VARIETIES.

A Short Romance.—Under the above caption, Mrs. Swisshelm's paper of the present week tells the following:

"Among the freight which passed through this city last week on the underground railroad was a daughter of a "wealthy and influential" citizen of Louisiana, a young lady of remarkable beauty and no mean supply of spirit and intelligence. She was placed in a calaboose at New-Orleans for safe-keeping, and for the inspection of purchasers. Among those who thought of buying the article was one gentleman, who wished to learn if her bust was indebted to padding for its form; but the girl, resenting this pursuit after knowledge as a personal insult, dashed him from her; where uponthis representative of Southern chivalry drew a heavy whip and dealt her a blow, which she caught upon her right arm and shoulder, and which rendered them quite powerless. That night—the night before the sale—some one came into her prison, gave her a suit of boy's clothes, bade her dress quickly and follow. She did so, and was placed by the unknown friend on a steamboat bound for Pittsburgh, her passage paid, and here she arrived safely.

"Her arm and shoulder were still disabled from the effects of the blow by her chivalric, would-be purchaser, but she was thankful to have got off so wonderfully; was hopeful for the future, and, with a considerable company of emigrants, was promptly forwarded to the British dominions.'

Impertinent Inquisitiveness.—A prying and inquisitive disposition is incompatible with true politeness. Impertinent curiosiey is one of the chief banes of social intercourse. It is easy to see how it becomes so. You put a question respecting circumstances which you have no right to know anything about, and which common sense might tell you the party you interrogate is not willing to disclose. The latter must either equivocate, or directly falsify, or much to the annoyance of his own feelings state distinctly that the question is one you have no right to put, and which therefore he does not mean to answer. So that if to present tranquillity of mind, to impart as well as to receive pleasure be the object of good manners, every Paul Pry in the social cirle must be a very offensive person indeed. We should keep a sharp lookout on those whose conversation is chiefly in the question-form.—Hogg's Weekly Instructor.

Read before you Buy.—At a public auction of the library of Dr. Francis Bernard, (an eminent English physician,) it happened in the progress of the sale, that the auctioneer held up a particular book, and called the attention of the crowd to it, saying, "that there was an important observation written in the volume he was about to sell, in Dr. Bernard's own hand!" This intimation produced a spirit of rivalry among the bidders; but when the book was knocked down at a high price, the purchaser read, to his astonishment—"I have perused this book, and it is not worth a farthing."

School relations.—In Coleridge's time, school-discipline was very severe, and it was insisted, that all domestic ties should be forgotten so long as a boy was at school. On the first day of the attendance of Coleridge, after the holidays, he was observed by the master to be crying—probably feeling a little "home-sick." The master said sharply to him; "Boy! The school is your father! Boy! The school is your mother! Boy! The school is your brother! Boy! The school is your first cousin, and your second cousin, and all the rest of your relations! Let's have no more crying."

Study and Play.—An idle fellow once saw a famous Greek philosopher playing at marbles with some children in the road. Glad of an opportunity to reprove a man, who was every way his superior, the idle fellow approached him and sneeringly asked, if he were not ashamed to spend his time in such a foolish and unbecoming manner, with children? This question was a good deal like the meditations of an owl, who once made himself extravagantly merry, because an eagle, who happened to be asleep, could not see. The philosopher, however, condescended to reply. Pointing to a bow, which lay unstrung upon the ground, he said:—

"Would yonder bow be fit for use, if it were kept always strung? No, it must be occasionally unbent, or it will lose all its strength and elasticity. So must I sometimes relax from my severer studies, if I would preserve my mind vigorous and unwarped. The lark, although it flies higher than any other bird, sinks to the lowly ground to repose itself, and to build its nest."

The idle fellow, as you may suppose, hung down his head, and walked away.

Reading at Dinner.—A very frequent cause of nervous affections is intense or unseasonable application of the mind, as in reading, while at dinner. By this untimely exercise of the brain the blood is diverted from its proper course—viz: to the stomach—at a time when it is more particularly required there, to enable the viscera to secrete and supply a sufficiency of gastric juice. Such patients cannot be benefited except they alter their habits; because so long as they force the current of blood towards the brain, when the vital fluid is required elsewhere for the purpose of digestion, their function will be impaired, and but very imperfectly performed, and nervous derangement will continue to result.

Different sounds will travel with different velocity—a call to dinner will run over a ten acre lot in a moment and a half, while a summons to work takes from 5 to 8 minutes.

Two merchants conversing together upon the badness of the times, and observing a flock of pigeons, one remarked:—"How happy they are, they have no acceptances to provide for!" "Indeed," replied the other, "you are mistaken, for they have bills to provide for, as well as we."

Why is iron sometimes like a band of robbers?—Because it is united to steel.

Why is the letter S likely to prove dangerous when used in an argument?—Because it turns words into Swords.

What kind of soil is best adapted for the cultivation of rye? Very dry, for every person knows that in-dust-ry must prosper.

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

THE Subscribers manufacture and keep constantly on hand, all sizes of Church, Factory, Steamboat, Ferry, Locomotive, School House and Plantation Bells, with the best description of Hangings.

These Bells are made from the best stock, and the small sizes undergo the same process in manufacturing as Church Bells. An experience of thirty years, with a great many recent improvements, and an entirely new method of casting, enables us to obtain the most melodious tone, combining also, in extraordinary vibration.

Nearly 9,000 Bells have been cast and sold from this Foundry, which is the best evidence of their superiority. We have fifteen Gold and Silver medals at our office, which were awarded for the "best Bells for sonorousness and purity of tone." We pay particular attention to the getting up Peals or Chimes, and can refer to those furnished by us. Our establishment is contiguous to the Erie and Champlain Canals, and Railroads running in every direction, which brings us within four hours of New York. Cash paid for old Copper. Old Clocks, Levels, Compasses, Transits, Theodolites, &c., for sale, of superior workmanship. All communications, either by mail or otherwise will have immediate attention.

Young Saladin for Sale.

THIS very superior Entire Horse five years old is offered for sale. He stands 15 hands 1 inch high, is of a beautiful black colour and has strong bone and sinew; he is remarkably good tempered, very gentle either in harness or saddle. His sire is the celebrated Blood Horse SALADIN imported in the year 1846 by the Royal Agricultural Society—his mother was a strong and valuable animal of the Greenwich breed and produced excellent stock. A prize was awarded to him at the Royal Agricultural Society's show in 1849, for the class of Blood horses of the Saladin Breed.

Half of the purchase money will be allowed to remain on security until the close of the next season, on approved security.—Apply at Hazzard's Gazette Office. March 16, 1853.
