The speech of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor at Georgetown yesterday was a capital one, and the report of it published in another column will be read with great interest. In view of the progress made in this Province in the past, as portrayed by His Honor, we may well thank God, take fresh courage, and go forward.

MR. DOUTNEY, accompanied by his wife and son, will arrive here via Shediac to-morrow evening, and opening his series of lectures on temperance in the Market Hall, on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. Mr. Doutney is highly spoken of as a practical and witty speaker, free from anything offensive, and his wife is a person of high musical ability.

ALL who desire a familiar acquaintance with our own great country, will do well to read the "Notes of a Trip to the Northwest," publication of which THE EXAMINER begins to-day. The notes were written by one of the party who accompanied Sir John Macdonald to and from British Columbia, and had exceptional means of seeing the country and obtaining information concerning it.

GOVERNOR JAMES H. McDONALD, of Michigan, will visit his relatives in Cape Breton and P. E. Island this month. Governor McDonald was born at North Uist, Scotland, in 1830, but when two years of age was brought out to this country by his parents. He amassed a fortune in the early days of mining, and at the last Michigan State election was elected Governor. One of his brothers is in Australia; another in Canada. He is a tall, military looking man, of fine appearance, and has a wife and three children.

THE entertainment at the Market Hall to-night is to be the one of season. Of Miss McGarry's ability as a dramatic reader and humorist we cannot say enough, and those who heard her before are a unit in their opinion that she is the finest they ever heard. Scotchmen come, bring your wives and children to her "Sandy's Signal" (Scotch dialect), "Pinafore," selections by local favorites, also of other popular authors. See programme on other page and be convinced. We can promise the most pleasant evening of the season. Prof. Earle at the piano. It is a duty that parents owe their children to have them hear this accomplished reader.

A SAD CASE.—About six o'clock last evening, a young woman apparently about 25 years of age, and decently clad, was found lying in the gutter near the corner of Grafton and Hillsborough streets, dead drunk. To say that she was "intoxicated" would be putting it too mild—she was perfectly useless. An attempt was made to walk her home, but it was impossible, as she had not the least power of locomotion. A sloop being procured, the "unfortunate" was driven to the west end of King Street where she resides. The usual number of small boys formed the procession. "Oh! it was pitiful"—a sight to make even the angels weep. In a Scott Act city like ours it is most disgraceful and criminal.

(SPECIAL DESPATCHES TO THE EXAMINER.)

The Wimbledon Shooting Match.

TORONTO, July 14. A special cable to the Mail says:—There was a very large attendance at Wimbledon yesterday. Intense interest is taken in the shooting, and the Queen's Prize, the second and third ranges of the first stage are completed by nearly all the firing being at 500 and 600 yards, seven shots at each; highest possible score, 70. Private Gillies, 90th Regiment, Winnipeg, leads the Canadians at these ranges, and stands high up amongst all competitors, his score being 61. It is impossible to give his exact place, owing to non-completion of firing by several squads. In the Heath competition for prizes amounting to £115, 20 shots at 500 yards, highest possible score 100, Sergt. C. N. Mitchell, 90th Winnipeg leads with a score of 90 points. In the Alexandria competition 100 pounds, seven shots each at 500 and 600 yards, prizes were secured, after some very keen shooting, by Private W. Gamble, 46th East Durham, Lieut. D. L. Hooper, 82nd Battalion, Prince Edward Island and Lieut. A. D. Cartwright, 47th Kingston.

Prof. Tyndall on Home Rule.

LONDON, July 14. Prof. Tyndall in a communication published to-day says he has received numerous letters from all parts of America on the Irish Home Rule, and they all recommended the utmost resistance to Gladstone's policy. "Inasmuch," says Tyndall, "as a desperate gamester, miscalculated statesman, is chosen to invoke ignorant foreign opinion against the instructed opinion of his own countrymen, it is worth showing that American opinion is not entirely on his side."

Crime in Ireland.

DUBLIN, July 14. Justice O'Brien, in his address to the grand jury in County Kerry to-day, admitted that there was a decrease in crime in the country, the cause being the complete subjugation of peaceable members of the community to lawless organization.

REVERE HOUSE.

July 14.—W H Hankin, Brooklyn, N Y; J B Danforth, Medfield, Mass; Mr and Mrs H McDonald, Truro, N S; D Schurman, Summerside.

"The proper study of mankind is Man" says the illustrious Pope, if he had included woman in the list, he would have been nearer the truth, if not so poetical. Dr. R. V. Pierce has made them both a life study, especially woman, and the peculiar derangements to which her delicate system is liable. Many women in the land who are acquainted with Dr. Pierce only through his "Favorite Prescription," bless him with all their hearts, for he has brought them the panacea for all those chronic ailments peculiar to their sex; such as leucorrhoea, prolapsus and other displacements, ulceration, "internal fever," bloating, tendency to internal cancer, and other ailments. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

THE steamer Worcester sailed for Boston last evening at 6 o'clock with a cargo of eggs, lobsters, mackerel and other produce, and the following passengers: Geo Green, Miss McKenna, Miss J McKenna, Miss S M McKenna, D Taudvin, Mrs Taudvin, Edith Taudvin, Sarah Taudvin, Frank Taudvin, Wm Taudvin, Mary Doherty, L Coffin, Joseph Bruce, George Lightizer.

