

Peticodiac Couple Observes 40th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harley White of Peticodiac, N.B., celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on Saturday, January 8, 1966. Mrs. White is the former Ella Ings, only sister of Earle Ings, Mt. Herbert. Married in Toronto, Mr. White is from Aymer, Ont., a graduate of Cornell University in biology. He taught at the University of Toronto and was transferred to the Biological Station at St. Andrews, N.B., where his research work was carried out in various streams in the Maritimes. Mr. White is well known and has written many books on his work. An afternoon tea was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Don Mann for the couple with Mrs. E. W. Woodruff of Charlottetown P. E. I. pouring. Serving were: Mrs. Owen Gilmore, Peticodiac; Ms. Steward Mann, and Mrs. Kendrick Gordon of Moncton, and Mrs. John Couillard, Aulac. Mrs. John Harris, Moncton and Mrs. Dr. Melish, Peticodiac, were replenishers, and Mrs. Edson, Drake, Millview, P. E. I. circulated the guest book. In the evening a buffet supper for friends and relatives was held and music was supplied by Mrs. E. Woodruff and Mr. and Mrs. A. Bannister. Flowers, gifts and congratulatory telegrams were received by Mr. and Mrs. White on this happy occasion. Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Edson, Drake, Mrs. Bert Drake and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Woodruff, all of P. E. I.; Capt. A. E. Calder, St. Andrews, N.B.; and Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Wood, Moncton and England.

MARY HAWORTH

Mother Troubled By Girl Who Would Like To Rebel

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been married happily for 24 years. I have been on my own since age 17, and my husband and I have worked for everything we have. We have weathered many storms and have two children, a daughter, 21, and a son, 15, the latter, an all-around boy. The girl is the problem. Judith is very pretty, very refined, has excellent moral values and wants to give happiness to others. But she is very stupid, though not dull. And she dislikes dull people, therefore is always struggling to keep up with better minds. She had so much difficulty getting through school that I made few demands on her, consequently she is lazy, though not slovenly. Eventually she completed her secondary schooling and had a year at finishing school. At present she is employed in my husband's firm, where she functions poorly but very conscientiously. Currently she has two beaux. One, reared in an orphanage, now in the service, aiming at college, says he loves her and wants her to date only him. The other, of very good family, is also interested, but less ardently. Judith says she dates him only to please me. I think she would like to date both, but fears losing one. I find her terribly trying at present. She has an embarrassing itchy rash—and is driving me crazy. She wants to be self-sufficient and break away but is afraid to, and hates herself and us for that reason. I worry about her. How is she ever going to stand on her own feet socially and job-wise? How is she ever going to get and keep a husband and be a good wife? I would like her to live by herself but I can't kick her out, though I am sick of all the commotion she creates. What kind of work can I guide her into? I think she's good at physical therapy, as she has compassion and often the boys who flock to her have problems with their families, or social problems. But how can she become a therapist without college credentials? The strange thing is, despite not being smart, she has lots of good sense, in some ways. She never has brought home a boy who wasn't decent, ambitious, clean-cut and generally nice. Very truly yours, R. K.

DEAR R. K.: Here is your story, cut to a fragment, omitting details of Judith's emotional breakdown at age 8, and the counselling care that you and she shared for some years thereafter. Omitted also are references to the family's two career assignments overseas, the first of which, coinciding with the birth of your son and Judith's first year in school, apparently contributed to her emotional breakdown. Also omitted is your report on Judith's characteristic total concentration of worshipful interest on the boy who currently takes her fancy, which first intoxicates the lad, then evokes a marriage proposal and later bores him into a chain of heart. As I get the picture, over all, it was Judith's misfortune, and yours that she was born to a mother whom she disappoints. She just doesn't correspond to your mental image of what your daughter should be, to satisfy start-from-scratch hunger for exceptional social achievement to be realized through her—or, rather, through both your children, their marriages, offspring, and so on. Judith is what she is, in the sense of embodying her own in-born personality potential, differing individually from yours, as indeed from everyone else's. Evidently she isn't endowed with your special cutting edge, in aiming at fulfillment. And in your well-meant efforts to mold her nearer to your heart's desire, or to your concept of the essentials, it seems you've trampled, discouraged and confused her signals, so to speak, as regards becoming the true-to-self individual she was equipped to be. As matters stand, Judith's greatest hope of recovering psychological balance, is to be gently released, with your blessings, and without fear on her part or yours, from the demoralizing pressure of your erstwhile drive to propel her towards goals you've wanted for her. At 21, Judith is still young enough to profit from such deliverance, rightly effected. And to bring it to pass, you must have first hand intensive psychoanalytic counselling help. M. H. Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interviews. Write her in care of the Guardian.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

York Pt. WI Views Slides On Sheltered Work Shop

Mrs. John McKinley was hostess to the January meeting of York Point WI when roll call was answered with an article for the USC. All committees gave satisfactory reports. A paper was read from the Institute branch asking members to vote on "Jury duty for women." The results were in favor of women jurors. A lively discussion followed. It was decided to invite the handicraft van to give a course to the members late in March. Highlight of the evening's program was a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McDonald of Charlottetown who showed slides on their work at the Sheltered Work Shop for retarded persons. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Harold Thorne. An auction sale of food will be conducted and roll call will be answered with a Valentine verse. Food committee will be Mrs. Howard McPhail, Mrs. Stanley Murchison and Mrs. Garrett Pater.

