
