NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP)—A discouraged stock market Thursday sank for the eighth straight session, falling to bid support where market technicians had expected it.

The support was represented by about 600 in the Dow Jones industrial average, the area of the rally peaks of last November and December.

In the first half hour stocks broke through that support and by the end of the day the Dow industrials stood at 850.66, a low of 9.47.

The only encouraging factor was trading quieted during this decline, showing there was no big selling drive. Volume was 7,850,000 shares compared with 6,000,000 Wednesday.

Of 1,395 issues traded, 747 fell and 392 rose. Highs for the year totalled 25, lows 73.
