New Democrats Will Meet To Map Out Party Strategy

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Six trade unionists, four lawyers, four school teachers, two writers, a businessman, a pharmacist and a professor meet this week to figure out their future in Parliament.

The 19 men are the successful New Democratic Party candidates in the June 18 election.

They meet in Winnipeg July 12 for their first party caucus to plan their strategy, name their "shadow" cabinet and prepare for the 25th Parliament, expected to be summoned into session Sept. 27.

But the key issue before them will be the question of the parliamentary future of their leader — former Saskatchewan premier T. C. (Tommy) Douglas.

Mr. Douglas lost his bid to enter Parliament as MP for Regina City—the only leader of the four parties to go down to defeat.

He is expected to tell his party supporters whether he will seek entry to the Commons in another seat.

OFFERS TO RESIGN

Erhart Regier, 46, a school teacher who has been the party's financial critic in the Commons, has offered to resign his seat for Burnaby-Coquitlam to open the way for Mr. Douglas to contest it in a byelection.

Indications are Mr. Douglas will accept the invitation offer and fight to win the seat.

The question, however, is whether Prime Minister Diefenbaker will co-operate by calling an early byelection. NDP sources say they do not expect the other parties to allow Mr. Douglas to win the seat by acclamation. They would just as soon win it in an open fight against Conservative, Liberal and Social Credit opponents.

The defeat of Mr. Douglas took the edge off the NDP's success in its first election test under its new banner, party sources said.

WON WIDER SUPPORT

But they were delighted by the NDP's gain in support as shown by the popular vote in the election. The NDP received 13.6 per cent of the popular vote, compared with 9.5 per cent for the CCF in the 1958 election.

The party, founded in August, 1961, by the CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress, won 11 of its 19 seats in industrialized urban areas — chiefly Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. In 1958 the CCF won eight seats.

The NDP didn't elect any members from rural areas of the Prairies, where its predecessor party, the CCF, had first developed.

The party's strength in industrial areas, where trade unions are organized and active, may tend to make the NDP a greater voice for workers than for farmers, although the party has a farm program aimed at helping the agricultural economy.

The role of trade unions will loom larger in the party at the grass-roots level, but party observers do not expect them to seek greater authority at the top.

Soviet Union Influence Seen Growing In Cuba

By GEORGE ARFELD

HAVANA (AP) — Olive-green Russian trucks move down the broad, sun-soaked streets of Havana, along with 1960 American cars.

Russian movies share double-features with aging Hollywood productions.

The Russian influence is evident in Havana.

Baseball is still Cuba's favorite sport, but chess is winning converts.

Sandal-shod visitors from behind the Iron Curtain are commonplace. Bootblacks have learned that Czechs are more generous than Muscovites.

It is 2½ years since Russia and Cuba made a 12-year credit agreement, promising the Castro regime $100,000,000 in machinery and equipment. A five-year trade and payments pact was signed at the same time in Havana by Premier Castro and Anastas Mikoyan, Soviet deputy premier.

Mikoyan promised Russia would take 1,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar a year for five years —at world market prices. Until then the United States, which no longer purchases from Cuba, was buying around 5,000,000 tons a year and paying a premium.

Russian-Cuban trade this year is set at 750 million pesos (the peso officially is equivalent to $1 (U.S.), but its actual worth in free exchanges is much less).

The government says the Russians will take 2,800,000 tons of sugar this year, at an undisclosed price.

In 1958 when Castro was bringing to a close his campaign against dictator Fulgencio Batista, only 2.6 per cent of Cuba's exports went behind the Iron Curtain. This figure has risen to more than 80 per cent. Approximately the same proportion of the island's total imports also hails from Communist nations.

More than 900 peasant youths returned from Russia this spring, after a one-year stay at different agricultural technological centres.

Another 1,500 young Cubans are studying in universities in the Soviet Union. Still others are in Poland, East Germany and other Communist countries.

The Russians have promised bonus shipments of many food staples, including rice, lard and wheat. But some diplomatic sources believe the additional quantities will do little to alleviate rationing, especially if the deliveries are stretched out over the next 12 months.

"Take beans, for example," a veteran European diplomat said. "Cuba used to eat 55,000 tons of beans each year. Two-thirds were imported. The Russians are promising 8,500 tons; that's about one-sixth of the nation's total needs.

"On the other hand the Russians will ship 124,000 tons of wheat, when, as far as I know, Cuba's top consumption is around 120,000 tons per year."

Jeeps, tractors, and trucks are the most common signs of Russian aid. Hardly a ship docks in Havana that isn't carrying a half-dozen or more Soviet-made trucks.

Poland has sent trucks, light bulbs and cement mixers, but prefers to sell its renowned hams in the United States for dollars.

There have been no announcements on how much military aid Cuba receives from the Iron Curtain bloc. But one look at recent military parades is enough to tell the observer Cuba has a well-armed, highly-mobile army, well supported by MiG jet fighters.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead—five of hearts.

This hand comes from a rubber bridge game. It involves a point of play sometimes overlooked.

West led a heart which East took with the king. East returned the eight of hearts and West permitted the jack in dummy to win.

Declarer then cashed the ace of diamonds and played a diamond to the queen. He now led the queen of hearts!

West cashed three hearts, bringing his side to four tricks, but was then compelled to return a club or a spade, either of which was bound to present declarer with his ninth trick. So South made three notrump as a result of his unusual throw-in play.

It is true that South could have made the contract by a different line of play. However, against the best defense, he would very likely have gone down.

Suppose, after cashing the A-Q of diamonds, he had led three more rounds of the suit, as would seem to be natural. West could then have made things very difficult for him by discarding a spade and two clubs.

Would South have been smart enough to know that West had blanked king of spades? Hardly likely, we would say. In all probability, South would have decided to take either a club finesse or a spade finesse. Whichever he chose, he would have gone down.

The heart throw-in had a much better chance of succeeding. Declarer had seen West play the J-10 on the first two leads of diamonds, and it was reasonable to assume that West had no more diamonds.

So rather than put himself into a position, after running the diamonds, of guessing whether to take a spade or club finesse, declarer stopped playing diamonds after two leads in order to avoid a barrowing guess later.

It may seem unnatural to refuse to cash three winners and deliberately give the opponents three tricks instead, but that's the kind of play it pays to make if you are able to anticipate the trouble that looms ahead. It pays to plan the play.

MRS. MAYOR IS TITLE PREFERRED

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)— It's Mrs. Mayor, if you please.

Mrs. Eleanor P. Sheppard, Richmond's first woman mayor in history, says that's what she'd like to be during her two-year term.

The 25 ballots to decide who should hold the office had no sooner been completed Monday than the new question popped up:

What should her title be?

Some councilmen started right in calling Mrs. Sheppard Madam Mayor, but she prefers the other style.

"I think if Mr. Mayor is proper, then Mrs. Mayor is proper," she said.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three X's, for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