Highfield WI

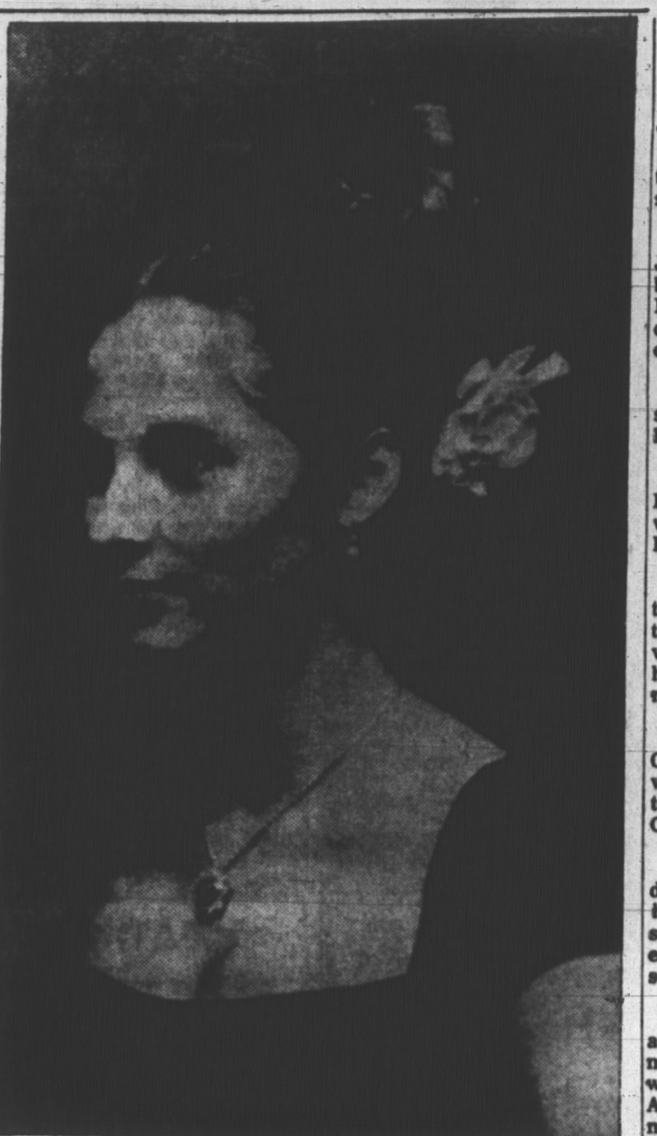

Mrs. Hammond Sanderson was hostess to Highfield Women's Institute for their January meeting. The meeting opened by singing the Institute Ode followed by the Song of Peace read by the president, Mrs. Chalmers Newson. Members answered roll call with a favourite household chore. Mrs. Clayton Stevenson reported sending a plant to a member of the community who has been hospitalized for some time. Shut-ins were also remembered at Christmas and a letter was read from CMHA in appreciation for donations sent to Riverside Hospital patients. It was decided to continue card parties in the hall with a tournament starting the following Monday night. The program on Health and Safety was conducted by Mrs. Reg Butler and Mrs. James Good. Names of secret pairs were revealed and new ones were given for the coming year. The February meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Reg Butler. The food committee will be Mrs. John Holroyd, Mrs. Keir Ford, Mrs. Errol Wood and Mrs. James Good. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the lunch committee.

Auxiliary Of Lion's Band Reorganizes

Eric Jessome, chairman of the band committee of the Kensington Lions Club, presided at a meeting of the auxiliary to the Kensington Lions Regional High School Band, held recently. Mr. Jessome told the meeting, which was comparatively well attended, that the parents had been showing so little interest in the Auxiliary it might be better to disband. In that case the small fee now paid for each child would have to be increased. When a vote was taken, the majority were in favor of reorganizing and officers were elected. Meetings will be held on the first Monday of each month at 7 p.m. The chairman voiced appreciation to the retiring officers: the president, Mrs. David I. McInnis; the secretary, Mrs. Gerald Lockhart and the treasurer, Mrs. Leaman Casey for their faithful work in the auxiliary. Following are the newly elected officers: president, Sheldon Cameron; 1st vice president, Mrs. Bruce Howard; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Crawford Picketts; 3rd vice president, Mrs. John MacNutt; secretary, Mrs. Robert Caruthers; treasurer, Mrs. Hubert Murphy; directors, Mrs. David McInnis, Mrs. Mas Sullivan, Mrs. Leaman Casey and Mrs. Wallace Thompson. SERVICE DATES BACK Thomas Cook of England organized his first tour to Europe in 1863.

