THE PATENT TELESCOPIC OVEN

This Oven represents the "Star" Cooking Stove, with oven and end-lining drawn out, as in the act of cleaning, or replacing a new lining.

IS STILL AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS.

THIS Patent Oven is put on all my Elevated Oven Cooking Stoves, such as the Star, Niagara, Waterloo, &c. Is Easily Cleaned, by simply drawing the end and lining from the oven, brushing out the soot and replacing them again—thoroughly cleaning or inserting a new lining in five minutes time.

The thousands using this Oven admit it to be worth at least Ten Dollars more than Stoves with the ordinary oven. At the same time please keep in view the fact that it costs the trade or retail purchaser no more than the same stove without this valuable improvement.

When buying, ask for FAWCETT'S PATENT TELESCOPIC OVEN. If your dealer has none on hand, have him send, or send your order direct to the Sackville Foundry.
No other Foundry in the Dominion of Canada is able to offer this undoubted advantage, as I am the Inventor, Sole Manufacturer and Patentee.

I am adding several New and Handsome Patterns this season which, with my former variety of one hundred different styles and sizes of Cooking, Parlor, Office and Hall Stoves. Also—Farmers' Bilers, Hollow-ware, Ploughs, &c., comprises the largest and best assortment made in the Maritime Provinces.

Customers will find my Terms Liberal and, regarding prices, I will not be undersold.

To the Electors of the First District for King's County for the Legislative Council.

GENTLEMEN,—At the earnest request of a number of you, I offer myself as a candidate to fill the vacancy in the Legislative Council, occasioned by the death of the late Lawrence Kichham, Esq.

I solicit your suffrages on the present occasion in the interest of the Liberal Conservative party; although, if elected, I shall support the present Administration in such measures only as I consider to be for the good of the country. I will not promise to support the present or any other Government, unless I believe them to be administering the affairs of the Province so as to keep down taxation, secure Provincial rights, and promote the general welfare of the people.

Owing to the bad state of the roads at this season of the year, it will, I fear, be impossible for me to make a personal canvass of the entire District; but I trust to be able to meet you at public meetings before the election, when I can more fully give you my views on questions affecting your interests.

Respectfully soliciting your votes, I remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

CHARLES McEACHEN.

HALL'S

HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty.
It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp.
HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfillment of its promise.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dandruff, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

ADAM BEDE.

CHAPTER XLVII.

It was a sight that some people remember better than their own sorrows—the sight in that gray clear morning, when the fatal car with the young woman in it was described by the waiting, watching multitude, cleaving its way toward the hideous symbol of a deliberately inflicted sudden death.

All Stoniton had heard of Dinah Morris, the young Methodist woman who had brought the obstinate criminal to confess, and there was as much eagerness to see her as to see the wretched Hetty.

But Dinah was hardly conscious of the multitude. When Hetty had caught sight of the vast crowd in the distance, she had clutched Dinah convulsively.

"Close your eyes, Hetty," Dinah said,
"and let us pray without ceasing, to God."

And in a low voice, as the cart went slowly along through the midst of the gazing crowd, she poured forth her soul with the wrestling intensity of a last pleading, for the trembling creature that clung to her and clutched her as the only visible sign of love and pity.

Dinah did not know that the crowd were silent, gazing at her with a sort of awe—she did not even know how near they were to the fatal spot, when the cart stopped, and she shrank appalled at a loud shout, hideous to her ear, like a vast yell of demons. Hetty's shriek mingled with the sound, and they clasped each other with mutual horror.

But it was not a shout of execration—not a yell of exultant cruelty.

It was a shout of sudden excitement at the appearance of a horseman cleaving the crowd at full gallop. The horse is hot and dressed, but answers to the desperate spurring; the rider looks as if his eyes were glazed with madness, and he saw nothing but what was unseen by others. See, he has something in his hand—he is holding it up as if it were a signal.

The sheriff knows him; it is Arthur Donnithorne, carrying in his hand the hard won release from death.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

ANOTHER MEETING IN THE WOOD.

The next day, at evening, two men were walking from opposite points toward the same scene, drawn thither by a common memory. The scene was the Grove by Donnithorne Chase; you know who the men were.

The old Squire's funeral had taken place that morning, the will had been read, and now, in the first breathing-space, Arthur Donnithorne had come out for a lonely walk, that he might look fixedly at the new future before him, and confirm himself in a sad resolution. He thought he could do that best in the Grove.

Adam, too, had come from Stoniton on Monday evening, and to-day he had not left home, except to go to the family at the Hall Farm, and tell them everything that Mr. Irvine had left untold. He had agreed with the Poyzers that he would follow them to their new neighborhood, wherever that might be; for he meant to give up the management of the woods, and, as soon as it was practicable, he would wind up his business with Jonathan Burge, and settle with his mother and Seth in a home within reach of the friends to whom he felt bound by a mutual sorrow.

"Seth and me are sure to find work," he said. "A man that's got our trade at his fingers' ends is at home everywhere; and we must make a new start. My mother won't stand in the way, for she's told me since I came home, she'd make up her mind to be buried in another parish, if I wished it, and if I'd be more comfortable elsewhere. It's wonderful how quiet she'd been ever since I came back. It seems as if the very greatness of the trouble had quieted and calmed her. We shall all be better in a new country, though there's some I shall be loathe to leave behind. But I won't part from you and yours, if I can help it, Mr.
Poyser. Troubles made us kin."

"Aye, lad," said Martin. "We'll go out of hearing of that man's name. But I doubt we shall ne'er go far enough for folks not to find out as we've got them belonging to us as are transported over the seas, and war liked to be hanged. We shall have that lying up in our faces, and our children's after us."

That was a long visit to the Hall Farm, and drew too strongly to Adam's energies for him to think of seeing others, or re-entering on his old occupations till the morning. "But to-morrow," he said to himself, "I'll go to work again. I shall learn to like it again some time, may be; and it's right, whether I like it or not."

This evening was the last he would allow to be absorbed by sorrow; suspense was gone now, and he must bear the unalterable. He was resolved not to see Arthur Donnithorne again, if it were possible to avoid him. He had no message to deliver from Hetty now, for Hetty had seen Arthur; and Adam distrusted himself; he had learned to dread the violence of his own feeling. That word of Mr. Irvine's—that he must remember what he had felt after giving the last blow to Arthur in the Grove—had remained with him.

These thoughts about Arthur, like all thoughts that are charged with strong feeling, were continually recurring, and they always called up the image of the Grove—of that spot under the overarching boughs where he had caught sight of the two bending figures, and had been possessed by sudden rage.

"I'll go and see it again to-night for the last time," he said; "it'll do me good, it'll make me feel over again what I felt when I'd knocked him down. I felt what poor empty work it was, as soon as I'd done it, before I began to think he might be dead."

In this way it happened that Arthur and Adam were walking toward the same spot at the same time.

(To be continued.)

Farewell Address.

Previous to his departure for Halifax, N.
S., R. W. Tremaine, Esq., was waited on and presented with the following address:

To R. W. Tremaine, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—We, the officers and members of the South Pinette Mutual Improvement Debating Society, wish to express our feeling of regret at your departure from our midst, where we will miss your guidance and vigour, in sustaining, and feel sincerely grateful to you for the organization of said society, it being the second of the kind you have organized,
