TRACERS CONVENTION

Morning Session.

His Hon. Judge Warburton gave an excellent address on the "Concert System of Schools." He showed that practical agriculture could be taught in every school, at sufficiently large school grounds were provided. He showed many other advantages to be derived by consolidating every six or seven school districts into one, and thus forming a first-class school in every particular. This paper was discussed by Inspectors McCormac, Campbell, McIntyre and Messrs. Seimen, Hill, Campbell and Kiely.

Inspector McIntyre read a concise paper on Discipline, emphasizing the importance of securing the confidence of the pupils, following a carefully planned timetable, making a skilful classification of pupils, introducing music and military drill into the schools, avoid extremes, impressing order in the school room, and inflicting punishment. Discussed by Messrs. Lestrigan, McMillan and Campbell. Vote of thanks. Adjourned until tomorrow at 9 a.m.

THE ROLLO.

Departure of An Old and Tried Friend of this City.

The Rollo fire engine, made by the Merryweathers, of London, famous for their manufacture of fire engines in Britain and on the continent, was shipped yesterday by the S.S. Fred M. Bait for Lunenburg, N.S., consigned to Mr. Frank Power, Chief of the fire department of that town. The Rollo was recently purchased and refitted by Mr. T. A. McLean, of E. Dale Foundry, and is now brought back to an efficient state, capable of battling with fire and flame as it has ever done, when properly handled. It is now being loaned to the town of Lunenburg while they are getting a new boiler and other repairs to their Ronella engine. This shows that the Merryweather fire engine, although in use before any of those newer makes were thought of, is still able to stand its work as it has always done in the past.

Good bye, old Rollo, so dear to the hearts of the Boys of the O'd Brigade.

In continuance of the bounty of the late William Dodd, Esq., the Hon. Thomas W. Dood left a bequest of five thousand dollars towards the establishment of a public library in Charlottesville. We cannot too highly commend such benevolence. The example is one to be imitated.

THE DAILY EXAMINER

SEPTEMBER 27 1900

THE FARMER WAS SACRIFICED

To the interest of the United States farmer the farmer of Canada has been sacrificed by the blundering of the Laurier Government. Sir Charles Tupper's policy is to give consideration for consideration to the Americans, but to give no concession for nothing. It was in accordance with this policy that the Liberal-Conservatives placed on the statute book an offer to admit American corn free if the United States would take our barley without charging a duty. This was surely a fair offer.

When the Laurier Government came in it withdrew this offer, and gave free corn for nothing. When the proposition was made by Mr. Fielding, Mr. Charlton objected. He said:

"In giving the Americans free corn we are giving them something that is in their estimation an important concession, and we are giving them that concession without a quid pro quo. That is the particular objection, and the only objection, I have to the admission of corn free of duty."

Then Mr Charlton made a survey of the situation in order to prove that we ought not to give to those people a single concession which they might deem of value without receiving something in return. He points out that in 1896 we bought $58,000,000 worth of goods from the Americans, $29,000,000 of which came in free. How did they meet our large purchases from them and our extended free list? What did they say when we asked them to permit us to pay for the products of their labor with the products of our labor? They introduced a new tariff in which they made their duties higher. We are required to pay $6 per head on cattle, $1.50 per head on hogs, 30c on horses, $1.50 on sheep, thirty cents a bushel, or 125 per cent ad valorem, on barley, fifteen cents a bushel on corn buckwheat, and oats, twenty-five cents a bushel on wheat, $4 a ton on hay, twenty-five cents a bushel on potatoes, and so on. Mr Charlton proceeds:-

"This refusal on the part of the United States, with our liberal trade arrangements towards them, to receive on terms of an equality the products of our labor creates a condition of things in the highest degree unsatisfactory, and in view of these circumstances I held that to give the Americans free admission for their corn is granting to them a concession to which they are not entitled."

Bear in mind the question is whether, in admitting corn free, the Government gave a favor improperly to the United States. Mr. Charlton continues thus:- "I hold that we ought to retain corn on the dutiable list until we can secure some consideration from the United States in return. I know by experience that in the Western States—in Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, and in the other great corn States, which are the centre of opposition to reciprocity in agricultural products between these two countries—the free admission of corn into the Canadian market is considered a matter of very great importance; and I know that the hostility of these Western farmers to concessions which will admit free of duty the products of our soil into the American market can be very largely reduced, and to a great extent removed, by placing before those farmers the important consideration we have to give up permitting their corn to enter our markets free of duty. I know this from experience, from hundreds of instances in which I have discussed the question with American farmers. I know that in the great majority of cases these men say,—"We will not object to give you free admission of hay, free admission of potatoes and free admission of barley in some cases if you will give us the free admission of corn." Under these circumstances it would be the part of thrift for us to hold this concession back until we can secure some quid pro quo for granting it, and I urge these considerations upon the Government."

It looks after all as if the granting of free corn to the Yankees were a favor to them that should not have been given. At least such is Liberal testimony. As a matter of fact, the movement was one of Mr. Fielding's blunders arising from his inability to understand commercial affairs even when explained to him. The Mail and Empire points out that when after giving away all it had to give it, it went to Washington to look for a quid pro quo, the Americans were so well satisfied with what they had already secured that they did not want to negotiate except upon terms that are exceedingly onerous.

The danger now is that the initial blunder, which Mr Charlton tried in vain to stop, may be followed by another blunder made in the attempt to repair mistake No. 1. The Washington commission is still open, and if Laurier pulls through an election he will pay high for what he might have got for comparatively little. It is because his mind is fixed on Washington that he opposes British preference trade so strenuously. The British preference, is incompatible with the Washington preference, and besides it is not approved of by either Bourassa or Tarte.