MRS. CARTER BURDEN

Newcomer Is Chosen First Among Best-Dressed Women

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy was named to the Fashion Hall of Fame Thursday, but her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, who often shared honors with her on the annual best-dressed lists, missed out in the 1965 lineup. The announcement of the 1965 international list of best-dressed women in the world gave the No. 1 position, customarily held by Mrs. Kennedy, to Mrs. Carter Burden, 22, of New York. Mrs. Burden is the wife of a Columbia University law student and daughter of Mrs. William Paley, herself a member of the Fashion Hall of Fame. The list, primarily made up of members of wealthy, socially prominent families, also included Barbra Streisand, Brooklyn-born actress and singer who in leaner days wore thrift-shop clothes. She was cited for "extraordinary individuality plus infallible fashion instinct." NEW ONES NAMED The elevation of Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of the U.S. president, and five others—including her friend, Mrs. Charles Wrightsman of New York and NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—A Russian plane arrived here Thursday with $11,000 worth of food donated by the Russian Red Cross to aid famine victims in Kenya, where drought has ruined the corn crop.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS BRONCHIAL COUGH, ASTHMA

Do you cough, cough, cough night and day because of bronchial irritation caused by tightly-packed phlegm in your bronchial tubes? Do you gasp for breath, wheeze and cough no matter how hard you try to get your proper rest? Then here is GOOD NEWS for you from Mrs. G. Schofield, 75 Moore Street, Toronto. I have been subject to chronic bronchitis which made me cough and gasp for breath. I also get asthmatic attacks in damp weather. I am thankful to say I have found BAZ-MAH capsules which are quick and satisfactory relief from my suffering. I recommend BAZ-MAH capsules to my friends. You can get this same satisfactory relief. Get BAZ-MAH capsules from your druggist, 50¢ and $1.50. For children get BAZ-MAH Gummies. 7-6-66

COLD WELCOME

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gruza received a cold welcome when she arrived in the world recently. Her parents started out for hospital but their truck became snowbound during a blizzard near their home at Prudhomme, Sask. While Mr. Gruza sought help, the baby was born in the unheated truck. Both the 24-year-old mother and baby were unharmed.

ELLEN'S DIARY

One Of January's Gifts Is More Daylight Hours

Notwithstanding the accepted meaning of its name, we fancy January is a lovely lady, fair as to tresses, eyes blue as the winter's sunniest of skies, and gowned naturally in a flowing robe of sparkling white. Her tress is set richly with diamonds and how they scintillate in the sun or moonlight! Among the gifts she bears to us farm-folks is that of steadily increasing daylight hours. "Once the days lengthen a bit, Ellen" James commented, reaching out to a switch on arising, "we shan't be needing any lights in the morning." I hope he added, on another thought, "things go well with us today." Because the younger farmer was to leave early in company of another Island stockman, to attend a meeting on the Mainland in connection with that line of husbandry, the increased choring would fall on the leasened staff, remaining. How busy, and all in all, happy, as it turned out, the day was. "I can't for the life of me understand, Ellen, how you can content yourself to sit knitting there in a rockingchair on such a busy day as this," James said, come by at mid-afternoon for a coffee-break of sorts, and also to take stock of the time. "Remember, Nero, the Roman Emperor?

er? He didn't even knit during a fateful day. He, so history has it, fiddled while his greatest city burned!" we chuckled. James shook his head in a show of despair, grinned, and returned a robe to the stables. "I'd advise you to stay indoors one of the little lads smiled. "If they as much as catch a glimpse of you outdoors, he or Mack will think up something for you to do!" I know," he nodded. "We got caught that way when we were feeding the rabbit this morning." And the sunshine that filled the valley was all golden against the snow, except where it was traced in blue shadows. Pleasant the day, and pleasant too the week has been, though not without some storm-ginds and blown drifts along the fields. Not without its losses and crosses, its disappointments, its hope deferred, and regrets. "Yet when he stop to consider things, it's the queer day we Islanders can't find something for which to be grateful!" a farmwife said when we chatted of this today, "something for which we can bless the Lord." Like, we thought humbly, "Oh Daddy Do-Funny" in Ruth McEnery Stuart's verses: "Oh Daddy Do-Funny, How do you come on?" "Ooily, thank de Lawd, honey.
