ALEX. SMITH, a carter, of Belleville, Ont., was returning from work on the 1st inst., and placing his little four-year-old boy on the horse's back, led the animal with a halter. The horse turned suddenly and the boy fell off its back, striking on his temple. He died within a few minutes.

THE Fredericton correspondent of the St. John Telegraph reports that a valuable Prince Edward island horse, said to be the best work-horse in the city, died in the engine house on King street on Friday. The teamster, Mr. Virtue, was disabled by a kick from the beast while attending the dying animal in its last moments.

MICHAEL RING, a laborer in the employ of Mr. Shea, of Grafton, near Woodstock, N. B., was working alone on Saturday last in a sand pit on Mr. Shea's farm. A teamster from Woodstock left the pit with a load about noon and left Ring at work in it. When he returned in about two hours afterwards he found the pit caved in. On excavation, the dead body of Ring was found in it, being covered with over four feet of earth. Ring was an aged man and unmarried.

Two young vagrants, Brown and Smith, aged twelve and six respectively, appeared at the Stipendiary Magistrate's Court to-day. Brown was arrested for larceny, and the only charge against Smith was that he had no place of refuge. Brown was ordered to leave the city and remain away until Christmas, and Smith was dismissed. It is a pity the province cannot afford some place where young vagrants and waifs such as these could be trained and made good members of society.

WE contracted to insert Mack's Magnetic Medicine because we were assured that the firm was composed of reliable and honorable gentlemen, and also, because the medicine was recommended as being all and more than the advertisement claimed. We are informed by druggists that it is the best selling article they have, and that it gives satisfaction to their customers. Sold in Charlottetown at Apothecaries Hall. See advertisement in another column. [sep3 1w wkly]

THE body of an unknown man was found dead on the track of the Grand Trunk Railway at Cardinal, Ont., on the 1st inst. The body was badly mangled. On the waistband of his pants and on the inside of his cap was the name H. Wilson. He wore a navy blue shirt with a white star on each corner of the collar; hair dark and close cut; brown eyes. On the right arm there is tattooed the figure of a Highlander, with a figure about five inches long. An inquest was held and the jury returned a verdict of death, cause unknown.

BELLEVUE MINES.—The St. John Telegraph says:—"The operations of the diamond borer at the Bellevue Albertine Mines are proceeding rapidly, and with good prospects of success. The indications, it is said, are all favorable for the discovery of a deposit of Albertine. The shaft is now down about 150 feet. Some Albertine has already been found, but not in large enough quantities to pay for working. If a large deposit is struck, the mine will prove a bonanza to the plucky people who are developing it. The company's stock, which has not been considered as worth much, would, in such an event, be worth more than par. It is Albertine is found in quantities, somebody is going to make a lot of money."

ANYONE wishing to see a good machine at work should endeavor to see the Toronto Cord Binder—a self-binding mowing machine. The writer was present at a trial of this machine in a field owned by Owen Connolly, Esq., and was surprised to find that, in grain very much broken down, such good work could be performed. In this machine there is a very complete arrangement for packing the sheaf, by which each sheaf is made compact and of a regular size, tied securely, and separated from each other. This packing, and overcomes a difficulty long felt in connection with self-binding machines. Farmers feeling the difficulty of procuring help in the harvest season can save some hands by procuring one of these labor-saving machines from Messrs. Gill & Kinsman, who were the agents for it in his Province.

Telegraph Notes.

An impression has gone abroad that the Queen has practically disgraced the new Duke of Marlborough by refusing to admit him to her presence to deliver up the insignia of the garter which his father wore, and which his successor, according to custom, delivers to the sovereign. He has been told that he may leave the things with the Lord Chamberlain.

The Sun's London despatch says the systematic repression of the Jews in Southern Russia becomes daily more manifest and is evidently designed to effect their commercial extinction. The latest measure adopted by the administration of the provinces forbids the Jews from carrying on the business of distilling and retailing liquors. As this lucrative business is almost wholly in the hands of Jews, the force of the blow will be readily appreciated.

