Utilizing Crows. A Pennsylvania farmer has turned the crows to good account. He makes them allies in his work. Writing to the American Agriculturist he says:—"For the past five seasons I have, just before I expected my corn up, sowed on the field about a quart of corn to each acre, and repeated the operation as often as necessary, until the corn was so large that the crows could not pull it up. If the corn is soaked until tender, they prefer picking what they want to eat from the surface rather than to pull the young plants to get it. The cost of the corn thus sown is but a trifle; and as a result I have a great number of crows almost constantly on my corn-field, and after they have been satisfied with corn, they will still pick up all the insects, grubs and cut-worms they can find, as a desert. In raising fifty acres of corn since adopting this plan, I have not lost a hundred stalks by crows and cut-worms combined."

An Indian Sun Dance. At the Science Congress, at Montreal, Miss Fletcher read a very interesting paper, descriptive of the Indian Sun Dance. In the description occurs the following:—"The sacred tree was cut down by women, not touched by the hands, and carried to its destination, accompanied with great merriment and ceremony. The most remarkable part of the progress is the terrific charge of 4,000 warriors across the plain to purify it. The tree is now dressed for its functions, properly anointed and set in its place. The women carpet the ground near the pole with calico, a female child in the midst. A crier proclaims the gifts and they are distributed, first being thrown over the child. A circle is now drawn and a brush arbor constructed. The children's ears are pierced with great ceremony, and nearly 1,000 horses given away. On the sixth day at noon the sun-dancers commenced their imposing procession, complete silence being enforced. The hallowed symbols are

CUT OFF THE BACK LEGS OF YOUR CHAIRS. I will tell you a secret worth knowing. A thousand, not worth half as much, have been patented and elevated into a business. It is this: If you cut off the back legs of your chairs, so that the back part of the seat shall be two inches lower than the front part, it will greatly relieve the fatigue of sitting and keep your spine in much better shape. The principal fatigue in sitting comes from your sliding forward, and thus straining the ligaments and muscles in the small of the back. The expediency I have advised will obviate this tendency, and, as I have suggested, add greatly to the comfort and healthfulness of the sitting posture. The front edge of a chair should not be more than fifteen inches high for the average man, nor more than fourteen for the average woman. The average chair is now seventeen inches high, for all which no amount of slanting in the seat can make comfortable.

HOT MILK AS A RESTORATIVE.—Milk that is heated to much about 100 degrees Fahrenheit loses for the time a degree of its sweetness and its density; but no one fatigued by over exertion of body and mind, who has ever experienced the reviving influence of a hot tumbler of this beverage, heated as hot as it can be sipped, will willingly forego a resort to it because of its having been rendered somewhat less acceptable to the palate. The promptness with which its cordial influence is felt is somewhat surprising. Some portions of it seem to be digested and appropriated almost immediately; and many who think they need alcoholic stimulants when exhausted by labor of brain or body will find in this simple draught an equivalent that shall be abundantly satisfying and more enduring in its effects.—Phrenological Journal.

HAZEL, the champion walker of the world sailed to a New York reporter in the course of conversation: "St. Jacobs Oil is a wonderful medicine; I do not know what pedestrians would do without it, for it is their best friend. A rub of St. Jacobs after leaving the track makes a new man of one and fits him again for the contest."
