

INSiDE
Unite!

Departments
Dead Letter Office	page2
Masthead	page3
Editorial 10	page3
News/Op. Ed.
UPEI is without a student society for Gays and Lesbians	page4
How did an Islander wind up on the cover of Time Magazine and The Cadre?	page6
Fighting Capitalism across the Americas	page8
Is Education a Social Program?	page9
The New Robertson Library	page10
UPEI 's Writing Centre	page10
Rape crisis centre's needs	page10
The WTO: A First Hand Account	page12
Politics: Resolutions	page14
Corporate Blight	page16
Arts & Entertainment
Roman Holiday	page18
Reviews, ETC.	page18
Best of the 1990's	page19
Saturday Night at the Arts Guild	page20
The Cinephile	page21
Announcements	page21
Sports
More Hockey Troubles	page22
The Art of Talking Trash	page22
An SFU player plays on the Canadian Basketball Team	page23
Fact & Opinion	page24

Dead Letter OfficeDear DLO:

I would like to complain about the media in general and since The Cadre is considered as medium. I will complain to you. Why is it that the media kept telling us that the millenium began in 2000? Everybody knows that it begins in 2001, but still the media continues to insist otherwise. What really pissed me off was that on January 1st, the media then started putting out stories that the millennium may not really have begun in 2000. I guess the media will do anything for a story, even if it involves distorting the facts. But I'm not saying that you people at the Cadre ever do stuff like that. Well you probably do. What do I know? I'm just a biology student.

-Justine HannaDear Justine:

Listen Justine I think the millenium debate thing is kind of pedantic, you know? There are those that believe Christ's birthday was vastly different than what is traditionally thought true. Anyway don't you have to go genetically engineer some food? -Ed.

Dear DLO:

Happy new millenium! I hope you guys made a new year's resolution to make the Cadre a better newspaper! No offence, but it really sucked last semester.

-Jake GittesDear Jake:

My new year's resolutions are to buy, and read a dictionary, get some long range weapons and sleep more -Ed.

Dear DLO:

Congrats on the last issue of the millennium! It was very cool and apocalyptic. Keep up the good work. I don't care what everybody else says, the Cadre rules!

-Sam LowryDear Sam:

Thanks Sam, if you need any long range weapons or a barely opened dictionary I can get you a nice-guy deal -Ed.

Dear DLO:

I was really disappointed with this whole Y2K thing. I was really hoping that SOMETHING would go wrong somewhere in the world. It's all too suspicious to me. I think that Y2K was a big hoax put on by the governments and the corporations of the world so they could prove that they are competent at something. Anyway, maybe you guys should look into it and do a story about it because we all know that you're writing about crap anyway.

-Reed RothchildDear Reed:

I was kind of dissappointed by the lack of some major catastrophes myself. Unless you count Roger Younker counting down the new year, the Panthers still having a hockey team and the athletic director still having a job as catastrophies, it was a slow time-Ed.

Dear DLO:

There ain't enough hip-hop groups in Chartown. You peeps at tha Cadre should start one. Or at least the silly muthafuckaz of tha set. Nahmean?

-Richard Van Winkle