manding officer of the division, and Sgt. C. J. MacNeil, one of the enlistment forms prior to the swearing-in. Others left to right are Cpl. W. J. P. Coughlin, headquarters staff; Sgt. MacCallum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregor Mac-

Crabbers, Lobster Cannermen, Dealers Are Urged to Co-operate

Foremen representing Prince Edward Island's leading lobster canneries heard an appeal to industry to support and co-operate with fishery officers in the protection of the valuable lobster resource. It came from A.F. Fitzgerald, chief of the federal department of fisheries protection service at Maritime headquarters in Halifax. Mr. Fitzgerald was participating in the opening of a three-day canoe forecasting course at the department's inspection laboratory in Charlottetown. The course was to have commenced on Monday but was postponed until Wednesday because of inclement weather.

The Maritime fisheries officials strongly criticized the few lobster dealers in the three provinces who encouraged fishermen to take unauthorized lobster and to fish out of season.

These people deny the facts of scientific investigation," declared Mr. Fitzgerald, "and in doing so, they are doing themselves and the law a disservice and the few genuine fisherman who go along with them, but also the entire people of the province."

Under the Fisheries Act, the protection service had the duty and responsibility to enforce regulations respecting fishery resources whether they be lobster, salmon, oysters or trout. "This we are trying to do and will continue to do," Mr. Fitzgerald declared.
