Excelsior Flour.

THIS FLOUR, when once introduced, is bound to take the lead over all others for general family use, being suitable for all purposes.

It is very white and quite fine enough for making the best Pastry; and having a good proportion of No. 1 Manitoba Hard Wheat in it, it has all the strength required for making a first-class loaf of bread. In order to introduce it we have put the price down to

and we can confidently recommend it as the best value in Flour that we have ever offered at that price. Try a barrel of "Excelsior" if you want something really first-class. For sale only by

Night.

World of fancies, dark and lonely!
Sea without the breakers' roar, Light a fancy to thy memory, Night is darkness—nothing more.

Child of sorrow! Still thy whisper Echoes through the silent hours; Bring memories passing slowly, That the present still is ours.

Nothing but the trump of judgment Will return these echoes drear; For black night has closed around me, Visions to my mind appear.

Sitting sad and lone, beguiling, Starts my soul within me now;
For the darkness reaps around me, Have I now repaid my vow?

Vowing to redeem the future,
Since the dawn of my existence, Nothing raises up my spirits,
For this darkness evermore.

Sad and lonely seems the future World of sorrow yet to be, Nothing yet to still the throbbing In that age eternity.

Would that some kind mid-night angel Should a balm in my spirit bring From the roses of remembrance, Round my heart these phantoms cling.

Clinging closer and holding faster To the grey above their shrine, Listening for their evil master, Who would like poor hearts like mine.

Get thee gone, O spirit loathsome!
Back to darkness and to chains; Leave this soul that, far from kindred, Leave to goddess all my pains.

Would that some cheering angel Should my sorrows now assuage;
For the night is dark and drear, O'er my head and cheerless grave.

Prince of Wales College. JACOBUS.

Rewards.

(Educational Foundations.)
The use of rewards as means of discipline requires of the teacher even greater judgment than the application of punishment.
The children who are rewarded, are apt to of their number is rewarded, is apt to look upon the recipient of favors with jealous eyes, and if this occurs too often, may begin to dislike both the teacher and the rewarded.

Rewards should neither be bribes calculated to get the pupil to do right by appealing to the lower motives of his nature, such as love of gain or selfishness.
They should not appear as a payment for good acts. A reward if it is only a look of approval, should be valued by the child as a token of the teacher's interest in his doings. He must feel that it is not an end toward which right doing is only a means, but that it is the motive which prompted the good, and not the act itself, that has value in the teacher's eye. Rewards are to render the results of right doing perceptible to the child, to cheer him, strengthen and encourage him to hold fast to the right.

The simplest and best rewards are a look of approval and a word of encouragement from the teacher. The child who reads in the smiling countenance of the teacher that she is satisfied with him is rewarded with a feeling of pleasure of having done right. A word of approval spurs him to higher attainments.
But the teacher must not be partial with these rewards. The poor must not be neglected. They are the ones who appreciate a kind look and a pleasant word most. It is a ray of sunshine into their little hearts.

Promises are also good incentives, if the teacher does not neglect to redeem them at the proper time. To take a walk with the teacher, to look at pictures, to read from a story-book are all promises that unpoised children will value highly.

Prizes must be wisely distributed. Here injustice is particularly noticeable. Good conduct, attendance, and punctuality ought not to be rewarded, they should rather be made a condition for receiving a prize.
Whatever the prize may be, the child must be made to feel that it is given as an acknowledgment of painstaking effort, and must be valued merely for its intrinsic worth. In rewarding, as in all education, the teacher must never lose sight of the ideal towards which she is to lead her pupils.
Rewards are only stepping stones which are to make the ascent less difficult, but they must be sound and firmly fixed, lest he who treads on them falls into the depths of error and immorality.

A POPULAR SALESMAN

Employed in One of Montreal's Best Dry Goods Houses

MAKES A STATEMENT FOR THE BENEFIT OF OTHERS.

His Hopes Were Fully Realized.

A CHANGED CONDITION OF LIFE.

The thousands of shoppers who patronize the well-known establishment of Messrs.
John Murphy & Co., Notre Dame Street, Montreal, are often served by the affable, genial and painstaking Hugh J. Reilly.
In his special department Mr. Reilly has few equals; he is esteemed by his employers and respected by those with whom he comes in contact.

For many months Mr. Reilly found himself in a condition of health that caused much anxiety to himself and family. His friends could see at a glance that he was not the man he should be. Instead of deriving comfort, pleasure and satisfaction from his daily work, his life was made miserable and almost unbearable owing to continual suffering.