The Marquis of Ripon, Governor-General of British India, has sent his agents to Bantam to ascertain the extent of the calamity in Java and neighboring islands caused by the recent volcanic disturbances. Ships have been sent to warn vessels approaching the Strait of Sunda of the dangers of navigation. A committee with the Prince of Orange at its head, has been formed at the Hague to collect subscriptions toward the relief of the sufferers by the calamity.

Advices from Hayti state the insurgents are gaining ground. The Government forces under Gen. Solomon are surrounded at Petit Goave, only 40 miles from Port au Prince. Ex-British Vice-Consul Wyndham, in command of Solomon's artillery in front of Miragoane, has been badly wounded. At Port au Prince, Gen. Boyer Bazelaiz, commander-in-chief of the rebels, is expected to appear at any moment. All indications point to the early flight of President Solomon and to the conclusion of the insurrection that has lasted six months.

Cetewayo has become scornful and blames the English Government for his troubles, and refuses to abide any longer by their advice; but, at the same time, he demands their protection. Cetewayo's enemies charge England with creating anarchy by sending Cetewayo back. They demand that England treat Cetewayo as a public disturber. Transvaal Boers are hardly less insolent, but there will be no change of laissez faire policy of the Colonial office till the Boer mission arrives in October. Meanwhile the indications are of a coming struggle between the Dutch and natives. Cetewayo is credited with making private overtures to the Boers.

The New York Tribune's London special of the 2nd says Sir Stafford Northcote protests that he is not ill, thereby seeking to dispel the rumors of his intended resignation. The Conservatives continue to discuss the relations between the Duke of Richmond and the Marquis of Salisbury. The closing hours of the Parliamentary session revealed remarkable divergencies in that quarter. A suspicion prevails that the leadership may ultimately pass from the Marquis of Salisbury's hands. Three years of experience has shown to moderate Tories that the Duke of Richmond is more trustworthy than the Marquis of Salisbury.

The New York Herald's Vienna special of the 2nd, says the interview between the Emperor and Comte de Paris lasted half an hour and was of the most cordial character. As the Emperor took his leave the Comte was about to descend one step of the stairway, thereby meaning to indicate that he considered himself as merely the heir to the monarchy and not as sovereign or pretender. This the Emperor adroitly prevented by quickly re-mounting the step and, holding the Comte cordially but firmly by the hand, he bowed, and turning upon his heel, rapidly withdrew. When the Comte, on returning the visit, drove through the gateway, attended by the Orleans Prince, wearing the order of the golden fleece, trumpets and drums sounded the Hapsburg royal salute. The cavalry and infantry under Prince of Thurn and Taxis, presented their arms and the Imperial standards were lowered to the ground. The visit lasted about half an hour when the Comte withdrew. The troops rendered the same honors as on his arrival. English opinion in regard to Comte de Paris' opportunities is most favorable. It is known that a substantial section of the Republicans, wearied of enterprises of the Challemeil-Lacours school, would welcome Comte de Paris as the next President. The French are already displaying signs of irritation concerning concessions respecting Madagascar. There are likewise indications of anxiety to terminate the Tonquin enterprise. They are beginning to question the value of a treaty with a pretender and to reckon the cost of maintaining a protectorate over Annam and Tonquin by force majeure. These symptoms of public uneasiness, touching the restless policy of men in office, improve the Comte de Paris' prospects. Everybody admits that the Comte will refuse the white flag and absolutist principles. He may even have to check the royalist agitations, for his known temperament and the declaration of the Orleanist press, indicate his intention to await an expression of public opinion. The recent foreign aggressions of the French Government would make a moderate chief like the Comte de Paris acceptable to England and Germany. The acceptance of his presidency is more uncertain, but the German press anticipate the possibility of his election.
