Appears Planned 'Average Voter'

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP)—The Conservative party will hold a 1,500-delegate annual meeting here next February and embark on an intensive study of Conservative policy relating to fundamental Canadian issues.

The announcements were made Saturday by President Eric Chambers of Montreal after a two-day meeting of the 120-member national executive of the party.

The executive gave Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker a standing ovation Saturday after a 90-minute speech in which he declared he expects to win a new mandate as party leader at the February meeting and will make his pitch to "average voters" in the next general election, whenever it is held.

The annual meeting, which may draw another 1,500 guests and observers in addition to accredited delegates, will be held in Ottawa Feb. 25, 1964.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked that the meeting be held as early as possible and the date of the meeting selected to fit available hotel space.

The executive also appointed most members of a 21-member resolutions committee, which will meet one month before the annual meeting to study policy proposals sent in by constituency associations. Four members of the committee members represented the provinces and territories and the remainder are to be chosen from the executive and parliamentary representatives in the Commons and Senate.

An official said the committee will make the following changes:

Mr. Diefenbaker's appearance at the closed executive meeting will be advised by chief parliamentary lieutenant Gordon G. Churchill, former defence minister, to chief reporters.

RUSSIAN SURPRISE
The Liberals' only managed to make the Russian sale because the Russians surprised them by coming over here and asking for it, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Nikita Claims Russians Not In Moon Race

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has announced that the Soviet Union is not in the man-on-the-moon race and wished the United States good luck in its attempt to send an astronaut to the moon by 1970.

The Soviet leader also said the Kremlin would halt negotiations to buy American wheat if the U.S. put what he called "discriminatory conditions" on the sale.

He admitted, however, that the Soviet Union is in grave agricultural difficulties and some observers saw a link between this and what appeared to be a reduction in the Soviet space program.

Khrushchev's remarks—published by the government newspaper Tass—did not indicate the Soviet Union has thrown in the towel.

He said at the present time we are not planning flights of cosmonauts to the moon. Soviet scientists are working on this problem. They are studying it precisely as a scientific problem and they are conducting the necessary research."

Mollenhoff said: "If the investigation brings out the facts as reported to Williams and to federal real investigative agencies, the testimony could rock Washington in much the same way as the Profumo scandal rocked London last summer."

Mollenhoff also appears in a special issue of the magazine "The New Yorker" which goes before the U.S. Senate hearings committee, which is examining allegations of improper conduct by certain Senate employees.