HUGH J. REILLY.

Mr. Reilly, like other men, sought medical advice; he invested considerable money in many of the false and useless medicines of our day, but got no relief. His condition of sleeplessness, nervousness, weakness and general suffering had almost unfitted him for business. Just at this crisis a friend advised him to use Paine's Celery Compound, that wonderful medicine that has wrought so many cures after doctors had given up hope and were unable to save.
Mr. Reilly, after a course of Paine's Celery Compound, is well-cured—and cannot find words strong enough to express his gratitude. Mr. Reilly writes as follows:
"I wish to publicly acknowledge the fact that I am indebted to your Paine's Celery Compound for health, strength and life. For over three years I was a terrible sufferer from indigestion, severe pain in stomach and headache. In addition to these serious troubles, I had no appetite or relish for food, and hardly knew what it was to have a full night's rest. This condition of sleeplessness and anxiety made me very nervous, and I was fast becoming unfitted for my daily work. After all other medicines had failed I was fortunately advised to use your Paine's Celery Compound; and now, I am delighted to declare that it has no equal in the world for removing such dangerous troubles as I suffered from. I am daily gaining in strength, sleep well every night, and my appetite is good and healthy. I strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who need a reliable and honest medicine, and one that is sure to cure."

HUGH J. REILLY,
42 Agnes St., St. Henry, Montreal.

A Brockville Druggist's Case

BROCKVILLE, April 24th.—The popular impression is that doctors and druggists seldom take their own medicine. This is no doubt true, but when a doctor takes ill he generally calls in one of his own profession, in whose skill he has every confidence, or when a druggist is in a similar situation, he often puts his faith in the preparations of some other chemist which he knows give good results. Both the doctors and druggists in such cases show their good sense.
A case in point happened in this town a short time ago. Mr. F. M. Turner, a well-known and popular druggist, who is now travelling for Parke, Davies & Co., has for a long time been a sufferer from congestion and inflammation of the kidneys.
He tried a great many remedies, but without results. His patrons, however, spoke so highly of Dodd's Kidney Pills that he was induced to try them. He now states that he is completely cured, and to your correspondent he said that as a rule he had very little faith in patent medicines, but that for the cure of kidney troubles, rheumatism, backache, etc., he does not know of any remedy that is giving such good results as Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Intoxicated" Means "Poisoned."

The evils of poisonous drinks are innumerable. The numbing blight falls on every organ and function of the body, its insanity on every faculty of mind, and its clog on every seraph wing of the spirit. All this is conceded. And the result on one —numbness, insanity, wallowing in the mire—is not to excite utter abhorrence, but to seek its again.

Why will men drink? They do not fall off precipices designedly, nor put their fingers in the fire perversely.

Boys mostly learn to drink through per-versity. They want to show they are not afraid, or that they are manly enough to despise aspersed danger. They smoke, chew, carry powder, to show they are fearless. They incur danger to frighten their grandmothers and sisters. Probably such folly cannot be driven out by advice—only by the rod, vigorously applied. There should be no waiting, nor foolish tenderness. There is no other way to drive such foolishness out of the heart of such a child.

Some drink because of an inherited appetite for it. It is a fire shut up in their bones. Rum does not quench, but feeds it.

No religious teacher, or even well-wisher of mankind, should fail to be perpetually and aggressively against alcohol. The church should never go over to its side.
God warns faithfully and fearfully. His church should not warn feebly.

It takes a strong man to face an issue squarely. It is usually easier to ignore or to mock at the power of temptation than to admit and to fear it. Before a man can realize his weakness in the presence of an enemy he must recognize the enemy. And it takes courage to look and to be afraid, and then to decide to resist unto death.

Did the persons of whose downfall you know ever intend to become such as I? Of course they did not. Each of them thought that, though others had fallen, he should stand. So to day the moderate drinker thinks that, while others are in danger, he will be able to care for himself so that he shall never be a drunkard. But, alas! the story that has been so often told will be repeated again; and many of our young men, and some of our young maidens, will end in a drunkard's grave.

Is there, then, no way in which you and I may be safe? Yes, one way and that a perfectly sure way. What is that way? It is the way of total abstinence. No total abstainer ever filled a drunkard's grave, and none ever will. It is the one and the absolutely safe way. Why then not take it to-day, and, if you have never done so before, sign the pledge this day, and by God's help keep it, and in this way ensure yourself against ever becoming what you have seen others become? This is the way of wisdom and of safety, and there is no other of which I know. Do you know of any other sure way?
