Coco-Cola - -

is more than a nicely flavored syrup, as it contains, to a remarkable degree, the tonic properties of the wonderful Erythroxylon Coca plant of South America, which has a worldwide reputation for sustaining the vital power under conditions of extraordinary fatigue, and affords prompt relief from mental and physical exhaustion and nervous prostration. As a nerve stimulant, Coca has been used by the natives of Peru and Bolivia from the earliest times. Its use produces a gentle excitant effect like coffee, but this condition is not followed by any feelings of labor or depression. Coca-Cola contains also the extract from the African Cola, but which is esteemed throughout the world for its stimulating, enlivening and reviving properties. This forms one of the choicest, most desirable and efficacious tonic and remedial combinations possible.
