

GUEST SPEAKER IN DISCUSSION

Cpl. D.H. Hender, Montague Detachment RCMP, who was guest speaker Tuesday evening at the Montague Y's Men dinner, is pictured discussing statistics with Neil Hooley, Jr., president of the Montague Y's Men. Cpl. Hender is also sport master and took the opportunity to thank the Y's Men for their financial assistance to the scouts in the past year. Cpl. Hender gave a brief but factual account of the role played by the RCMP in the area. His remarks and the question period made up one of the more interesting supper meetings of the Y's Men Club.

Dr. Gillis, who is the vice-chairman of the provincial Red Cross first aid committee, was appointed early in 1965 to head a committee set up within Red Cross to co-ordinate the safety efforts being carried on through the following existing services of the Society: first aid, water safety, home services and Junior Red Cross.

The meetings held by this Red Cross co-ordinating committee pointed up the necessity for a broader approach to the whole safety problem, and prompted us to invite representatives of all organizations and Government departments in the province involved in safety programs to attend a "Safety Seminar" in connection with the Red Cross Annual Meeting.

Dr. Gillis last evening, according to Dr. Gillis, there has been an enthusiastic response from those contacted to take part in this safety seminar at which statistics will be given on the high rate of accidents in this province. This will be followed by a review of the accident prevention programs being carried on by the several organizations and government departments represented. Those in attendance will be asked to discuss their findings in "buzz sessions", and to make recommendations with regard to a "plan of action" for the future.

The demands on agriculture in a modern economy.
"We would," said the brief, "be opposed to any system which would apply force in moving him (the small farmer) from his home or land."
In its brief the Federation listed eight points that were included in a brief presented recently to the Dominion Cabinet by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture which have implications so far as Island agriculture is concerned.

The eight suggestions were:
The need for the improvement of milk prices.
The need for effective action to meet farm labor problems.
The need for a more systematic organization of agricultural product marketing.
The need for the improvement and extension of crop insurance.
The need for a concerted and effective attack on the problem of rural poverty.
The need for increasingly effective and systematic means of consultation between farmers and governments.
The need to improve and develop farm credit services.
The need for legislation to properly protect the farmer in cases of processor, dealer or wholesaler bankruptcy.

The federation requested that the present widow's allowance of $65 per month be increased to $75 per month.
A number of changes in the Industrial Relations Act were asked for by the federation. Mainly the changes involved voting and appeal rights of union members, bargaining rights and strike rights.
The federation asked that the Legislative study the acts relating to the powers of expropriation in the province and that the committee report its findings to the Legislature.

The brief pointed out, "In practically every province the rights of property owners are being assaulted from an ever increasing number of directions and the problem has become of sufficient importance that two provinces have Royal Commissions studying these matters."
There were four resolutions of the Federal-Provincial Agricultural Council included in the brief, three of which were commented on by the Federation.
A resolution of the council supporting the establishment of a young beef bull and progeny testing station in the Maritimes was commended by the Federation to the government for its support. The Federation would like to see the testing station at Charlottetown.

Another resolution of the Council that the P.E.I. Department of Agriculture aggressively promote the rail grading of P.E.I. cattle sold through the packing plants, "holds the key to the key to the improvement of cattle quality in this province," said the federation.
RING ROT
The federation recommended action at the earliest possible moment on the council's resolution that the act referring to ring rot be amended to include that any person having ring rot infected potatoes would dispose of them in a manner acceptable to the council's resolution that, no seed potatoes other than certified or better be planted on P.E.I., though it did include this resolution in its brief.

Also included in the brief was a resolution passed at the federation's annual meeting in January dealing with farm machinery.
The federation's resolution expressed the opinion that the quality of service and supply of parts in many cases unsatisfactory; that farmers are entitled to legislative protection which will establish much more clearly the rights of the farmer and the responsibility of the dealer; and that the Minister of Agriculture be asked to introduce legislation designed to provide reasonable protection to the purchaser.
The brief was signed by J.A. Rodd, president and J. Lincoln Dewar, secretary.

9 Men Spend Tough Months On Survey At Churchill Falls

By JAMES NELSON
OTTAWA (CP) — Nine men, some of them from cozy, steam-heated government offices here, are spending two months in tents in central Labrador where the temperatures drop to 50 below and the winds howl at 50 miles an hour.

They are surveying land and water levels on the roaring Hamilton River from the foot of Churchill Falls 200 miles to the sea at Goose Bay. Churchill Falls has a 7,000,000-horsepower potential, the greatest known but undeveloped hydro-electric source left in the world.
Led by John Brown, 47—an 18-year veteran of topographical surveys for the mines department here, the men are living in a stark land of snow and ice, winter-blacked forests, and wolves so unaccustomed to men they sit on their haunches and watch them work.

MUST BE DONE ON FOOT
They began their trip Jan. 19 and plan to complete the 200 miles by March 19. All of it must be done on foot although they have powered toboggans to haul supplies.
Ian Scott, 25, of Victoria, B.C., an Ottawa-based free-lance photographer, spent five weeks with the team. He returned here with first-hand accounts of narrow brush with freezing death, a make-do meal of barbecued porcupine livers and lighting an early-morning fire without getting out of a double sleeping bag.
The survey work entails measuring water and ground levels from bench-mark to bench-mark every foot of the way along the turbulent river. It must be done in the dead of winter when the ice is thickest and can provide a path for men and machines.
But the raging water undercut the ice. Feb. 15, Mr. Brown fell through. He was pulled out, screaming with the tortuous
