THAT FACE in the middle is one of the best-known in Canadian showbusiness. Charlie Chamberlain, for many years part of the Don Messer show, posed last night with a number of pretty dancers from the same show just before the opening performance of Don Messer and his Islanders in Confederation Centre Theatre. The girls at back are Marilyn Boyle, Pam Forster and Mary Wile. The little one on Charlie's knee is already almost a veteran trouper, and her name is Karen Harnish. The CBC-produced show runs seven more times this week before closing on Saturday.

Familiar Dances, Music Mark Messer Show Here

Shure and begorra, it was the down east music of that Highland Irish laddie, Don Messer and his Islanders, playing at the Confederation Centre Theatre last night.

And shure, too, it was just like a homecoming, and y'all come and see us now and then. That's what both Don and the management are hoping after having a less than capacity audience for the opening night. Theatre officials voiced disappointment over the truly small house, even though that fairly small house voiced great enthusiasm over the performing of what has been called the Island's most renowned export.

Marg Osborne, Charlie Chamberlain and the rest of Don's gang were truly well-received as they put on a two-hour show of music, clowning, and dancing for the Islanders whenever comes the name of the group.

OLD SONGS FAVORITES

It would seem that the old songs still strike responsive chords in the hearts of people all across Canada. A large portion of present Islanders have roots deep in the old Scottish and Irish traditions, and for them there seemed to be an even greater closeness.

The group, with Don Messer himself as band leader, got its start years ago in local radio, and from that time has grown to be one of the most popular shows on television (Don Messer's Jubilee) and one of the best audience-drawers anywhere in the country. But, as one person said, "It's really a shame that the local attitude seems to be one of, 'we can see them on television, why bother go and pay money to see them in the theatre?' "

Perhaps the best-known face in the group is that of Charlie Chamberlain. His big grin and antics, and especially his singing of old comic and sentimental favorites, brought tremendous response from the audience.

Marg Osborne, "the beautiful personality with a voice to match," sang several ballads, both modern and traditional. One old gentleman with obviously proud Scottish blood, was seen hardly able to keep the tears back when she sang the old song about the Scottish Soldier. And she varied the pace with such well-known folk songs as Cottonfields and others, to receive one of the biggest hands of the night.

Then there were the Buchta dancers, with their 'swinging' square dances brought up to date. The two littlest dancers in the troupe, Donald Meighan and Karen Harnish, put on a show of a wide selection of dances from calypso to the venerable Charleston, and got great praise from the audience for proving that kids can sometimes do what adults do, and just as well.

NEVER SAME

To round out the evening there were a number of selections by various members of the orchestra, all of which proved popular.

The show is based on the television program featuring the same group, and it will reportedly (how can they help it) never be the same two nights in a row. Everyone in the audience was urged by the master of ceremonies to tell their friends to come, and to come again, themselves. And theatre officials too would like more people to turn out for this Don Messer "homecoming."

Y'all come?

Lobster Season Opens In West With Rough Sea

SUMMERSIDE — Rough seas and winds of 20 miles an hour faced fishermen from North Cape to Victoria yesterday as they set their traps marking the opening of the lobster season here.

There are some 20 boats fishing out of the Summerside area and in the vicinity of 70 boats are fishing out of Egmont Bay. Approximately 20 boats from Borden set over 4,000 traps yesterday.

The rough weather prevented some of the smaller boats from leaving their harbors, but most of the fishermen got their traps set. It is not yet known what the catch will be like.

Last night the forecaster at RCAF station Summerside said that the weather over Northumberland Strait should be very good today with light winds and a lot of sun.

Alberton Area Reports Attack Of Army Worms

The department of agriculture has received a report that army worms have been found in grain fields in the Alberton area.

Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae said yesterday that growers should "keep a close eye on their grain" as army worm infestations are pretty well scattered through the province.

Other areas reporting infestations are Albery Plains, New Perth, Rocky Point, Bedeque, Georgetown, Guernsey Cove and White Sands.

The department recommends that a solution of water and Malathion be sprayed on infected fields.

Lobster Gear Vandalism Is Reported

ALBERTON — The opening of the lobster season yesterday morning meant vandalism at such points as Brae Harbor, Skinners Pond, and Campbellton with trap heads slashed and a boat sunk at her moorings.

The heads of close to a 1,000 traps were slashed at Brae Harbor and it was reported four boats were set adrift and allowed to go ashore.

At Campbellton, a boat owned by Alberton fisherman William Gionet was badly damaged when she sank at her moorings and later drifted onto rocks.

It is believed the incidents are direct results of the large number of Alberton and Tignish fishermen who moved their gear and boats to the west side to fish the fall season.

The Alberton detachment of the RCMP is investigating.

Old Home Week Plans Reveal Gala Schedule

Ninety-nine cattlemen are entering the pride of their herds in the Provincial Exhibition when P.E.I.'s famed "Old Home Week" gets underway next week.

With less than a week to go till opening day, Aug. 17, entry lists show 746 cattle, 65 swine, 89 horses, 54 ponies and 115 sheep set to compete for breeding honors.

News of the exhibition entries, as well as other plans for the week, was released yesterday by the Charlottetown Driving Park and Provincial Exhibition Association.

Horse racing at the Charlottetown Driving Park will take place every evening during next week and races will be held every afternoon except Monday.

Several top classes are scheduled for the races with the big Evening Patriot Gold Cup and Saucer Free-For-All scheduled for Friday night.

Some 24 groups have signified their intention to set up booths at the Coliseum on the Exhibition Grounds.

