A LETTER FROM England's Most Eminent Artist.

London, Ont., Dec. 17th, 1896.

Messrs. Heintzman & Co., Toronto.

GENTLEMEN,—I would like to tell you how much I appreciate, from an ARTIST' point of view, the very excellent Grand piano supplied to me for my concert in London, and the magnificent Grand that you furnished me for my concert in MASSEY HALL, Toronto. The tone is sonorous, the singing quality and sustaining quality just what we vocalists appreciate, and I feel that any one in quest of a really FIRST CLASS PIANO, cannot do better than secure a HEINTZMAN & Co's PIANOFORTE.

I am, dear sirs, faithfully yours,

R. WATKIN MILLS.

A Geographical Mist.

As a state Turkey is a heterogeneous assemblage of peoples under the absolute sway of the sultan. It is a government lacking altogether a sense for the right of a community to choose concerning its own government. It thoroughly represents the oriental idea whereby government is transcendent, a power above and outside the people, and not immanent, a power with in the people. And herein lies the application of the occidental-oriental antithesis to political institutions. The occidental conception of life as active and creative inhering in active and self moving, autonomous personalities, begets the political idea of what we call self government. The idea which represents personality as self directed in the fulfillment of its own purposes becomes when applied to politics the idea that communities shall be self governed in things belonging to themselves. This is the political upshot of occidentalism. The opposite thereto is the upshot of orientalism. A potentate seated on a very high throne under a very broad canopy and loaded with very costly jewels with prostrate subjects bowing in obeisance before him—that is the tableau of oriental government.

Turkey is thoroughly oriental, representatively oriental in its political spirit. Its location upon occidental soil is a geographical misfit, a historical anachronism. It is a stranded wreck, left high and dry beyond the sea walls by a receding tidal wave, but no one undertakes to clean it away because the land on which it rests is in litigation.—Benjamin J. Wheeler in Atlantic.

Concerning the Influence of methods in spelling.

Concerning the influence of methods in spelling, a very comprehensive study was made by me, through personal interview, with some 200 teachers whose pupils had taken part in my tests. These teachers were questioned, to the minutest details in regard to the course they had pursued. In brief, my deductions may be summarized in the statement that there is no direct relation between methods and results. For example, among the points that have given rise to endless discussion is that concerning the value of oral spelling. My tests showed that, while in some of the schools where a special feature had been made of oral spelling the results were favorable, in others they were unfavorable, and the same conditions were shown where oral spelling had been abandoned. Second, much discussion has arisen as to whether, in written spelling, the words of the lesson should be placed in columns or in sentences, but the claim of superiority in favor of sentence over column spelling was by no means corroborated, the results of the sentence method varying just as much as those of the column method.—Dr. J. M. Rice in Forum

Scenes in London.

Filial regard is not extinct in south London. A young man charged with hitting a woman over the head with a bone explained that she had been fighting from 5 o'clock in the morning till noon with his mother, and that he thought it time to stop it. A policeman testified that in the same street two women once fought all day long, stopping only for meals, till one went home and died. Her husband had looked on, calmly mending shoes, while the fight went on.
