ARGYLE AND LIBERALISM.

In the course of the debate in the House of Lords upon the Evicted Tenants Bill, the Duke of Argyll made reference to a recent comment of Lord Rosebery upon the Duke's present political alliances.

"It was a trivial circumstance for the Prime Minister of England to refer to, but it is wise to know why I sit here on the Opposition side of the House, I will tell him. I sit on this bench because I opened my career in this House on that bench in the year in which he was born; and during the time he was passing from his long clothes to his small clothes I sat upon that bench in company with men whom I loved and have loved, and I never expect to be associated with any others who can be compared with them."

My notion of Liberal politics is this—that we should always be in the lookout for every new idea and for every old idea with a new application which may tend to meet the growing requirements of society.

Hitherto I have seen the leaders of the Liberal party like men standing on a watch tower to whom others would apply and say, "What of the night?" but "What of the morning and of the coming day?" (Cheers) Where are you standing? Nowhere, but sitting on the fence, perpetually thinking on which side of it you will put your feet down in order to collect votes and unite the cabals of the different parties in the House of Commons.

OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

(EIGHTY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY, AUGUST 29.) Long since thy wit and wisdom broke our fast, And, like a golden spear thrown by the sun,

Smote the chill pools of life, all hushed and dun. To warm and gladsome founts of earth's repeat.

As day wore on full of a trumpet blast, Blew from thy wizard pipes of mirth and fun, And hurled at high noon the festive pun—

The jests from thy blithesome spirit cast. The stainless beam is reddening, rich and strong, Ere sounds the pleasant call for breaking bread

At evening's meal, sweet supper of the wise: The Master's voice, like mother's cradle song, Breathe soft the loving murmurs over lead, Filled with the warfare of the starry skies!

MOTHERS

Always Obtain Grand Results from Lactated Food.

It has Saved Thousands of Infants Lives.

"Ye shall know them by their works." The various brands of infant food now before the mothers of Canada, are best judged by their works—their results.

The vast majority of prepared foods are faulty in composition, and as a consequence their results are evil.

For years it has been noted that Lactated Food possesses important and necessary elements that other foods lacked. Lactated Food in its composition embraces every element that tends to the babe's growth and development. It is a preventive of summer complaints, and invariably keeps up strength and vitality.

When babies are teething, and when the infant appetite is capricious, it is found that Lactated Food is taken with a relish. Lactated Food is within every mother's reach, and is so inexpensive that no mother ever had a real cause for not using it. Lactated Food "saves babies' lives."

After the Grip

No Strength, No Ambition

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures Perfectly

The following letter is from a well-known merchant tailor of St. George, N. B.:

"Gentlemen—I am glad to say that Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills have done me a great deal of good. I had a severe attack of the grip in the winter, and after getting over the fever I did not seem to gather strength, and had no ambition. Hood's Sarsaparilla proved to be just what I needed. The results were very satisfactory, and I recommend this medicine to all who are afflicted with rheumatism or other ailments caused by poison and poor blood. I always keep Hood's Sarsaparilla in my house and use it when I need a tonic. We also keep Hood's Pills on hand and think highly of them. J. W. DYKEMAN, St. George, New Brunswick.