The Gold Cup and Saucer Parade has been rated as the best which will have ever been seen on the Island with 36 floats, 12 bands, five groups of majorettes, a couple of dozen saddle horses and a half dozen harness horses, all kinds of ponies and clowns and comic and fairy tale characters. The big attraction will be the eight Gold Cup and Saucer Girls.

Also expected for the big parade and celebrations are the Blueberry Queen of Maine and the 60 member Katahdin Rangers Band from Maine.

Following the parade several of the bands from the parade are expected to give band concerts in various parts of the city.

COUNCIL'S

lengthy and sometimes heated discussion.

The council, red-faced over a traffic survey done here several years ago by a man named Monell seemed reluctant to put its stamp of approval on the proposed survey, although it was reported the provincial government was willing to pay half the cost.

Monell's job was termed by the mayor "a fizzle from start to finish" . . . "a very sorry experience".

In submitting the proposal for the traffic study, Coun. MacRae pointed out that the motor vehicle registration for the province had doubled in the past 14 years, there is need for a truck bypass of the city, and there are "rumors that the railway is going to go."

He suggested the project as a possible "project for 1967".

Coun. John P. Nicholson disagreed with the idea "flatly and emphatically", he said.

The Monell survey was "good", he said, and had cost $5,000-$4,000. Many of its recommendations have not been put into effect, he added, and Coun. H. E. Hyndman endorsed his statements.

Coun. MacNeill said only two major points in the report had been ignored. Monell had suggested Euston Street be made one-way, and had designated as parking lots areas in the centre of blocks so hemmed in "the entrances were not big enough to get cars through."

The discussion continued for some time, ending finally when councillors were asked to consider the matter further and make a decision at the next meeting of council.

Coun. Gillis reported on a meeting he and Coun. Nicholson had recently in Ottawa with Defence Production Minister Drury.

"If we do get more aircraft for the local plant it will be because he (Drury) does not want to see the economy of the district affected," Coun. Gillis commented.

He reported that Drury had granted them a two-hour hearing and discussed the problems thoroughly.

"We were told there's a half a million a year payroll from this plant. We had been in the belief that Enamel and Heating had lost all its defence contracts. That's not so," he reported, as he told Council the only reason En-Heat had come to Charlottetown was because it needed a long enough runway to accommodate the aircraft it repaired.

Mr. Gillis explained that it would be difficult for the plant here to switch to repairing a different type of aircraft.

Each individual aircraft requires different types of machinery and checking devices. These plants look to the government to supply these ... they're very expensive," he said.

He concluded by suggesting that the Council suggest to En-Heat that any defence contracts given them as a result of the Ottawa meetings by the councillors and government officials be fulfilled at the Charlottetown plant.

Town Council Okays New Street Lights

ALBERTON — Routine business was transacted last evening at the regular meeting of Alberton Town Council with Mayor M. Roy Leard presiding and councillors Hardy, McRae, Millman and Gordon in attendance.

Following discussion it was approved that four additional street lights be installed in the town and 10 lights on Church Street are to be replaced with eight mercury vapor lights.

The police report listed eight cases of disturbing the peace, one highway traffic and two cases under the liquor control act. The report was tabled by town policeman John Arthur.

PEARSON

"Perhaps even Makarios is concerned about that," he said.

Mr. Pearson said it was almost impossible to believe a small island in the Mediterranean, a sister nation of the Commonwealth, should be the occasion of a third world war.

The United Nations was the only organization that could prevent this taking place. He was not suggesting the present conflict would lead to another war but said "an escalation of events may bring that about."

LITTLE AUTHORITY

Mr. Pearson said he agrees the UN peacekeeping force does not have the authority "we would all like to see it have."

The present force was formed with the agreement of the Cyprus government as the next best method.

"You can't get away from that unless you want to shoot your way to peace," he said.

Replying to reporters' questions, Mr. Pearson said the government was not ascribing blame for the crisis to anyone. It had been suggested to him that the blame should be placed on President Makarios.

External Affairs Minister Martin had been "more frank" in talking about it than other foreign ministers. But it was wise not to ascribe blame at this time.

If Canada was to be of any use to its friends and those concerned, and if its proposals were to be considered as coming from an objective source, it would not be wise to say "you're to blame; you're the fellow who is causing all the trouble."

to the humiliation of being pushed around because they lack the authority to do those things that are necessary and, above all, to have that freedom of movement which, while we are informed they have, in fact they have not."

Mr. Martin said in reply the UN force could go into Cyprus last March only on conditions laid down by the Makarios government. In part, that accounted for some of the limitations on the UN force at present.

However, the authority was comparable with that given the much-larger UN force in The Congo, except at one point the UN had authorized its troops to put down a rebellion in Katanga province.

He had repeatedly urged UN Secretary . General U Thant to negotiate wider powers for the Cyprus force but the Cypriot government had made agreement impossible.

If the UN had a larger force during the weekend, strong para-military or police action might have been possible. But its numbers were limited to 7,000 and no increase was permitted without the Cypriot government's agreement.

Creditistes Feel Now Or Never

By GERARD ALARIE

Quebec (CP)—Le Ralliement Des Creditistes appears to be adopting a new slogan—"It's now or never."

The phrase was used by several speakers as le Ralliement wound up a weekend convention.

But despite the slogan it put off its entry into Quebec provincial politics until the next general election. It voted to get into provincial politics but at the same time stipulated it would not contest three provincial byelections expected this fall.

The decision to move into the provincial field came on a unanimous vote of some 700 delegates. It backed up a decision taken by the executive earlier this year.

At the same time it voted unanimously in favor of its "associate state" theory as a solution to Confederation's problems.

"The associate states must be formed now or never," said Gilles Gregoire, Creditiste member of the Commons for Lapointe. He said there must be one government for Quebec "and a second government for the nine other provinces who all want the same things."