THE Short Line Railway to Pictou, N. S., is expected to be completed shortly. Our steaming will then go to the town instead of remaining at the landing as at present.

The Black Envelope

Announcing the death of Miss Emma McKay, of Kent Street, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

It came— It was the last, The sable-colored last, that told— The name

Of one, just passed To Jesus's excruciated fold.

Each week Fresh letters bring Reports of how the patient failed: How meek; (Though suffering) What resignation and how care.

Sometimes, A hope was felt, And then some clown was set aside, And others

Of cheer, would melt Sweet cadence, on the ebbing tide.

So Thee, ("FANNIE" MCKAY) We mourn and miss, ah yes! so much, Yet we

'Good-speed' thy way To Heaven's Kingdom. 'Tis for such.

How strange! This leaving Earth To be victorious above! To change

(Through seeming Death) Into spirit—the soul of love.

Her 'breath' (On upward wing) Renounced the body and was free.

Oh, Death! Where is thy sting? Oh, Grave! where is thy Victory?

Onset Bay, Mass., July 7, 1887. RETSGAR.

Loss of the Merrimack.

STATEMENT OF MRS. ALLEY.

THE Halifax Herald devotes several columns to statements of the rescued passengers of the wrecked steamer Merrimack. That of Mrs. Alley, of this city, is as follows:—

"I was laying in my berth about 11.40 listening to some kind of a fog whistle, which I afterwards learned belonged to the Merrimack. My husband was in the upper berth and my daughter in the next state room. All at once there came a strange sensation through the steamer, followed by a grinding noise. I immediately sprang out that we were on the rocks and I sprang out of the berth to dress. My husband was up before me. While hastily getting on our clothes the bumping and scraping continued for perhaps three minutes, when a fearful shock came, which nearly knocked us down. In a calamity like that one takes no note of time, and one minute may run into ten or even more. After getting on our clothes we all three rushed on the hurricane deck to try and get a boat lowered.

THE SCENE IN THE STATEROOMS, AND IN THE PASSAGE WAYS, and on deck beggars description. Some were praying, others screaming, and some paralyzed with fear. One old gentleman in particular was most earnest in his importunities. After we got on the hurricane deck we found the weather too chilly to remain, and we came down and stood by the door of the chief steward, watching the lowering of the boats. It was while standing here that she shipped the first sea. We were wading around in nearly two feet of water in the saloon. The sea which she shipped had the effect of preventing the passengers from getting the remainder of their clothes, as few of them dare enter their staterooms, thinking that perhaps the next sea might sweep the decks or prevent them from getting out again.

LOWERING THE BOATS WAS DREADFUL SLOW. The blocks or something would not work and had there been a heavy sea there would have been no one to tell the tale. While the boats were getting lowered I thought I would risk it and rescue as many of our valuables as possible. I went into the stateroom and gathered up what I could. The lights were out in all the staterooms, the captain having directed the chief stewardess to do this first thing—almost after the disaster. You ask what the crew did? Well, I couldn't tell you. This I know, the boat was insufficiently manned and there did not appear to be any order such as I have heard of in similar disasters, when every man takes his place to perform extraordinary duties, with a resolution to do or die.

SOME OF THE PASSENGERS ACTED LIKE MADMEN. For instance, our daughter had her life preserver taken from her by violence. Mrs. Alley here related some anecdotes of how the passengers behaved about the life preservers, which were irresistibly funny. Asked if she saw the Barrington street druggist distributing Taylor's cough lozenges free, she said she did not know him, but saw a little red faced man fastened to a life-preserver as big as the Shulee raft; and she heard of a strapping big fellow with two life-preservers on, trying to quiet and keep cool a lot of women who had none. I did not go in the first boat for fear it would swamp, and only left the ship in the second boat. At that time nearly all the women were off except the chief stewardess. We were lowered into the boats by ropes, and remained around the steamer until six o'clock. Many of the women had their fingers badly bruised by the boats coming together. When we first struck we were about 200 yards from the island, but the steamer

SURGED UP TO THE ISLAND, so that we were perhaps, when the vessel stopped, not more than 150 yards off. Almost the first thing I did after the steamer struck was to look out and see the lighthouse. It was distinctly visible, shining as bright as it is to-night or any other night. We could not land on the island owing to the breakers, long lines of which were breaking over rocks and ledges all around it. Breakers are sentimental things to look at from the shore, but seen from an overloaded boat trying to make the shore, they send a shudder through one. After we all got into the boat they served us out a blanket a piece, and it was one of the queerest sights I ever beheld to see each with a white blanket around their shoulders looking like so many esquimaux women preparing for a great seal or walrus hunt. At six we went ashore. Had any efforts been made on Sunday all our things could have been recovered, but on Monday my husband's clothing, etc., was all gone.

THE cable reports that Rev. Dr. McBeth, of Ennisborough, has started for Canada as an orange orator, "to undo the mischief Mr. O'Brien has wrought in Canada." Dr. McBeth's visit is uncalled for.—Mr. O'Brien did no mischief in Canada, except, perhaps, to the Irish cause.
